Tribe, Bosox Meet Today To Play Off League Tie

Boston Is Favored By Experts; Feller, Yesterday's Loser, A Possible Starter

For the first time in its 49-year history, the American League pennant race ended in a tie yesterday.

Jointly occupying first place are the Cleveland Indians and the Boston Red Sox who will meet for the championship in a one-game playoff this afternoon at Boston.

Cleveland, seeking its first pennant in 28 years, could have annexed it yesterday, but failed miserably, losing to Detroit, 7-1.

While the Indian debacle was taking place in Cleveland, the hard-hitting Red Sox were overpowering the New York Yankees, 10-5, in Boston's Fenway Park.

Cleveland and Boston ended their 154-game season with identical records of 96 victories and 58 defeats. The winner of today's game will meet the Boston Braves, National League champions, in the World Series which opens in Boston Wednesday.

Boston Favored

The experts last night were inclined to favor the Red Sox today.

In Boston's favor is their home park, a stadium where power hitters like Ted Williams, Bobby Doerr, and Vern Stephens find it easy to hit home runs over the short left-field fence.

Both managers, Lou Boudreau, of the Indians, and Joe McCarthy, of the Red Sox, declined to name their pitchers for today's payoff game. Boudreau, however, did intimate that Bobby Feller, his star, who was knocked out in three innings by the fifth-place Tigers yesterday, would probably start for Cleveland. He has beaten Boston three times this year.

Either Mel Parnell, a young left-hander, or Ellis Kinder, a right-hander, is expected to pitch for McCarthy's Red Sox.

Last of Three Iowa Brothers Contracts Polio

Des Moines, Oct. 3 (AP).—The only remaining child of a family which has lost two sons since Thursday because of polio, today was admitted to a hospital here with the same disease.

The boy is Dennis Brandhorst, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray B. Brandhorst of Manning, Iowa.

Hospital authorities said he is afflicted with bulbar polio, the same type which resulted in the death of his two brothers.

The older brother, Donald, 14, died Thursday, just five hours before the second brother, Dale, 12, was admitted to the hospital. Dale died yesterday.

LSTs Breaking Up In Okinawa Storm

Manila, Oct. 3 (AP).—Globe Wireless today intercepted urgent distress messages from two typhoon-buffeted U. S. Army LSTs carrying cargo from Manila to Okinawa waters.

One S O S flashed by LST 916 shortly after midnight said it was grounded outside Naha, Okinawa port, and being pounded to pieces on a reef.

The other craft identified itself as LST 898. It said it was breaking up on a reef a mile west of Buckner Bay at the entrance to the channel.

The LSTs each carried crews of 48 men.

Maybank Hurt In Auto Crash

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 3 (AP). — U. S. Senator Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) was injured late today in an automobile accident near Holly Hill, S. C. His physician said his condition is "not serious" and that he suffered a fractured kneecap and a nose injury.

Cleric Tells Animals Of Heaven

Hereford, England, Oct. 3 (AP).—The animals came to church here today, and they sat very solemnly as they heard a Church of England clergyman say there is a very good chance they will go to heaven. They will have to be good, of course.

The service was held at the Holy Trinity Church on the eve of the feast of St. Francis, patron saint of the animals.

Children were invited to bring their pets. So the congregation included:

Twenty horses.

Dozens of cats and kittens, some with starched ribbons.

A tiddler in a jar—a tiddler being an English version of a sunfish.

Ducks, chickens and guinea pigs.

Dogs, of course.

A white mouse, which made some of the little girls nervous.

The 20 horses, brushed sleek.

Neutral Observers On Train Give Him 8 For 90 Electoral Votes

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey returned home tonight from a 60-speech, 8822-mile tour of 14 States more confident than ever of the November election results.

In fact, Edwin F. Jaeckle, his chief political lieutenant aboard, predicted he will carry all 14 of the States in which he spoke, with a total electoral vote of 129.

Neutral observers aboard figured Dewey is now definitely leading in eight of these, with an electoral vote of 90, but didn't bar the possibility of a Far Western sweep.

Gratified by the heavy and demonstrative crowds in one of the most doubtful of the lot, the President's home State of Missouri, Governor Dewey caught up on his rest in 10 hours of unbroken slumber last night. Then he came back to the press lounge and reminisced in a gay mood with reporters on the 15-day Western round-up.

It will be at least a week before he sets out on another. Plans for a second trip are still unannounced but reports are it will be a much briefer Misdwestern tour, highlighted by a return call to Mr. Truman's Missouri for a major speech in Kansas City.

Whether Governor Dewey will remain in Albany until President Truman appears there later this week was open to doubt. A rest at his Pawling farm, a trip to the

Mundt Wants Probe Postponed

Madison, S. Dak., Oct. 3 (U.P.)—Representative Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.) said tonight he had recommended postponement of Un-American Activities Committee investigations until after elections because "anything we do or fail to do . . . will be perverted for political purposes."

Peru Revolt Is Believed Snuffed Out

Key Points Taken By Rebels Given Up; Large Number of Deaths Indicated

Lima, Peru, Oct. 3 (AP).—Peruvian sailors and armed civilians, backed by seized warships, staged a rebellion early today at Callao, the port of Lima.

The government appeared to have the situation under control tonight, but fighting still continued at some points.

Government communiques said focal points seized by the rebels—including the Peruvian naval academy, naval armory and Fort Royal Phillip—had surrendered to loyal troops using tanks and planes.

However, an Associated Press reporter at the scene reported by telephone a handful of rebels with a cannon was still holding out.

The reporter said a large number of persons appeared to have been killed in the fighting. Ambulances were seen frequently crossing the streets to pick up the wounded.

A government communique this afternoon said the armory and fort had surrendered and that Commandant Jose Mosto, a leader of the uprising, had been arrested on board the cruiser Coronel Bolognesi. A subsequent communique said the rebels who had seized the academy also had surrendered and that the loyalist superintendent, Rear Admiral Manuel R. Nieto, had resumed command. Insurgent sailors were reported arrested.

Latest reports tonight said that after the surrender of the fort a group of rebels, waving a white flag, ambushed and wounded infantry Capt. Alberto Leon Diaz who commanded the detachment which retook the fort. More than 400 prisoners were reported captured by the loyalists at the fort.

The newspaper El Commercio said the cruiser Almirante Grau and the destroyer Villar, two of the vessels seized by the rebels to support their attack, had sailed into Callao Bay to surrender.

A government communique said: "Latest investigations confirmed fully that the Aprista Party (in opposition to policies of President Jose Luis Bustamante Rivero) inspired and directed the movement. Comdr. Enrique Aguila Pardo, who is well known because of his Aprista leanings, headed the rebellion aboard some warships. The police detained numerous civilians, who affiliated with the Aprista Party, many of them arrested while armed, and whose participation in the revolt has been proved."

Christoffel Put Out of Auto Union In Fund Inquiry

Milwaukee, Oct. 3 (AP).—Harold Christoffel was expelled today from the union he once led.

Christoffel and eight other former officers of Local 248, UAW-CIO, at the Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Co. here were removed by a membership vote. They were charged with mishandling union funds.

The membership also authorized Local 248's executive board to withdraw the $5000 cash bond which was provided for Christoffel at his perjury trial in Washington last March. Christoffel was convicted of perjury for denying Communist association before a House committee.

To Spark Merchant Marine

Speedy Freighter for Use In Peace and War Planned

(Second of a Series)

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Plans for a new, high-speed American freighter—designed both for the highly competitive peace-time trade and mass production in time of war—were disclosed yesterday by Maritime Commission officials.

Chairman William W. Smith told The Washington Post that President Truman has approved spending 10 million dollars to build two of the ships. Formal announcement of the project and call for bids are expected shortly.

The Government will pay the entire cost of the new cargo vessels. Admiral Smith said maritime experts are highly confident of the success of the new design and predict that American shipping firms will place additional orders once the worth of the two Government-owned ships is demonstrated.

This new "white hope" of the American merchant marine is one of the few bright spots in an otherwise dismal United States maritime picture. A serious shortage of passenger vessels, growing unemployment and the expected lay-up of most of the Nation's bulk or tramp trade ships makes the future appear grim.

Admiral Smith is more optimistic than other merchant marine chiefs. He has hopes of the Commission's shipbuilding program and future prospects of the established trade route lines.

Defense department officials, ship operators and labor representatives are more gloomy.

Smith said the single-screw new freighter would have a designed speed of 20 knots—nearly double that of the wartime Liberties—and well above the present C-3 ships. It will be longer than the C-3, well over 500 feet from stem to stern, and have a displacement of more than 13,000 deadweight tons.

Double hatches in place of the conventional type, new type "one-man booms" and other features will permit much faster loading and unloading. The craft can serve as Navy attack transports or attack cargo vessels for any future invasions, Smith said.

Funds for the ships will come from a 178-million dollar contract authorization made available by Congress. Of this sum, orders already have been placed for building two passenger vessels for the American Export Lines' Mediterranean service and three combina-

Russia Asks Big 4 Council Meeting On Berlin and Entire German Issue; Challenges United Nations Authority

Soviet Declares Big 3 Violated Pact by Plans to 'Dismember' Country

London (Monday), Oct. 4 (AP).—The Soviet government proposed today that the four-power Foreign Ministers Council be called to consider both the Berlin impasse and the entire German situation.

The proposal was contained in the Russian reply to the notes of the United States, Britain and France that broke off direct talks on the Berlin crisis. The reply was broadcast by the Moscow radio and distributed here by the Soviet Monitor.

The reply, described in the broadcast as the official version sent yesterday by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov to the western power governments, said:

"The United States Government's declaration that a situation has arisen which allegedly threatens international peace and security, does not correspond with the real state of affairs and constitutes nothing more than a means of pressure and an attempt to use the United Nations for the achievement of its aggressive aims."

Article 107 Cited

The reply said that since the three Western powers declared in their September 26 notes to Russia they were submitting the Berlin problem to the United Nations fall meeting in Paris, "the government of the USSR considers it is necessary to declare the following:

"The problem of the Berlin situation is closely connected with that of Germany as a whole, with the dismemberment of Germany, and with the creation of a separate government in western Germany and is subject in accordance with Article 107 of the United Nations Charter to be settled by the governments responsible for the occupation of Germany and is not subject to submission to the Security Council."

The Soviet government, the note said, "proposes that the directive to the commanders-in-chief (of the occupation forces in Berlin) agreed on August 30 should be recognized as an agreement between the governments of the USSR, the United States of America, Great Britain and France on the basis of which the situation in Berlin should be settled."

"The responsibility for the situation that has arisen in Berlin rests squarely with the governments of the three powers," the reply said, according to the broadcast which quoted the Soviet news agency Tass.

The western powers handed their notes to Russia September 26 and have since then taken the Berlin issue to the United Nations Security Council which will begin debating it in Paris at 3 p. m. (9 a. m. EST) today.

Currency Issue Cited

The Soviet reply was dated October 3.

"The very question of the situation in Berlin did not exist," it said, "until the governments of the U. S. A., Britain and France proceeded to carry through a separate currency reform in the western zones of Germany and in three sectors of Berlin.

"At the same time it is well known that the above-mentioned currency reform was only one of the latest and particularly far-reaching measures in carrying through a policy of dismembering Germany, which placed the western zones of Germany outside the control of the four powers."

Violation of Pact Charged

"The government of the U. S. A., together with the government of Great Britain, began the policy of dismembering Germany with separate economic unification of the American and British zones of occupation of Germany in 1946 despite the agreement of the powers of the anti-Hitler coalition at the Potsdam conference. Thereby, the agreement previously concluded between the U.S.S.R., the U.S.A., Great Britain and France, regarding the joint control of the four powers over occupied Germany, was also grossly violated."

The note said the policy of the three powers in Western Germany "is increasingly leading to the growth of the influence of anti-democratic and Nazi elements who are responsible for the previous

The Facts Behind the Berlin Crisis

Today's Blockade Is the Climax of a Three-Year Tug of War

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

THE TUG-OF-WAR over Berlin really began on July 3, 1945.

On that day the American Second Armored Division rumbled eastward, through pouring rain, along Hitler's six-lane highway, the "Autobahn."

The veterans of Anzio and the Bulge were about to take over the newly formed American sector of Berlin. Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, in temporary command, was in a hurry. The next day would be the Fourth of July, and there was to be a parade for the occasion.

At Helmstedt, the border of the Soviet zone, the advance guards on motorcycles found a barrier stretched across the highway. A Soviet officer, polite but firm, brought the whole division, with its tanks and trucks and troop carriers stretching westward for miles, to a halt.

His orders, he said, were to count every vehicle and every man before letting the Americans in—to make sure that the actual number would tally with the number previously agreed upon.

General Parks fumed and fussed, but he was helpless. The division was stalled for seven hours while the count went on. It reached the battered capital just in time to raise the American Flag outside the Adolf Hitler Barracks, side by side with the Soviet flag, on the morning of the Fourth.

The seven-hour delay was just a foretaste for the next three years.

The Americans and their western allies were in Berlin by virtue of prior agreements, made with Soviet participation and consent. The first, made in September, 1944, by the European Advisory Commission in London, split Germany into four occupation zones and made Berlin a four-power island in the middle of the Soviet zone.

THIS AGREEMENT was approved by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Generalissimo Stalin at Yalta. It was confirmed in general terms in an exchange of messages between President Truman and Stalin on June 14 and 16, 1945. The Truman message said that American forces, which had advanced deep into the Soviet zone, would be pulled back to the zone boundaries—but on condition that the military commanders reached a satisfactory agreement giving road, rail and air access to American forces in Berlin. Stalin agreed.

Accordingly the American, British and Soviet military commands agreed on June 29 that the single railroad and highway from Magdeburg to Berlin should be used as the only land route for getting to Berlin from the west.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, who represented the United States, wanted a corridor under American control along this route, but Soviet Marshal Zhukov refused. He said the Soviet authorities did not care what would be hauled along the route, or how many trucks or trains would be used—and on this basis the westerners assented.

As for air traffic, Zhukov proposed, and the others agreed, that the main air lane for the Western Allies would also go from Magdeburg to Berlin, with one route of access from Frankfurt to Magdeburg, and the other from Hanover, in the British zone.

After the American troops had entered Berlin a third agreement made the Western Allies responsible for feeding and supplying the people in their sector of the city.

These agreements were not so precise as they should have been; they were left to be clarified and strengthened by day-to-day and month-to-month usage, and a good deal was left to the presumed good faith of Russia as an ally in arms. But from the start the Russians showed clearly that they felt they had special rights all over Berlin.

IN SPITE of the Western Allied occupation, and the division of Berlin into sectors, the Russians tried to keep in office a Soviet-sponsored municipal government for the entire city. When voters in the western sectors repudiated this Communist city government, the Russians tried to control the police in all four sectors, and claimed the right to veto every appointment to municipal office.

In the same way, they used their veto incessantly in the Kommandatura, the four-power body in charge of the city, so that effective four-power control became difficult and at times impossible.

The Western Allies, in turn, made their own authority clear in their own sectors of the city. They pushed Soviet troops and officials out of municipal government offices in the western sectors. They brought in western ideas as well as food and fuel. By newspaper and radio they spread their democratic doctrines, not only throughout Berlin but into the surrounding Soviet territory.

Berlin, in short, soon became an arena of interallied rivalry; and all interallied relationships in Berlin were distorted by the wider East-West struggle over the prostrate body of Germany.

When the Second Armored Division took up its garrison duties, barges loaded with Soviet loot were passing in plain view along the Wannsee and other lakes in Berlin's chain of waterways. The Russians were dismantling factories and methodically stripping their zone of everything movable they wanted, although their share of reparations from Germany had not yet been decided.

THEY REFUSED to send food from their zone into the western sectors of Berlin or into western Germany. They pulled a curtain of secrecy around their zone outside Berlin. They did all this, and more, in spite of the fact that President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Generalissimo Stalin had agreed at Potsdam, in July of 1945, to treat all of Germany as an economic unit.

After almost a year of vain protests from the West, Secretary of State James F. Byrnes proposed in June, 1946, that, if all four powers were not willing to merge the economic life of their zones, those that were willing should do so. In December the British and Americans agreed to combine the economic administration of their zones, including the Ruhr, the industrial heart of Germany, and about 45 million German people.

The British and Americans simply went ahead without the Russians in restoring normal life to the western zones. During 1947 they set up German state governments, with weak but gradually developing powers; they created a German economic authority for all the states in the combined zones; and during February and March of this year, and again in April and May, the Americans, British and French agreed in London to carry the process two steps further.

AFTER ONE MORE futile attempt to get Soviet agreement they decided, first, to introduce a new currency soon in western Germany in place of the worthless German marks and the cigarettes that had been used for money since the end of the war. They decided, secondly (and they announced this decision at once), to let the Germans in the western zones start writing a constitution for a political federation of all of western Germany.

The Russians had always complained bitterly about the economic merger of the western zones. With the first news of the political merger, they promptly fired warning shots across the westerners' bows. In February and March they sent two formal protests against what they called the "dismemberment" of Germany. On March 20 their commander in Berlin, Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, stalked out of the four-power allied control council meeting, saying that by setting up a western German government the Western Allies had forfeited whatever legal right they had to share in the control of Berlin.

The Russians reacted with more than words. They demanded the right to inspect every piece of Western Allied freight and every person entering or leaving Berlin. The Americans offered to show the Russians a passenger list and a freight manifest of each train, but no more.

DURING THE SPRING American, British and French rail and barge traffic was interrupted; the automobile highway from the west was ordered closed "for repairs" to a bridge across the Elbe, and a creeping paralysis set in over the supply of the western sectors of Berlin.

On June 18 the Western Allies announced their currency reform for western Germany, although not for Berlin. The Russians promptly stopped all passenger train traffic between the western and eastern zones, halted all road traffic and demanded a special Soviet license for all water transport.

On June 22, after an angry four-power meeting, the Russians introduced a new currency into their zone and ordered it used in all parts of Berlin. The Western Allies countered by putting their new western zone money, with a special overstamp "B" for Berlin, into their sectors of the city. The bewildered Berliners paid for some transactions in the so-called "rublemarks" and some in western marks.

In London, on the same day, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said the westerners would be perfectly willing to have the Soviet mark used as the only currency in Berlin, but only if its printing and distribution were controlled by all four powers. The Russians showed no interest.

The next day, June 23, the blow fell. On the plea of "technical difficulties" the Russians suspended all railroad passenger and freight traffic into Berlin, and all barge traffic as well. The 2,500,000 people in the western sectors of Berlin could be supplied only by air.

General Clay did not argue. Instead, he rushed an urgent appeal to the Army chiefs in Washington to send him more cargo planes.

Britain to Get 300 Millions

By The Associated Press

Sir Stafford Cripps reported yesterday that England "quite soon" will sign a loan agreement with the Economic Cooperation Administration providing 300 million dollars for British industrial recovery.

2 Billions Allocated

By the United Press

The Economic Cooperation Administration yesterday began its second six months of operations with $2,012,055,851 already allocated to western Europe and China.

ECA disclosed in its summary for the week ending September 29 that it had granted $69,582,087 to speed up recovery in eight European nations, western Germany, Trieste and China. The summary did not include the October 1 record daily grant of $133,047,954.

France Wants U. S. General To Command Western Forces

Paris, Oct. 3 (NYHT). — The whole defense system of the Western European Union, founded on the five-power Brussels pact of March 17, was threatened here today by nervous, second thoughts of a frightened French government.

The French have refused to implement a decision they took Tuesday which would have established a common defense policy and a permanent organization to carry it out for Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

It is understood their major objection is the failure of the United States to participate. Their specific complaint is the failure to select an American general as the commander of combined land, air and naval forces.

According to the arrangement, Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, chief of the British imperial general staff, was to take command of supreme headquarters. British military men were to take over the naval and air forces of the five powers, and the land armies were to be entrusted to Gen. Alphonse Juin, commander of the French North African theater.

The story is that General Juin objected to Montgomery's appointment; that he wished an American to take the post, and that for his part he refused under present circumstances to take command of the combined land armies.

General Juin is returning to his post in Morocco today. He is leaving behind him some worried and embarrassed men who are beginning to understand that Western Union cannot be organized by a couple of conferences

Soviet Charges Air Violations

Berlin, Oct. 3 (U.P.)—Russian authorities tonight charged the Western Allies with 742 separate violations of air safety rules in the Berlin supply corridors in a new move in their campaign to halt the airlift into the city.

Lieut. Gen. Mihail Dratvin, deputy Soviet commander in chief, sent letters to the American and British military governments alleging the violations.

He said the Americans were guilty of 86 and the British of 656. Flying at forbidden low altitudes over Russian airfields was the chief complaint.

Dratvin's letter, mild in tone compared to some others, said:

"Lack of discipline creates a threatening situation in air traffic

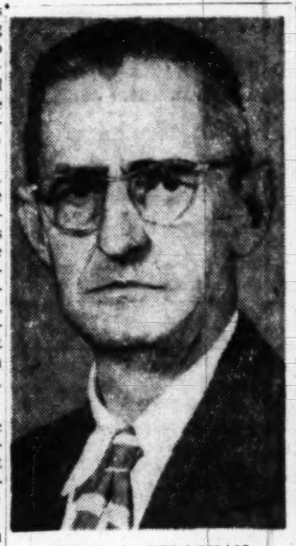
A Self-Described Cynic Leads the Battle For Decent Jobs for Nation's Handicapped

Do-gooders and do-nothings have the same effect on Paul Strachan. They get into his flinty hair, ignite the flames of anger in his deep brown eyes, tighten the lines in his lean, gaunt face and set his dentures on edge.

On the other hand, do-gooders and do-nothings react as if stung by a needle when they came into contact with the needle-thin crusader for the Nation's lame, blind and halt. Like an irrepressible voice of conscience, Strachan irritates them, and goads them into action.



PAUL A. STRACHAN
Devotes life to cause

Paul Strachan is himself a cynic. He inspired National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week—being observed this week—to focus the spotlight on the plight of the Nation's diseased and crippled citizens and to stimulate their placement in industry. But, cynically, he's first to admit that public ballyhoo is so much quicksand, and that what is really needed is a firm foundation of public understanding.

Battered Warrior

How does a self-described cynic get himself involved in a humanitarian undertaking, such as a fight for medical care, education, vocational training, and jobs for the handicapped?

In the case of Strachan, you must refer back to a hectic life as stevedore and sailor, publicity agent and movie manager, union organizer and legislative representative . . . among other things. You must tote up the hard knocks—a train wreck, deafness, broken spine; World War I influenza and one foot in the grave; Mississippi flood, polluted water, amoebic dysentery, and the other foot in the grave; anemia, cardiac troubles, sinus complications, double hernia, Bright's disease . . . among other things.

Knowing this background, you begin to see why this 56-year-old skeptic decided some 10 years ago, on leaving his supposed death bed at Johns Hopkins Hospital for a second time, to devote his remaining days to the cause of the handicapped.

Haunted Capitol

His penetrating eyes fixed on his mission, Michigan-born, world-experienced Paul Strachan came to Washington, founded the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped, pounded the corridors and thumped the desks of Capitol Hill, buttonholed legislators and bureaucrats, industrialists and labor leaders. (He, meanwhile, set up shop in the National Press Building, moved his family of six to 1341 North Capitol st.)

Over the years, Strachan sought not handouts for his organization but the kind of aid which would restore millions of handicapped to the self-respecting citizenship of wage-earners, breadwinners and taxpayers.

There can be no rehabilitation, Strachan declares in that booming voice of his, without a job. That is a cardinal tenet of this prophet's faith.

Every soft-hearted American will agree to this principle. Give the handicapped a job. It's the human thing to do

"Thell with that!" interjects Strachan, Charity's fine, but in this case misplaced, he insists. To soft-hearted and hard-hearted alike he says it's not sympathy that the handicapped want, but a fair chance at a job.

Forget the Handicaps

Rip away the prejudice! shouts Strachan. Tear down the barriers of ignorance! he cries. Forget the individual's handicap, let him compete on equal terms for the job!

Strachan believes the Federal Government should help the handicapped, again not by filling tin cups to overflowing, but by intelligent assistance which will strengthen the commonweal. He thinks that the Federal Government isn't doing enough because it's doing too much. He says there are 41 Federal agencies concerned with the handicapped, many of which get in each other's way. Strachan's immediate goal is to get those governmental activities combined into a single agency.

Sometimes Paul Strachan gets discouraged. He sees his goal—public understanding of the problem—as 50 years off.

Then he runs into a do-gooder or a do-nothing, and his Scotch blood begins boiling all over again. Then Paul jams the green visor over his eyes, rolls up his sleeves, grates his dentures, and thus equipped, charges into battle.

Saposs Gets ECA Post

The Economic Cooperation Administration yesterday announced the appointment of David J. Saposs as special adviser on trade union relations. Saposs, a former official of the bureau of labor statistics, left by plane yesterday for Paris.

'Kickoff' Today

U.S. Officials, Church Aid NEPH Week

On the eve of a "kick-off" luncheon starting National Employ and Physically Handicapped Week, statements supporting the cause came from religious and Government leaders yesterday.

Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York, has written a prayer for the week, which asks that God inspire "Thy strong and able children with tender mercy for the blind, the maimed and the lame, that they may give work to the physically handicapped, teaching them the arts, trades and crafts that can save them and help them to live."

At the same time, a joint statement by six officials of the President's Cabinet and heads of three Federal agencies was issued yesterday indorsing Physically Handicapped Week.

Signers of the statement were the Secretaries of State, Treasury, Defense, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor, the Federal Security Administrator, Veterans Administrator and the President of the United States Civil Service Commission. The statement points out:

"All Federal, State and community officials have the duty and obligation to see that all possible employment opportunities in Government are made available to the handicapped, both veteran and non-veteran.

"Since, as the President says in his Proclamation, 'our Nation would be materially strengthened and our democracy enriched if all citizens capable of performing any kind of useful labor were afforded opportunities for suitable employment,' we believe this problem should have the attention of thinking citizens throughout the year."

The kick-off luncheon today at 12:30 p. m. at the Mayflower Hotel will feature Harold Russell, the handless veteran and star of "The Best Years of Our Lives," and Harry P. Fishel of Apollo, Pa., a hip amputee for the past 34 years.

Paul A. Strachan, president of the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped and originator of "NEPHW," also is among speakers scheduled at the luncheon.

Warren Farm Policy Draws Wallace Fire

Bakersfield, Calif., Oct. 3 (AP).—Henry Wallace carried his presidential campaign into the fertile Central Valley of California tonight with a blast against large-acreage corporation farming and a charge that Gov. Earl Warren "is playing both side of this question."

Wallace, in a speech at the Sam Lynn ball park, said of Warren, the Republican candidate for Vice President:

"He came out bravely for the family-sized farm, and then added that he was afraid it wouldn't work in the Central Valley."

Wallace, running on the Progressive Party ticket, said the corporation farm interests, if they can, will kill the present 160-acre limitation on farms receiving irrigation benefits. Wallace said "poverty stalks this valley of plenty."

He declared that the California Governor, "in his cozy little rear platform chats along the campaign trail," has been boasting that California's way of life is the envy and the model of the world."

All Dewey's, Aide Claims

New York and even a World Series game are under consideration.

The only thing really definite about his plans is that he won't try to compete with the World Series for headlines by starting out immediately on another campaign tour.

Still tentatively scheduled is a conference with John Foster Dulles, U. N. delegate and Dewey's chief foreign policy adviser, in Albany on Tuesday, for which Dulles tonight was flying back from Paris. It was indicated that no statement by either will follow the conference.

The last week of this trip, climaxed by Governor Dewey's Salt Lake City foreign affairs speech, makes it increasingly evident that Dewey has grabbed the foreign policy ball and is trying to hold onto it.

Two other general conclusions tonight appeared obvious:

1. The unstinting assistance Dewey has given on his trip to every Republican candidate, whether running for Governor, the Senate or the House, has left a train of personal and party political obligations to the Republican nominee. If elected in November, that means he will have a powerful personal following within his own party in Congress, and the nucleus of an equally potent Nation-wide machine.

2. The confidence of Dewey managers in an easy November victory by no means extends to the Senate. Enough weak spots in the already badly dented Senate armor were turned up on this trip to keep the GOP worried about their slim Senate margin. They are pinning their hopes mainly on a Dewey sweep, wide enough and deep enough to save the shakiest of their Senate nominees.

The inevitable train poll of traveling reporters, this time by Lucian Warren of the Buffalo Courier-Express, was completed before the Dewey special reached Albany. Reporters traveling with a candidate unanimously believed he would be elected.

Forty-seven reporters were polled and all of them picked Dewey to win. On another question, whose election do you consider to be in the best interest of the country?" They divided this way: Dewey, 42; Truman 2; Norman Thomas, 1, and undecided, 2.

Of those polled, 29 favored Franklin Roosevelt in 1944, 17 favored Dewey then and one supported Thomas.

Virginia's Senatorial Fight Marks Renewal Of Contest Between Robertson and Woods

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

(Second of Two Articles)

Virginia's senatorial race this year marks the renewal of the political duel between Senator A. Willis Robertson, Democrat, and Robert H. Woods of Pearisburg, his Republican foe.

They ran against each other in 1946 for the seat vacated by the death of Senator Carter Glass and filled temporarily by the interim appointment of former Congressman Thomas G. Burch.

Robertson, who comes from Lexington, won that contest by about 2½ to 1. The vote was: Robertson, 169,680; Woods, 72,253.

Robertson has declared his support of the Truman ticket, coupled with his opposition to the Federal civil rights program as proposed by the President.

Now 61, Robertson served in the Army in the First World War, and is a veteran, too, of many years in public office. He had been Commonwealth's Attorney and State Senator when in 1932 he started a 14-year career in the House as Representative of the Seventh District. He won renomination this year by 80,345 votes to 33,928 for James P. Hart, jr., of Norfolk.

Woods Is Pleased

The unusually light vote in the Democratic senatorial primary is a bright light in the present campaign life of Republican Senatorial Candidate Woods. He compares Robertson's primary vote this year with his own election vote in 1946. Then he tosses in reference to the belief—now being voiced both by some Republicans and some Dixiecrats—that a good many regular Democrats will be "going fishing" on election day. Added to that is belief in Dewey's growing strength.

And Candidate Woods arrives at this conclusion: "I'm very well pleased with the progress of my campaign. It's true that I do have an uphill fight. My big fight is to convince people I have a real chance to be elected. I still think some folks are going to be surprised."

Woods is 53, has assorted business interests, including insurance, real estate, hardware and transport, and is vice president of the Old Dominion Broadcasting Corp., which operates Station WOOD in Lynchburg. He is a veteran of Army service in the First World War, and has been active in local and State Republican politics for many years.

Aside from the two congressional districts where there is no contest, Democrats are counting most strongly on retaining their holds on the First, Third, Sixth and Eighth.

Seeks Seventeenth Term

In the list, Representative Schuyler Otis Bland, 76-year-old dean of the Virginia delegation in Congress, is seeking his seventeenth term in the House. He was unopposed in 1942, won by nearly 5 to 1 in 1944, and by about 3 to 1 in 1946. His Republican opponent is Stanley G. Adams, 42, member of the town council of Colonial Beach.

Adams captained ferry boats and tugs for many years, then in the recent war served with the Navy as a lieutenant commander. He won the Bronze Star Medal and Silver Star for his service with landing craft in the Pacific. In recent years he has been in the real estate business. He is convinced Dewey will carry the State, and feels his own chances are "shaping up pretty well."

In the Third District, whose center is Richmond, Representative J. Vaughn Gary, Democrat, is seeking his third term in the House, against Richard C. Poage, Republican, making his first bid for public office.

Gary is 56, a veteran of the First World War, and a lawyer who had served in the Virginia House and as president of the Richmond Bar Association and the Virginia Chamber of Commerce before entering Congress. Poage is 37, in the insurance business, and is making an active campaign in an admittedly strong Democratic district. Gary carried it in 1946 by about 3 to 1. Republicans had not entered candidates in the two previous elections.

Democrats Strong in Sixth

Sixth District Democrats have been holding a 2-to-1 lead in the last two congressional races. Clarence G. Burton, 61, Lynchburg manufacturer, is the Democratic candidate, against John Strickler, 45, Roanoke lawyer, Republican. The latter lost in 1944 to Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, by a vote of 30,844 to 13,798.

Burton as president of Lynchburg's city council in a council-manager setup, holds the title of Mayor. He has been president of the Lynchburg Hosiery Mills for many years. Strickler believes that "things look excellent" in his own campaign, and predicts Dewey will carry the district and the State.

In the Eighth District bordering Washington, and including Arlington and Fairfax Counties and Alexandria, a four-way race is on for the House seat of Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), seeking his tenth term.

Smith, 65, has been lawyer, judge, banker, farmer, and Congressmen since 1930. Strongly conservative and anti- New Deal, he holds a powerful place in the House by membership on its Rules Committe that keeps a tight control on what major bills are to reach the floor. He has long been counted a leading member of the dominant State Democratic organization. Democrats elsewhere in the State believe Smith will win as usual, and Republicans concede it would be tough to unseat him.

His Republican opponent is Tyrell Krum, 48, of Vienna, veteran of Navy service as a lieutenant commander in the last war, and as a Marine in the First World War. He has been veterans affairs editor for the Washington Times-Herald for the past four years, and is also a radio commentator.

Also in the race are Frank M. Hurst of Alexandria, running as an independent, and Mrs. Sarah D'Avila, of Arlington, running on the Progressive ticket. Only one other Progressive is making a campaign—Jerry Gilliam, Norfolk, Negro candidate in the Second District.

After Second Term

Here is the lineup in the hotter contests of the Second, Seventh and Ninth Districts.

Second District: Representative Porter Hardy, jr., 45, Democrat of Churchland, is seeking his second term against Republican Candidate Walter E. "Beef" Hoffman, 41, Norfolk lawyer. The nickname comes from the days when Hoffman played guard for the University of Pennsylvania. He is 6 feet 1 inch tall, still makes good on the name by tipping the scales at 230 pounds.

Hardy, businessman and farmer, concedes the Republicans would like to take his district, but "I don't see where they've got any chance." He won by nearly two to one in 1946, expects to campaign on his record and to discuss matters of interest to the district.

Hoffman coached football at William and Mary to work his way through law school there. He has continued close interest in the game by umpiring college contests, some of them in and near Washington. His law partner is Democratic State Senator Edward Breeden. He has been active many years in Community Chest and other civic activities, and in the State and home town bar associations. He plans a busy campaign, including 15 radio talks between now and election.

Seventh District: Representative Burr Powell Harrison, 44, Winchester Democrat, says: "I'm very confident I will be reelected." It would be his second full term. He won the first time in 1946 by 19,535 to 11,813. Before entering Congress he had served as Commonwealth's attorney, judge and State Senator.

Stephen D. Timberlake, 39, Staunton realtor who is running against Harrison, has a bright star in his campaign—the fact that Franklin Roosevelt carried the district by only 1300 votes against Dewey in 1944. Against this, Democrats are quick to note that while the old Seventh District went Republican in the 1928 congressional election, a Democrat would then have been elected if the borders of the district were then the same as now. Democrats say the closest the present Seventh has gone toward the Republican column in a congressional election was the 1944 vote—16,738 Republican, 24,967 Democratic.

Besides real estate, Timberlake has engaged in farming, and the construction business. He is a graduate of the Virginia University law school.

GOP Active in Seventh

National Republican guns are being trained on the Seventh District with two major speeches—Senator Robert A. Taft, (R., Ohio) in Winchester, October 16 and Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) at a Timberlake-for-Congress rally at Lexington, October 25. Winchester is the closest city to Senator Byrd's home, Berryville, and Lexington is the home of Senator Robertson.

Ninth District: This is the one Democrats concede Republicans the best chance of winning, but Republican Candidate T. Eugene Worrell, 29, of Bristol, says, "I think it's anybody's race." The Democratic candidate is Thomas B. Fugate, 49, banker and farmer of Ewing.

Worrell is a lawyer, secretary of the Bristol Chamber of Commerce, and during the war served three and a half years as an FBI agent. He won a national oratorical championship while a student at Wake Forest College in North Carolina, and following graduation in 1940 took summer courses that year at George Washington University here.

Fugate is a veteran in politics, having served in the General Assembly in 1928 to 1930, and as campaign manager four times for Representative J. W. Flannagan, jr., outgoing Ninth District Democrat who did not run for reelection.

Tough Soviet Policy Urged By Thurmond

A "two-fisted" policy in relations between the United States and Soviet Russia was urged yesterday by Governor J. Strom Thurmond of South Carlona, States Rights presidential candidate.

In a transcribed interview heard over radio station WEAM, Governor Thurmond said, "We must keep in mind always that a policy of appeasement was tried by Chamberlain with Hitler and it did not work.

"We can compromise honest differences of opinion but we must not compromise principles, or appease Russia because she threatens war. The only way to deal with Stalin is to use a two-fisted policy. He must be made to realize that we are not too proud to fight."

Views on Race Problem

Governor Thurmond, who was interviewed by Charles Parmer, said the States Rights fight is "not motivated by racial prejudice.

"All thinking Southerners," he said, "know that the solution of the South's economic problems will depend to a large degree on the educational and economic gains by our Negro population. Our progress as a section must be brought about by both races working together and living in harmony side by side as good neighbors.

"We believe in racial integrity and are opposed to racial integration. The former is for the best interest of each race, the latter is good for neither."

"I challenge any one to show where in the history of civilization one race has done more to help another than the white people of the South have done for the Negroes in their midst.

Mrs. Thurmond Appears

"The modern bills, which Truman has advocated and Mr. Dewey and Mr. Wallace have approved, will only delay the progress we are determined to continue to achieve."

Mrs. Thurmond, who appeared with her husband on the transcribed broadcast, said that if she spends "the next four years in the White House, I shall certainly serve grits there." Asked by Parmer how she planned to staff the White House, Mrs. Thurmond replied:

"I have a group of very faithful Negroes in South Carolina. I think they would be an asset to the White House as they certainly have helped us out."

Truman Tour Is Evaluated

By the United Press

President Truman took it easy yesterday after his 16-day Western campaign as party strategists weighed the effects of his "give 'em hell" technique of sharp, direct attacks on the Republican Party and the Eightieth Congress.

Mr. Truman is expected to have numerous strategy huddles with his top advisors before starting out Wednesday on a four-day stumping tour through Eastern Republican strongholds.

Former Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes is scheduled to visit the White House today, and the President reportedly will get an indirect indorsement from the man he "fired" from his Cabinet in 1946. Ickes, now a syndicated columnist, is not expected to come out directly for Mr. Truman but is slated to denounce Dewey in a forthcoming column.

The Democratic high command is waiting with considerable interest the results of public opinion polls tapping voter sentiment following the recent test of the Truman "give-'em-hell" and Dewey "unity" techniques.

One leading poll showed Mr. Truman gaining in public favor at the start of his 16-day barnstorming tour.

He leaves here Wednesday for the next round, with a major speech in Philadelphia slated for that evening. After a swing through Republican strongholds in Pennsylvania he is due to return to Jersey City, N. J., for a second big speech Thursday night.

On Friday the President "invades" Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's home grounds of New York State. A morning appearance is scheduled for Albany, the State capital, followed by stops at Schenectady, Amsterdam, Rome, Oneida, Syracuse, Auburn, Seneca Falls, Geneva, Rochester and Batavia.

His final big speech of the Eastern tour will be in Buffalo next Friday night. He is due to return to the Capital Saturday evening at 8:45 p. m. E. S. T., after several stops en route in New York State and Pennsylvania.

Israel Fights Plan To Give Up Negev

Paris, Oct. 3 (AP).—Israel opposed today any plan for giving up the Negev in return for western Galilee, saying it would make Trans-Jordan 19 times as large as Israel.

The Israeli delegation at the U. N. distributed a memorandum to the 58-nation Political Committee for the General Assembly declaring it will oppose any plan for separating the Negev—the desert area of southern Palestine—from the new state.

The assassinated U. N. mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, recommended that the Negev be given Arab Palestine and the Jews receive western Galilee. The Negev was given to Israel in the U. N. partition plan of last November 29.

Approval of the mediator's report has been expressed by Britain and the United States.

Earlier, an Arab U. N. delegate said six of the seven Arab League states "likey will recognize the new Arab government of Palestine soon."

He said the six states planning to recognize the new government, recently proclaimed in Faza, are Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Yemen, Lebanon and Iraq. Iraq earlier had been expected to go along with King Abdulah of Trans-Jordan, who opposes the new regime.

Upsets Economy

Lack of Coal, Food World Headache

New York, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Two shortages, food and coal, are responsible for most of the discomfort and some of the major troubles in the world, a United Nations report said today.

The shortages of basic food and coal have hurt reconstruction, helped inflation and upset world economy, said the study, prepared by the U. N. Economic Affairs Department.

The survey found that cold homes and skimpy meals have cut down man's strength and, in turn, production has been slowed. Lowered production has resulted in the shortages that have pushed up prices.

Most of the people in Europe and Asia, including both the Soviet Union and China, are eating about 18 per cent fewer calories than before the war, the study found.

Coal production as a whole was about the same in 1947 as in 1937, the study said, but there was less mining in Europe and Asia and more—about one-third more—in the United States.

Coal supplies in Europe were not enough to meet requirements. However, the report added, Europe's acute shortage may be eased this year through increased production there.

Czech Purge Tightening

Prague, Oct. 3—(U.P.).—An intensifying purge of anti-government elements is expected to reach full scale this week with the passage of new laws against their activities.

Parliament is scheduled to pass the laws Wednesday, under the title of an act for "defense of the people's democratic republic."

One provision is expected to authorize the seting up of camps for forced labor.

Actually, forced labor camps are already in operation and some persons not under formal sentence have been sent to them, according to reports in diplomatic quarters.

Latest development of the purge was an announcement Saturday night of the arrest of 13 persons for "anti-state activities," including an attempt to assassinate Premier Antonin Zapotocky. They are scheduled to face a state court Monday.

An incomplete check showed that at least 120 persons have been sentenced in two weeks to long prison terms, and three to death, for various forms of "anti-state activity," ranging from failure to report illegal leaflets to full-scale espionage.

Brief General Strike Ordered By Reds in Rome

Rome, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Communist labor leaders today ordered all Roman workers to strike for 15 minutes at 2 p. m. Monday as a demonstration of sympathy for 14,000 striking municipal workers.

At the same time, a Communist newspaper reported that Italian farm workers would hold protest rallies next week to back up their wage-raise demands.

The token strike scheduled here comes at a time when almost all offices and shops are normally closed for the daily siesta. Its only visible effect is expected to be a 15-minute suspension of bus service.

The municipal workers have been out for 10 days, and there is no prospect of a quck settlement. Most city offices have managed to stay open with skeleton staffs of department heads.

Italy Raps Officers For Visiting Umberto

Rome, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—The government announced in the Senate last night that two Italian naval officers have been severely disciplined for visiting former King Umberto recently in Lisbon, Portugal.

Undersecretary for Defense Udo Rodino said the two men had not solicited the meeting with Umberto but they "have been punished with grave disciplinary sanctions for not having known how to evaluate their acts as officers of the Italian republic."

$500,000 Damage Caused in Maine Fire

Old Orchard Beach, Me., Oct. 3 (AP).—A spectacular blaze in the amusement center of this ocean resort today swept a concession bolck and a roller coaster and damaged the Palace ball room, one of New England's largest.

Unofficial estimates put the loss at half a million dollars.

Communist Led

Strike Perils French Coal Production

Douai, France, Oct. 3 (AP).—It appeared tonight that French coal production will be halted completely Monday by a Communist-inspired general mine strike. The duration of the walkout still was uncertain.

The stoppage was ordered by the Communist-led National Federation of Miners. Today at nearby Lens the chief non-Communist union voted to join the strike. Some 335,000 miners will be affected by the walkout.

Communists have announced the strike will be of "unlimited duration," but one union has agreed to stay out only two days.

The strike is the latest and most important in a series of work stoppages protesting the high cost of living, the unfavorable relation between French prices and wages, and the government's plan to discharge about 8 per cent of the employes in the nationalized coal industry.

Government authorities have seized trucks belonging to the mines and put them under guard. Gasoline stocks also are being guarded.

12 Drown in Mexico

Mexico City, Oct. 3 (AP).—Police reported today 12 persons were drowned yesterday when a motor launch sank at La Conception Dam, 5 miles from Tepotzotlan.

which could have serious results."

One reason for the disproportion between complaints against American and British fliers is that the British Gatow Airfield is only 3 miles from two Soviet fields.

The British-licensed newspaper Telegraf reported the Russians are moving police reinforcements into their occupation zone to suppress unrest and sabotage.

A Telegraf dispatch from Jena, in Thuringia in the Russian zone, said several members of the German Workers' Council had been arrested at the famous Zeiss optical works for criticizing the Soviet food supply organization.

During the Soviet blockade of Berlin, there have been persistent reports that the Russians were having great difficulty in supplying their own zone, and that unrest is spreading among Germans.

Within the last few days, the Russians have been making large scale arrests along the western edge of their zone, adjoining the British and American zones.

Russia Asks Big Four Council Meeting

aggressive policy of German imperialism."

"War Economic Potential"

"Latterly, particularly in connection with the realization of the Marshall Plan, a real danger has been created of a war economic potential being reestablished in Western Germany, a situation that violated the Potsdam agreement among the powers and contradicts the interests of all peace-loving countries."

Moscow arrested that the decision by the Western powers to set up a government for Western Germany "is leading to consummation of political and economic dismemberment of Germany with all its dangerous consequences."

The reply said had there been no separate currency reform "creating danger of the disorganization of the entire economic life in the Soviet zone and in Berlin, there would also have been no need for transport restrictions, which represent a defensive protective measure of the Soviet government against the offensive actions of the three (Western) governments.

"Governments of the three powers continue to speak of their rights in relation to the administration of Berlin, based on the well-known agreements of the four powers regarding joint administration of Germany and Berlin. But the right of the four governments to administer Berlin, which is situated in the center of the Soviet zone of occupation, only has meaning if Germany is recognized as being a single state and Berlin as its capital. Insofar, however, as the three governments have separated western Germany from eastern Germany and are establishing a separate state there, the right to administer Berlin by those governments loses its meaning.

"By their separate actions in the western zones of Germany and in the three sectors of Berlin, the three powers have destroyed the system of quadripartite administration of both Germany and Berlin and thereby have undermined the legal basis which insured their right to participation in the administration of Berlin."

Reds to Challenge U. N. Authority

Paris, Oct 3 (U.P.).—Russia will open a fight on the blockade of Berlin in the United Nations Security Council Monday by challenging the right of the U. N. to consider any questions concerning Germany, Allied diplomatic quarters reported tonight.

The Council meets at 3 p. m. Monday (9 a. m. EST) to take up the complaint of the United States, Britain and France that Russia is guilty of a threat to peace in maintaining her blockade. The U. N. will face the greatest test in its three-year history.

Allied diplomatic information is that Russian Chief Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky will make the first move with a blanket challenge of U. N. authority on the ground that Germany is still under Allied occupation and that the Big Four powers alone are competent to handle any German question.

It is forecast with certainty that Vishinsky will be overruled.

Then it remains to be seen whether he will walk out of the meeting or remain to fight, knowing that in the end Russia may use her veto power to prevent any action against her.

In a last-minute change of mind the American delegation decided that Warren R. Austin will represent the United States at Monday's meeting.

Previously it had been planned that Philip Jessup should act instead of Austin, who is the regular chief delegate to the U. N.

Jessup, however, will handle the American case in the Council most of the time, while Austin and Secretary of State George C. Marshall remain ready to step in if an emergency arises.

The verbal fight is expected to open a few minutes after the Council is called to order.

The first argument will be whether the Berlin case is a matter of procedure in the opening stage. If Russia protests that it is not she will be overruled. Russia can walk out if she likes when the procedural part over, the Council starts to argue the substance of the Allied complaint.

The U. N. Charter specifies that it does not cover any arrangements made by the victors in World War II over the defeated Axis states.

The Western Allies will argue however, that the Council has power to act because the real question concerns not Berlin or Germany but a threat to peace by one country against others.

At this stage the Council has to vote whether it has jurisdiction or not. A simple majority vote, which is assured, is all that is needed and on this vote Russia will not have the veto right because it is a matter of procedure.

Finally, however, there will be the question whether Russia vetoes action or even decides whether to quit the whole U. N.

The second big fight of the U. N. Assembly session will continue Monday in the Political Committee. That is the question of control of atomic energy. But in order to leave delegates free, the Political Committee will meet only in the morning, while the Council meets in the afternoon.

U. S. Delegates Urged To Offer Specific Plans

New York, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—The executive committee of the American Association for the United Nations today warned the U. S. delegation to the U. N. not to content itself with criticizing Russia but to be ready with specific proposals.

The committee said, "While it is necessary that Soviet policy in Berlin be condemned before the United Nations, such a challenge is insufficient unless accompanied by proposals which . . . might lift the debate with Russia to another plane."

Committee members include former Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles; Clark M. Eichelberger, State Department consultant at the San Francisco Conference of 1945, and James T. Shotwell, professor or history emeritus at Columbia University.

The committee said the delegation should make it clear that it is not encouraging formation of blocs and alliances, but that it is "devoted to the principles of collective security."

China's Fate Seen Vital to Democracy

By The Associated Press

China was described by a congressional committee yesterday as "the decisive area" in a world tug-of-war between Communist Russia and the democratic West.

The committee urged greater financial aid to China. It said: "The United States is the sole entity in the world today so endowed with political power that it could conceivably extend to China an effective guaranty of territorial and political integrity." It also called for outright military assistance to the Chinese national government, mainly rifles and other "simple and rudimentary" equipment.

The group, a House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee headed by Representative Bolton (R., Ohio), said in a formal report:

"(China) is free in the sense that it is not wholly and directly a colony of any power. It is typical, and its choice (in world politics) will have an impact and set an example of overpowering weight. It is accessible to both sides.

"Its internal balance is easily overturned by any substantial intervention. Its fate will settle the fate of that half of humanity who live in the East."

The report was one of a series the subcommittee has made on communism in various parts of the world. Other members of the group are Representatives Merrow (R., N. H.), Jackson (R., Calif.), Maloney (R., Pa.), Courtney (D., Tenn.), and Morgan (D., Pa.).

Russian Intervention Cited

Russian intervention in China became possible when Russia entered the war against Japan in 1945, the report said. The Chinese national government was prevented by poor transportation facilities and Communist interference from disarming Japanese troops, and Japanese arms were taken over by the Chinese Communists.

"By the time the United States abandoned its efforts to secure a truce in China, and misguidedly to persuade the national government to accept a coalition with the Communists, the Communists were ready to renew the civil war with many times their former resources," the report said.

Efforts of the United States to arrange a coalition were "carried to extreme lengths beyond any historical parallel," the committee added.

The report called the Communist Party in China one of the strongest in the world, numbering about two million members. It has an effective army, and governs an area with as great a population as the United States, the report said.

Survival of China as a democratic nation is vital to the safety of all democratic nations, the committee said.

To achieve any stability in China, there must be "an immediate shot in the arm" from the United States in the form of some manufactured goods and a few raw materials, the committee said. It recommended continued aid to China despite other commitments elsewhere in the world.

2d Concert Of Mozart Series Given

By Richard Keith

Washington music lovers again jammed the east garden of the National Gallery last night to hear the second concert of the current Mozart series. The Gallery Orchestra, under Richard Bales, assisted by the young pianist, Peter Schaefer, presented three early works and one mature one.

To Mozart enthusiasts, the Concerto in B flat for piano was the most interesting. Although listed on the program as Concerto No. 6, it is actually only his second original work in this form. As such, it forms an interesting contrast to the later truly great concerti. Mr. Bales and Mr. Schaefer merit our thanks for giving us a hearing of this almost never performed composition.

Cadenzas Excellent

Excellent cadenzas, modest and well within the Mozart style were provided by the performer. Perhaps due to nervousness or inexperience in playing with orchestra on the part of Mr. Schaefer, the performance suffered from erratic rhythm, particularly in the second movement, and from a general lack of virility. His tone, however, was well controlled and expressive.

The Paris Symphony and the Divertimento in F are good examples of Mozart's galant style of writing. The symphony, written originally for the most famous orchestra in Europe, that of the Concerts Spirituels of Paris, fared very well last night under Mr. Bales.

The program closed with the great Symphony in E flat, the first of the last three symphonies Mozart wrote. The orchestra's playing was neat and precise especially in the final movements but it would be a great improvement if a definite tendency to play constantly at the same dynamic level could be overcome.

Phillips Recitals Open

Rohini Coomara, cellist, and Lionel Nowak, pianist, opened the current season of recitals at the Phillips Gallery yesterday afternoon with a program which differed considerably from the usual collection of show pieces commonly chosen by ambitious performers. Mr. Nowak gave intimate and sensitive readings of the six Moments Musicaux of Schubert.

A clever but insignificant sonatina for piano by Gail Kubik and a set of brief, inane pieces by Ben Weber followed. Debussy's Cello and Piano Sonata closed the program. Miss Coomara's playing, although occasionally harsh in loud passages and somewhat tentative in soft ones, was perfectly in tune and well suited to the room in which she performed.

Amvet Auxiliaries To Get Charters Tuesday Night

Charters will be presented to two new AMVETS auxiliaries in ceremonies at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the board room of the District Building, it was announced yesterday.

The auxiliaries, No. 3 and No. 13, will receive charters from Mrs. Adeline B. Fogg, national president of AMVETS auxiliaries, of Benton Harbor, Mich.

Mrs. Fogg is scheduled to arrive here earlier Tuesday to confer on policy matters with Hal Keats, new national AMVETS commander. Officers of the Council of Veterans Auxiliaries will honor her at a dinner at 6 p. m. Tuesday at the Occidental Hotel.

Softer T-H Law Seen by Hartley After Debate

New York, Oct. 3 (AP).—The Taft-Hartley law "may be softened up at some points" next year, Representative Fred A. Hartley (R., N. J.), coauthor of the act, said today.

Hartley debated the law today with Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin over the Columbia Broadcasting System's "People's Platform" program. He later told newsmen the law's requirement of union membership elections on "union shop" questions "may be knocked out," but declined to name other possible changes in the controversial law.

Tobin assailed the law as "unjust, slanted heavily in favor of management." He said it would result in "lowering the living standards of the workers of this country."

Navy's Famed Turtle Fails on Nonstop Flight

Antofagasta, Chile, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—The United States Navy's famed patrol bomber Truculent Turtle made an unscheduled 76-minute stop in Antofagasta, 701 miles short of Santiago, Chile, goal of an attempted nonstop flight from Patuxent, Md.

The bomber landed at Cerro Moreno Airport at 11:48 a. m. (10:48 a. m., EST) to make emergency repairs to its radio equipment. It left for Santiago at 2:04 p. m and arrived in the Chilean capital at 2:55 p. m.

Officials here said that the big plane apparently had been having trouble with its radio equipment for some time, because land stations had received no signals from it for several hours.

The Truculent Turtle, which holds the world's long-distance flight record of 11,236 miles, was not trying for a record on its attempted 6192-mile hop from Patuxent to Santiago.

Piloted by Lieut. Comdr. W. Y. Morton, the plane is carrying Rear Admiral O. B. Addison on the first leg of a scheduled 30-day tour of United States naval missions in South America.

Relief Rushed To Chinhsien

Peiping, Oct. 3 (AP).—The pro-government press said today a relief force was pushing south toward Communist-ringed Chinhsien, key to government holdings in Manchuria.

There was no way of telling whether this force might be mythical, as has often proved the case. It was said to have taken Tahushan, 60 miles northwest of Chinhsien.

Nanking reports said the government was tightening its defenses of the lower Yangtze north of Shanghai and Nanking and was seting up a new river and lake defense headquarters.

Press Censorship Report Is Denied

Nanking, Oct. 3 (AP).—A government threat to invoke press censorship was reported from Shanghai today, but Peng Chao-hsien, minister of interior, denied that any new orders had been issued.

Peng conceded that local authorities have power to "take expedient measures to check Communist propaganda in accordance with the general mobilization act" but declared, "there is no censorship of news in China, either at home or abroad."

Beer Salesman 'Stops Music' For $30,000

New York, Oct. 3 (AP).—A Bluffton, Ind., beer salesman tonight won $30,000 in prizes for identifying a mystery melody on the American Broadcasting Co. "Stop the Music" program.

Kenneth Crosbie named the song over the telephone as "Turkeys in the Treetop," an 1880's-vintage background piece for vaudeville and minstrel shows.

The mystery melody was published in 1890 by C. A. White, ABC said, although it was introduced earlier in White's opera, "Alvin Gray."

Allen Bonds Listeners

New York, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Radio Comedian Fred Allen told his listeners tonight he had bonded them against any loss of prizes they might suffer because they were listening to his show instead of one of the many "give-away" programs.

On his program (NBC) Allen said the National Surety Corp. of New York had agreed to assure the payment of up to $5000 to anyone who was listening to the Allen program when called up by a "give-away" program and thus lost a cash or merchandise reward.

"Today in radio," Allen said, "there are so many programs giving away things people have stopped tuning in comedians. They're afraid while they are listening some give-away show will call them on the telephone and they will lose a trip to Bermuda with all expenses paid or the giant jackpot."

tion passenger-cargo craft for the American President Lines' round-the-world route.

For these five ships, the Government will pay approximately a 45 per cent subsidy, plus additional funds for special national defense features. The main subsidy is estimated as the difference the ship operator must pay for ordering the craft from an American shipyard rather than a foreign builder. Higher United States wages and other building costs, plus stricter safety and sanitation standards required by the Federal Government, boost the price of our ships.

Also on order or already under construction in American yards are 60-odd tankers being built by United States oil companies. No subsidy is involved in these craft. Other tanker orders are pending.

These contracts have given United States shipyards a new lease on life after long months of doldroms. But the picture still is far from good. Many yards—particularly on the West Coast—largely are empty except for repair work. And the tanker contracts—being reorders—maintains work crews but not design forces. Their "know-how" is dissipating.

Meanwhile, shipbuilders note, European yards are filled to capacity with new craft.

Government officials hope to see contracts placed within the next year for nine additional passenger or passenger-cargo vessels, 20 big, high-speed tankers, and two new-type trailer-carriers.

All would be built for private order. Differential subsidies would be paid on the passenger types, while the tankers would be subsidized for higher speed desired by the Navy.

The trailer ships would be 25-knot craft designed to carry both passengers and laden road-trailers overnight from San Francisco to Los Angeles. They would be adaptable as Army tank carriers in time of war. One of the passenger vessels in prospect is a superliner for the United States Lines North Atlantic trade.

But this modest modernization of the American merchant marine is dependent upon many factors. Unlike Navy shipbuilding, the principal hurdle is not Bureau of the Budget and congressional approval.

Shipping company officials, bankers and the American investing public first must be convinced that the future of the United States Merchant Marine is reasonably bright, that steel will be available and that terms are favorable. They require more convincing.

(Tomorrow: Do we need a first-rate merchant fleet?)

September Weather Just Average

Solar Halo on 27th And 3 Thunderstorms Just Normal Events

By John London
Post Reporter

Weather-wise, the month of September just past, was as undistinguished as the common man. And, like the common man, it did its level best to keep up with its peers, the normal Septembers of yesteryears.

It succeeded: September, '48, was inconspicuously average, only a mite warmer, sunnier and drier than the typical, respectable ninth month during the last half-century.

True, September saw a solar halo, on the 27th, between 4 and 4:30 p. m., thanks to light rays piercing ice-crystal clouds. Admitted, there were three thundershowers during the month. But all these were common enough occurrences—nothing to make a sensible, sound September seem unconventional.

Temperatures averaged a comfortable 69.4, close enough to the typical score over the years, 68.1. Hottest days of the month were the 9th, 13th and 20th, when the mercury bobbed up to a not-unusual 90; coolest moments were on the 26th and 27th, when thermometers and citizens shivered at 49.

Average High Was 78.8

All of which was quite reasonable, when you consider that the month's average high was 78.8, compared to a typical September's 77.5; average low was 60, with normal low at 58.7.

The sun smiled down some time every day, except for the 10th and the 21st, tallying 255 hours and 12 minutes of sunshine out of a possible 373:18, or 68 per cent. Normal: 61 per cent.

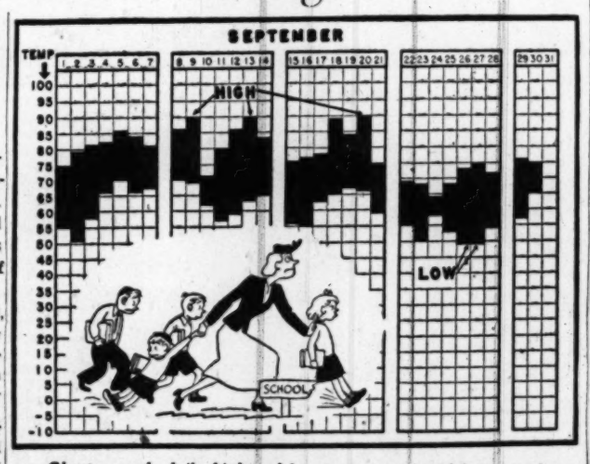

Chart records daily high and low temperatures of last month

Rain wetted the District on seven days, adding up to 3.19 inches, all of five-hundredths per cent less than might be expected during any decent September. Rain pattered down on the 6th, 7th, 9th, 10th, 19th, 21st, 24th, 29th, and 30th.

Three thundershowers during the month turned out to be hardly worthy of their appellation. On the 8th it just grumbled but failed to rain; on the 19th, it grumbled and dampened only a bit. The 9th, though, did come through with winds up to 22 miles an hour and some honest rain, as well as appropriate sound effects.

Prevailing winds were southwesterly, just off the southerly beam which is traditional with September. Average daily velocity: 6.8 miles an hour; top speed: 25 miles an hour, pretty tame blowing.

Modest September, '48, also saw the snuffing out of the atchoo season. Grains of ragweed pollen thinned out to less than a negligible 25 per cubic yard of air, the last two weeks.

Worst time for hay fever victims during the season was during the hot spell, August 25-31, sympathetically reports Dr. Eloise Kailin, meticulous pollen-counter for the District Medical Society.

Peak count reached 262 on August 29. Compared to 1947's peak, 192, on September 2, and 1946's high, 145, on September 3, '48's record was definitely something to sneeze at, Dr. Kailin advised.

Sulfa Drug Proves 'Shock Colitis' Aid

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The sulfa-type drug which last year fought cholera in Egypt is now being pitted against ulcerative colitis with marked success, Columbia University disclosed yesterday.

One of mankind's most puzzling diseases, ulcerative colitis is a chronic infection of the large intestine, not uncommon among emotionally shocked single persons 20 to 40 years old. It is often fatal.

The new drug, phthalyl sulfacetimide, has been administered to 70 patients suffering the disease, the university said. Results of the first 28 cases were reported out yesterday.

27 of 28 Improved

The drug showed "good" results in 18 of the 28 patients treated at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center; in nine others, a "fair" response was shown, and in only one case was no improvement noted.

Drs. Harry Seneca and Edward Henderson, codiscoverers of the drug, said it has marked bactericidal action comparable to the well-known sulfa drugs, sulfathiazole and sulfadiazine. Dr. Seneca is research associate at Columbia's College of Physicians and Surgeons, and Dr. Henderson is director of clinical research at Schering Corp., drug laboratories, Bloomfield and Union, N. J.

Ulcerative colitis is manifested by extreme weakness, headaches, diarrhea and cramps. As the condition progresses, its victim has 40 to 60 bowel movements daily, is dehydrated and debilitated.

Emotional Shock Factor

Predominant factor in a heavy percentage of cases of ulcerative colitis, medical textbooks point out, is strong emotional shock experienced before onset of symptomatic pains. Often such shocks involve loss of a loved one, or frustration in love.

The disease is not to be confused with its near-relative, mucous colitis, the "big businessman ailment," which is less severe. Since most sufferers of mucous colitis are business executives with immediate history of worry over responsibilities, it too has been generally considered as due to mental stress.

The physicians reported that the new drug, orally administered, could be given in large amounts without harmful side effects. It is not absorbed into the blood while penetrating all layers of the intestinal wall with its bacteria-killing action, they explained.

Benign Results Noted

Some of the patients in the group of 28 were under observation for nearly a year, they reported. In the 18 showing "good" response, stools became well-formed, diarrhea stopped, blood and mucous disappeared, abdominal pain and distention were eliminated, appetite returned, anemia was corrected and patients gained weight. They have since returned to work.

All had previous routine treatment for ulcerative colitis such as bismuth products, diet control, colonic irrigations, amino acids and other sulfonamides without beneficial results, the physicians reported.

The work at Columbia has been carried on with the assistance of a grant from the Schering Corp., developers of the drug.

Official Construction $11 Million in Fiscal'47

During the fiscal year ending June 30, the District Department of Construction supervised execution of contracts for erection and additions to District government buildings totaling $11,611,610, the department's annual report showed yesterday.

In addition, the repair shop of the division directd $770,300 worth of repairs to government buildings the report said.

Rare Disease Gives Baby 1 Chance in 10

Michael Linkins is just 21 months old but he has only one chance in 10 to live much longer, doctors say.

Until last fall, he was a healthy baby who noisily cried and played through the day. Now he sits and stares out the window while his tricycle stands neglected in the corner.

Michael has a rare kidney disease. His mother, Mrs. Joseph Linkins, of 1044 Barnaby ter. se., is clinging to that one chance in 10 that he'll live. The doctor has told her, however, that unless Michael can have his tonsils and adenoids removed soon he cannot live through another winter. But Michael has a continuous cold which makes such operations difficult.

Body Began to Swell

Michael's illness began last November when his entire body began ot swell. In May doctors had diagnosed his illness as a rare and usually fatal kidney disease.

After the diagnosis he spent two weeks at Children's Hospital where he was given blood transfusions and other treatments. Last month he was back at the hospital again for more treatment. He's on a special diet now but it is slight aid in his fight.

Mrs. Linkins has desperately appealed to one doctor after another. The answers were the same. At Johns Hopkins Hospital she was told there was no cure.

Her hope now, an outside chance, is in a meeting this November, where Michael's doctor and other specialists will discuss possible measures that might save his life.

In the same apartment building with Michael Linkie, another child, 5-year-old Curry C. (Skippy) Obenshain, jr., is also battling for life against lymphatic leukemia.

He became ill last March. Doctors say they know no cure for his rare disease and that he will not live another year.

Skippy's parents, Elizabeth Brown and Staff Sergt. Curry C. Obenshain, attached to the Naval Air Reserve Training Unit at Anacostia, said last night that since Skippy's story was told in yesterday's papers that their phone has rung constantly with people who have offered blood, books and other help.

More Pickers Sought For Huge Cotton Crop

The United States Employment Service has taken steps to recruit migrant farm workers to ease a threatened "acute shortage" of hands to harvest the largest cotton crop in 11 years.

The Federal agency has asked State employment services in Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and other States to direct migrant farm workers to Mississippi, Missouri, Arkansas, New Mexico, Arizona and other areas where the local labor supply appears inadequate.

Moscow Yields An Inch

Soviet Russia's concession as to the timing of atomic energy controls has a closer relation to the cold war than to the abolition of atomic weapons. The Soviet offer probably does not take the world any closer to the adoption of effective atomic control machinery. But it is a Moscow concession. Granted that it has been made for propaganda purposes, it nevertheless suggests that the Kremlin is feeling the pressure of world opinion. Mr. Vishinsky's offer in Paris coincides, moreover, with Marshal Sokolovsky's expression of willingness to reopen negotiations on the Berlin question "on the basis of the agreement reached at Moscow on August 30." In these two maneuvers we have positive indications that the American-British-French appeal to the Security Council has been effective in putting the Russians on the defensive before world opinion.

Until now the Russians had insisted that agreement on prohibition of atomic weapons would have to be reached before they would seriously negotiate on the establishment of international controls. That answer was given early this year when the Chinese suggested two conventions simultaneously abolishing the atom bomb and setting up control machinery. Now Mr. Vishinsky himself has offered a resolution asking the General Assembly to recommend to the Security Council and the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission that a draft convention be prepared with the object of setting up controls and prohibiting atomic weapons at the same time.

Lest any unwarranted hope arise from this fact, it should be noted at once that the Kremlin is as far away as ever from agreeing to the only kind of atomic controls that would justify the United States in relinquishing its monopoly over atomic energy to an international body. Mr. Vishinsky talked about a "strict and effective international control organ," but every effort to create such an agency in fact has met with a flatly negative response from the Soviet. It is apparent from the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister's remarks to the Political Security Committee that Moscow is still thinking of enforcement of international atomic regulations by the Security Council. That, of course, would make it possible for Russia to veto any action that the control authority might initiate. The suicidal nature of such an arrangement from the viewpoint of the democratic powers needs no emphasis. Compared to this obstacle to agreement, the concession that Moscow has made is minor indeed.

The only peg for optimism on this point, then, is the fact that the Russians are now seeking to keep negotiations open. No agreement will be in sight unless the Soviet is willing to join in genuine internationalization of ownership and management of all atomic energy plants and resources. And in the present state of world tension the United States will make certain that the international controls are operating successfully before destroying its atom bombs. The latest Russian maneuver makes it desirable to reemphasize the necessity for this stand even though it does not change the nature of the problem.

GI Mortgages

Few veterans attempting to build or buy a home with Government assistance need to be told that GI loans for this purpose have virtually dried up. Mortgage companies simply are not willing to lend money at the 4 per cent maximum interest rate set by the GI Bill of Rights when they can get 4½ per cent or more elsewhere. The result is a situation in which the housing assistance provisions of the GI bill are virtually thwarted. It does the veteran little good to know that the Government will guarantee a portion of this loan at 4 per cent if he can find no one willing to make such loans.

Congress recognized the roadblock by authorizing during the special session an increase to 4½ per cent interest at the discretion of the Veterans' Administration, provided that the Secretary of the Treasury also gives his consent. Despite a flood of rumors that the Government has been about to approve the higher rate, the Veterans' Administration has been sitting tight. This has brought a charge from the Mortgage Bankers Association, meeting in New York, that the change has become "a political matter" because the VA has sought the views of the various national veterans' organizations.

The charge of "politics" seems to us farfetched. It has been the custom of the Veterans' Administration to ask the opinions of veterans' organizations on many matters of policy. The law requires the Veterans' Administrator to ascertain whether the loan market actually demands an increase in interest rates before going ahead. On the other hand, there is some reason to believe that a number of the lenders themselves have withheld loans to force the Veterans' Administration's hand.

The fact remains, however, that many mortgage agencies are loaded down with 4 per cent loans, and unless something is done the veteran will find it almost impossible to acquire housing. Consequently, we believe it would be in the interest of the veteran for the Government to approve the increase in rates. Even at 4½ per cent, a GI loan would still be a bargain for the veteran because it would afford him protection against overcharges and other guarantees that he could not otherwise obtain even at higher rates.

De Gaulle's Threat

In his press conference in Paris the other day General de Gaulle hinted for the first time at the possibility of a forcible seizure of power. The present parliamentary government, he asserted, has been unable to cope with the political and military crisis confronting it. It has lost the confidence of the people and is no longer representative of them. But under the constitution a new general election is not mandatory until 1951, and in view of the great and imminent danger to the independence of France that is three years too long to wait. Therefore, M. de Gaulle wants the Assembly to dissolve itself now and to call for an immediate general election that will permit him to return to power by constitutional means.

The rest of the interview, in which he attacked the defense plans of the anti-Communist powers, made clear the reasoning by which General de Gaulle seeks to justify his peremptory demand. In case of war between Russia and her satellites on the one side and the United States, Great Britain and the West European nations on the other, the agreed strategy is said to contemplate a retreat and evacuation of armed forces from the continent to Britain on the ground that these cannot be reenforced in sufficient strength to contain the advance of the Red army. Thus Britain would become, what it was in the war against the Axis, the advance base from which the counterassault would be launched.

It goes without saying that such a prospect is not contemplated with great cheerfulness by the French people or by the people of Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and western Germany, who would thus be left exposed to the rigors and terrors of Russian occupation and of native Communist regimes. Their fears that they will be abandoned and defenseless appear to them to have been confirmed by the indications that Viscount Montgomery is to be made head of the new defense organization. The plan is said to have been bitterly opposed at the recent conference in Brussels by the French military leaders, whose primary concern is naturally the defense of France. The rumors of their bitter dissatisfaction with the proposed strategy are strengthened by the report that General Juin has refused the command of the West European land forces and by the reluctance of the cabinet to ratify the Brussels agreements, which had been tentatively accepted by M. Ramadier, the French Minister of Defense.

Thus the indications are that General de Gaulle's opposition to the plan and to the appointment of a Briton as chief of the defense system is shared by both the army and the people and his hand has thereby been enormously strengthened. Whether he is yet strong enough to oblige the Assembly to yield to his demand for an immediate election we must wait to discover. It is difficult at this point to see how he could overcome the certain and bitter opposition of the Communists and Socialists to any such proposal.

But it is also difficult to see what power the Assembly could oppose to a forcible coup, should he decide that the crisis is grave enough to attempt it. The logical time for such a seizure of power would be after the cantonal elections next month, in which M. de Gaulle seems likely to equal or even to exceed his triumph last year in the municipal elections. This might be interpreted as a mandate from the people. In August the Assembly, at the insistence of the Socialists, voted an indefinite postponement of the cantonal elections, but recently this action was reversed.

Assuming then that by one means or another General de Gaulle returns to power, which is evidently something that most Frenchmen now take for granted, there remains the question what other feasible plan of defense he may have to propose as a substitute for the one said to have been adopted at Brussels. On this point he was extremely vague, saying that no defense at all will be possible unless France has a "real government." Thus it becomes necessary to decide whether he is seeking immediate power because of the danger of war or whether he is exploiting that danger as a means of gaining power.

Out-Patient Service

With budgetary requests far in excess of anticipated revenue, in spite of the District Commissioners' economy order, they will be strongly tempted to make further use of the pruning knife. It will be especially difficult in these circumstances to determine what items should be left in and what should be excluded. One test can always be safely applied, however, and that is whether the proposed cut will effect any real economy. The Health Department is trying, for example, to revive out-patient service to the ambulant sick. For want of such service it is now necessary to take into Gallinger Hospital patients who could be adequately cared for in their homes. Lack of follow-up care for patients discharged from the hospital also frequently results in their rehospitalization at a cost of $9 a day. In addition to being inhumane, this is the reverse of economy. The District now provides clinical service for many patients at nine different private hospitals in the city at a cost of $2 a visit. It would be impossible to accommodate all these patients at Gallinger and prohibitively expensive. By the same token the health of the people can be better cared for with less expense to taxpayers by permitting out-patient service for those who do not need hospital care but are unable to provide the more limited care that they do require.

Newspaper Court

Publisher Arthur Hays Sulzberger of the New York Times recently suggested a thought-provoking remedy for some of the graver excesses and deficiencies of the American press. In a speech to the New York State Publishers Association, Mr. Sulzberger noted that in the medical and legal professions disciplinary bodies have been established to maintain certain standards of practice. The time has come, he observed, for something similar in journalism. While he supports vigorously the principle of private ownership of the press, he recognizes that "the news lies, in a sense, in the public domain and we are the trustees of a great national interest." Control, therefore, must come from within. "On the structure of press freedom," he asserted, "must be imposed the responsibility of the press . . . The community has the right—and indeed the duty—to insist on such responsibility."

The idea of some body to review press performance has long been attractive to critics and reformers. The great argument among them is who should do it. The Government is out of the question, because the end result would be a governmentally controlled press, and a principal duty of the press is to review the Government. The Hutchins Commission on Freedom of the Press suggested an intermediate ground with an independent agency, outside the realm of both press and Government, to report annually on the performance of the press. But the men who served on the Hutchins commission showed that such a body would be deficient in inside knowledge both of the press and of the complexities of the problem. For example, there are many incredibly naive notions about the gathering and selection of news. The difficulty experienced by most newspapers is not in scratching for news, but in selecting it; they must continually condense, choose and omit, and it is here that newspapers sometimes find themselves accused of distortion.

The Sulzberger proposal would confine responsibility where it belongs initially—to the press itself. Self-police of this sort has potentialities, for if the press can correct its own defects there is much less likelihood of any outside agency attempting to do it. There has been a reluctance on the part of most newspapers to criticize their contemporaries for even the most egregious misstatements and unwholesome practices. Indeed, as the Hutchins commission notes, when the issue of gross violation of a code of ethics did come before one association of newspapermen some years ago, the only remedy—expulsion—was voted down. There are relatively few instances of bad deportment severe enough to infringe on the public interest. But continued silence is hardly a courageous answer to situations with which most newspapermen of conscience are concerned. Nor does it become journalism as a profession, if the pretensions to that classification are justified.

The obstacles to the successful functioning of a newspaper court are formidable. For example, the selection of members would be an extremely touchy point; the wrong persons on such a body could have a devastating influence. Likewise, the court would have to grapple with the age-old dilemma of what constitutes legitimate news and interpretation. News, like truth, is not always altogether objective. The court would immediately invite dissolution if it attempted to question editorial opinions. Nor could it be expected to impose penalties for misconduct, other than proscription and publicity. It could only deal, of course, with the most flagrant cases of impropriety.

Where a court could be of value is in setting objectives of fair presentation of news and proper redress for persons wrongfully stigmatized. Beyond that, it could endeavor to assay the general performance of the press, calling attention to incidents that violate the servicing of news which the public should expect. Any such body would be bound to occasion controversy, but the very knowledge that a vehicle for skilled criticism existed might be a healthy influence in bringing about more introspection among newspapers. A tentative approach is all that could be expected, and even before such an approach were made the idea itself would require study to determine whether anything of the sort were practicable or would do more harm than good. However, the thought is a challenging one which such organizations as the American Newspaper Publishers Association, the American Society of Newspaper Editors and the American Newspaper Guild might well explore in the public as well as their own interest.

WHAT NURSE SAID

Down by the sycamores
She said she found me,
The brook flowing past the tall
Prairie-grass 'round me,
Sky bending with the wind
Blue 'round my head.
She was passing—heard a cry—
And there I was, she said.

Nothing of earth or air—
Rainbow—or thunder—
Compares with a sycamore
To fill me with wonder!

"Snort Submarines"

That Nazi propaganda is still misleading us by instilling falsehoods in the popular mind is evident in the widespread belief that the submarine "snort" (which the United States submarines are now using) is a German innovation. Why are we so overgenerous in giving credit to the Nazis for a development perfected by a Netherlands naval officer, whose mechanism was on the Dutch submarine in 1940 when they fell into Nazi hands?

The Nazi naval engineers merely plagiarized the idea of the Dutch "snort" and adapted it to the German submarines, creating the false impression that the "schnorkel" is an original Nazi invention.

My authority is the Illustrated London News of September 4, 1948, which even publishes a photograph of the Netherlands navy officer, Lieut. Comdr. J. J. Wichers (retired), who perfected the "snort" mechanism for the Dutch submarines. Actually, besides those "snort"-equipped Dutch submarines which fell into Nazi hands, there were several that reached England in 1940 and the British-American engineers could have just as well made adaptations of the Dutch "snort."

As a matter of fact, in the American Civil War, the so-called David submarines were fitted with telescopic funnels which could be raised and lowered several feet, another early adaptation of the Dutch "snort" idea. It may also be pointed out that records show a description of the "snort" idea by an Englishman named Bourne as far back as 1578. So actually, the submarine snort idea can be traced from England to America and then to the Netherlands, before the Nazis stole the mechanism from the Dutch in 1940.

A Soda Is a Soda

"Chocolate soda — all the way!" the sleepy waitress yelled over her right shoulder.

At first I was puzzled at the phrasing of the order but then I was satisfied when I grasped what I thought was the full meaning. "All the way" meant chocolate syrup and chocolate ice cream. In other words, chocolate "all the way."

Though I might be considered a connoisseur, I confess until recently I have limited my soda drinking to the State of New York with the possible exception of some sad sodas sipped in New Jersey. New York's sodas to me have always been delights. No matter how quickly thrown together, they turned out to be triumphs of tastiness.

Recently settling down in the District of Columbia, I returned to my old routine of soda drinking. I went into a local drugstore and asked for a chocolate soda. Adjusting myself comfortably on the stool, I tasted the delicious-looking beverage. It had a peculiar flavor. With the spoon I stirred up the soda, thinking perhaps the syrup was lying inert at the bottom. Then I discovered the cause of that alien flavor—vanilla ice cream!

That's right! There was vanilla ice cream in my chocolate soda! The chocolate soda was no longer a chocolate soda but rather a black and white soda. In New York when you ask for a chocolate soda you get a chocolate soda with chocolate syrup and chocolate ice cream and when you ask for a black and white you get just that.

Don't the people in Washington know the difference between chocolate and vanilla? I went back determined and asked for a chocolate soda with chocolate ice cream!

"Chocolate soda — all the way," the sleepy waitress yelled loudly over her right shoulder.

Feast Of St. Michael

Your usually excellent coverage slipped up a bit, it seems to the writer, in the September 30 description of the ceremonies marking resumption of construction of the National Cathedral. Careful study of the article and picture located no mention of the feast which the services observed, i. e., that of St. Michael and All Angels. The salient point in the selection of that feast of the church would appear to be that St. Michael—like those fallen heroes to whom the Patriots Transept is to be dedicated—was a strong and courageous fighter against the forces of evil.

"American Dream"

The plight of our present day marital relations has been contributed to the existence of the so-called "romantic fallacy" by many writers, but it must be remembered that marriage, the age-old institution, has suffered much during the last score of years, perhaps because of our participation in two world wars. Competent authorities in this field do agree that the romantic fallacy does undermine many marriages, but fundamentally there is much more back of this. The so-called "American dream" has greatly enhanced the illusion of the romantic fallacy.

The American people have and are being propagandized into believing that a fabulous opportunity awaits any individual who has brains, brawn and a little ambition. This contention has done much to intensify family disunity.

Urbanization of an ever growing number of our communities into large metropolitan areas has also had a disastrous effect on marriage by creating large masses of unattached persons.

Perhaps one among our solutions to this complicated and tedious problem is to provide proper education and guidance for both young and old.

Soviet Statistics

The pamphlet of N. A. Voznesenskii, president of the Gosplan (State Planning Commission) of the Soviet Union on War Economy of the USSR During the Patriotic War, which was published in Russian in 250,000 copies, has attracted considerable attention in this country. This attention is likely to increase with the release of the English edition a few days ago.

Voznesenskii's pamphlet is written not to inform, but to mislead. For his great achievements along this line he was rewarded with the great Stalin prize of 200,000 rubles. Thorough knowledge of Soviet economy is needed so as not to pay heavily for the few scraps of evidence which can be extracted from Voznesenskii's book by being misled on vital points of Soviet war and nonwar economy.

On agriculture and food, for example, Voznesenskii writes: "The first Imperialistic World War had an exceptionally severe effect on Russian agriculture" and "In the years of the great trials of our Fatherland, the kolkhoz peasantry assured the population of the country and the Soviet Army with bread and food".

According to the Gosplan, 1917 gross agricultural production was only 7.8 per cent below that prior to World War I. The by no means grave food shortages of that year were local, having been caused mainly by transportation difficulties. In the Second World War Soviet agriculture broke down with the first shot. The 1943 gross agricultural production is unlikely to have been more than 60 per cent of prewar.

In spite of the very important lend-lease shipments and the domestic reserves from peace years, the food situation of the USSR bordered on starvation through all the war years; older people in urban cities were simply sacrificed. The death rate must have been extremely high. Not a breath can be found on this subject in Voznesenskii's pamphlet or elsewhere.

According to Voznesenskii, the value of the industrial output of the eastern territories more than doubled in 1940-43. The value of the total industrial output of the greatly decimated and crippled union is said to have been in 1943 only about 12 per cent below that of 1940. That this was not the case is obvious from Voznesenskii's statement that in 1943, transportation of goods was only about half of prewar.

Moreover, due to war requirements, the share of shipments serving the industry declined considerably. Transportation data in terms of tonnage certainly are an incomparably better yardstick of industrial output than sums in rubles. Prices of the newly introduced war materials, although never disclosed, are obviously greatly in excess of the real value.

Voznesenskii's evidence on national income likewise points to a much smalled industrial output in 1942 and 1943 than those claimed by him.

According to the Gosplan, the high level of the industrial output in 1943 was maintained through 1945 having been in the latter year only 8 per cent below 1940. The Gosplan shamefacedly passes 1946 but its figures imply a very large decline of the industrial production in that year. Actually the decline, if any, was much less, because the wartime output, the reconversion from which is supposed to have caused that decline, never existed in the claimed degree.

In the last quarter of 1947 industrial output of the USSR reached the average 1940 level, according to the Gosplan. A comparison of the output of commodities in tonnages (rather than of their values at unknown prices) discloses that the Soviet industry has quite a distance to go before it will have reached the prewar level. To arrive at this conclusion it is, however, necessary first to consider not only steel and coal, Mr. Stalin's favorites, but all important commodities, and secondly to check carefully and to adjust the official 1940 data for all territorial acquisitions since 1939.

The limiting of the analysis to more or less uncritical repetition of those few data which the Gosplan and its president feel useful to reveal reminds one of a Russian saying "pounding water in a mortar." This is quite inadequate in the present international situation. N. GASNY.

MUSIC AND LITERATURE: A Comparison of the Arts, by Calvin S. Brown. (University of Georgia Press, $4.50.)

Literary criticism is, to speak broadly, of two sorts, which I think we might call the interpretive and the theoretical. The first is concerned with a particular work or a particular author, and the critic's task is to illumine his subject in some way that will enlarge the reader's understanding or enjoyment of it. The other sort, of which the Poetics and Rhetoric of Aristotle afford our most famous examples, is an attempt to discover and to formulate certain objective canons of beauty by which the value of any given work of literature may be determined. Having established the values one may proceed to a study of the devices whereby they are achieved. One of the problems raised in such a study is whether the technical principles established in other arts have any applicability to literature. Some critics, following Lessing, have said that no work of art, whether of painting or music or literature, can be understood apart from the possibilities and limitations peculiar to its genre. Others have as confidently asserted that the terms of one art are interchangeable with those of another and have accordingly attempted to explain Beowulf in the language of a picture gallery catalogue and The Scarlet Letter in a series of symphony program notes.

Professor Brown here seeks to dispose of the question once and for all. He does not consider the relationship of literature to painting and sculpture any farther than to draw a distinction between the "spatial" arts and the "temporal." Music and literature, which are sequential in character and therefore depend for their effect upon memory, are of course in the latter category. Both, moreover, are concerned with sound, and in this sense, too, are more closely related to each other than either of them is to the arts which appeal solely to the vision. It is true of course that nowadays even literature is experienced primarily by the eye, but it is immediately vocalized by the imagination. Indeed the word literature itself is misleading for the art of poetry is much older than any system of writing, and its forms are derived from the fact that is was intended to be chanted or sung. There is, however, an important difference between music and language; the one has to do with sound as an end in itself, the other also involves the concepts associated with certain sounds. Thus poetry moves between a world of pure sound and a world which is quite external to it. This is why the effects of the one art cannot be duplicated in the other, and why it is impossible, even for writers of nonsense verse or poets of the avant garde, to produce poems utterly disassociated from all but musical meanings.

Our professor disposes of Lanier's theory that the metrical foot and the musical bar are necessarily the same by showing that the effort to designate poetic rhythm by musical notation ignores the difference between iamb and trochee and anapest and dactyl, and by calling attenion to the irregularities of stress which occur in most poetry. He also shows, by examples in four-four time from Browning, Coleridge, Chesterton, Vachel Lindsay and others, that where poems have been deliberately written in musical measures, the effects are quite different from those achieved by conventional scansion. As for the notion of a correspondence between musical pitch and verbal inflection, the professor thinks there is something to it; but since there is such a wide variation of inflection between one reader and another it is a matter wholly beyond the poet's control. Uniformity of inflection is most evident in conventional and stereotyped phrases; thus the better the poetry the less valid the analogy. Again, the uses of timbre, or tone color, in poetry are different from those in music; and the nearest parallel to counterpoint our professor can discover is in a kind of poetical pun or simultaneous suggestion of two ideas by a single word.

The device of repetition and variation in poetry is pretty much the same as in music, except there is a good deal less of it. In music it is the larger and grander forms like the sonata and the fugue which make most use of repetition, whereas in poetry it is the slighter forms such as the triolet and rondeau or archaic forms such as epic. The explanation, says our professor, is that the reader soon wearies of having the same thing said over and over, and besides the ways of saying it are soon exhausted; but the possible variations of a musical theme are almost infinite and each has thus the advantage of novelty. Also the historical development of literature has been toward less repetition and variation, whereas in music it is toward more. The musical influence in literature has of course been considerable, but I gather that the literary influence in music has been even greater. The professor can find only a few examples, such as the fugue by DeQuincy and the sonata by Thomas Mann, where true musical forms have been consciously and successfully imitated by writers, although he discovers an unconscious exploitation of musical symbolism in Whiteman's When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom'd. Mr. Brown holds that pure music—for example a Bach fugue—is wholly independent of nature and exists in its own world of pure abstraction. Music grows imitative as it becomes literary, as for example in what is called program music. In pure music, it seems, form and content are inseparable, which is why the alien literary tendencies involve a progressive departure from the forms proper to musical art.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Campaign And The Crisis

MR. TRUMAN seems to have convinced himself that the character of the campaign by Mr. Dewey and Mr. Warren is smart but unsportsmanlike. They ought, he feels, to fight, to create burning issues between the two parties, and not to spend their time trying to unite the country behind an Administration which is as good as elected.

LIPPMANN

But the style of the Dewey-Warren campaign would not be smart politics if, as between the two parties, there really were burning issues. If the country were sharply divided on great domestic or foreign questions, the issues could not be kept out of the campaign. The fact is that there are grave problems. But to these problems the Republicans as a party do not have one set of answers and the Democrats as a party another set of answers. That holds not only in the field of foreign policy. In domestic policy, as one can see from reading, in the current issue of Fortune magazine, what is presumably a quite accurate account of Mr. Dewey's economic views, there is no fundamental conflict of doctrine—no ideological conflict remotely comparable with that which separates parties, say in France, or even in Britain.

MR. TRUMAN'S own campaign is the best evidence. He is not campaigning against Dewey and Warren at all but against the Hoover Administration and against the Eightieth Congress. But the record of the Eightieth Congress was made while he, not Mr. Dewey, was President, and the main charges he brings against the record deal with things that could never have been done if the Democrats, of whom he is the nominal leader, had followed his leadership.

The reason Mr. Truman is not campaigning against Dewey and Warren is that then he would have to meet the real and the determining issue in this election. The issue is not progressivism versus reaction, liberalism versus conservatism. The claim that Mr. Truman and Mr. Snyder, and the White House coterie are more progressive and more liberal than Mr. Dewey, Mr. Warren, Mr. Vandenberg, Mr. Stassen, and their closest advisers and supporters, is a palpable absurdity. For the slogans and battle cries which Mr. Truman is using in the campaign have almost no connection with the actual prejudices, practices, and habits of thought of his own cronies.

THE REAL and determining issue is whether the country is to have a President in fact, not merely in name. The country has perhaps by this time realized that Mr. Truman is not exercising the powers of his office. His long absence from Washington during this period of intense international crisis is the outward and visible proof of the real state of affairs in Washington. For the first time since Harding the powers and responsibility of the Presidency are not actually in the hands of the man who occupies the office.

Where then are the powers and the responsibility? The answer is that they are distributed loosely and casually in bits and pieces all over the Government departments and the bureaus and agencies. Coordination and central direction, such as it is, is achieved by interdepartmental groups and committees, trying sometimes successfully, often in vain, to work out among themselves a temporary substitute for that central judgment and decision which, in our system of government, only the President can provide.

"THE BUSINESS of statesmanship," said Governor Dewey in Salt Lake City, "is to anticipate and solve international problems before they become crises, and to solve crises before they become wars." I think that a careful study of the record will leave objective observers with little doubt that the grave crisis which has risen this summer is a direct consequence of the fact that there is no central direction and control of affairs.

Decisions were taken about Germany, and commitments were made, by men preoccupied with fragments of the problem of Germany, who did not see the forest for the trees. These decisions would not have been taken when they were taken, and as they were taken, had those who knew better been able to carry their objections to a President who was capable of understanding them.

FOR WHAT brought us to the dangerous crisis we are now facing was no new accretion of Soviet power. The Soviets have not suddenly become stronger and therefore better able to carry out their designs. Our position was improving steadily and remarkably through the whole period since the inauguration of the Marshall Plan and the firm decision, symbolized by the sending of the Navy into the Mediterranean, to resist any advance beyond the armistice lines.

What did happen was that by a miscalculation of the condition of Germany, we adopted a German policy which did not originate in the State Department, but which, in the absence of a President, the department did not have the strength or the conviction to oppose. That policy brought the conflict with the Soviet Union to a premature showdown at Berlin, the weakest point in our whole position. By making that blunder we gave the Soviets an opportunity, which they were quick to seize, to regain the diplomatic initiative that they had lost.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Wallace Is A Bust

CHICAGO.—One fact, at least, should encourage the despairing Democrats. Henry Agard Wallace's Progressive Party is proving a bust. That is why the party's Communist and fellow-traveling master minds have hastily decided not to oppose such proven anti-Communist liberals as Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas. The sacred party line has been briskly reversed in order to salvage something from the ruins.

The motive is clearly disclosed by the history of two successive deals which the Illinois Progressive leaders tried to make with Jake Arvey, the able new chieftain of the old Kelly-Nash machine here in Cook County.

Deal No. 1 was offered in the period when the Communists hoped great things from the Wallace venture. At that time, the line was that every American liberal with more independence than a sheep must be utterly destroyed. "Better the most reactionary isolationist than the most liberal advocate of the Marshall Plan," was the motto. The Illinois Progressives accordingly demanded boldly that Arvey keep the stanchly anti-Communist Paul Douglas off the State Democratic ticket for the senatorship. If he refused, they added, they would put in a Progressive stooge against Douglas and thus help to reelect Col. Robert R. McCormick's private Senator, brassy "Curley" Brooks.

ARVEY NATURALLY rejected the deal and the Progressives accordingly trotted out the threatened stooge senatorial candidate. Then, while they were admitted to the ballot in Cook County, the courts ruled them off the State ballot. This meant that they had to conduct write-in campaigns for Henry Wallace, the anti-Douglas stooge and other State-wide candidates. The obvious effect was to reduce the potential Wallace vote.

Not long ago, therefore, they offered Arvey deal No. 2. They would jettison their Cook County nominees. They would stop the write-in movement for the anti-Douglas stooge and throw all their other Illinois hopefuls on the dust heap. And in return, would Mr. Arvey please just fix a judge or two, in order to get the single name of Henry Wallace onto the State-wide ballot?

This incredible proposition was of course rejected by Arvey with astonished indignation. That is why Paul Douglas' opponent was not on the list of Progressive candidates whose withdrawal was recently announced by the party's national manager, C. B. (Beanie) Baldwin. The fact that the Illinois deal fell through, however, does not weaken the incident's obvious meaning. The meaning is confirmed by the parallel events in Minnesota.

The original Progressive plan in Minnesota was to run an opponent against Mayor Hubert Humphrey of Minneapolis, and thus help to reelect the bitterly antilabor, increasingly isolationist Senator Joseph Ball. The main Wallace sentiment in the State is among the iron workers of the great Mesabi Range, who take a low view of Truman and mean to vote for Wallace and Humphrey. But the iron workers also hate Ball. Checks showed they would resent any Progressive move likely to assist Ball and would therefore switch from Wallace to Truman. Thus Humphrey is not being opposed, simply in order to conserve the Wallace vote.

ALL THIS CHOPPING and changing has had its comic side. The Communists at first had trouble convincing Henry Wallace and their other front men of the wickedness of all independent American liberals. Wallace and the others like him were, of course, convinced in the end. Unhappily they then became more royalist than the king.

Consequently, when Baldwin abruptly disclosed the new strategy at a public dinner, poor muddled Wallace gave an audible cry of anguish. In Minnesota also, the unhappy former Senator Elmer Benson kept wailing the watchwords the Communists themselves had taught him to the very end of the debate about their Minnesota strategy. In order to avoid naming an opponent to Humphrey, the Minnesota Communists had to beat down their own former doctrine by main force.

What is significant, however, is the panic disclosed by these events. All effort is now concentrated on getting a maximum vote for Wallace alone, for two obvious reasons. The resentment caused by the Communists' earlier strategy has already probably cut the Wallace vote down to two million or less. If Wallace gets no more than two million votes, the Progressive Party will fall to pieces. It will cease, in short, to be the front group the Communist leaders want.

Worse still, the American Communists will be shown up as incompetents and liars in the terrible eyes of the Kremlin. They have promised the Kremlin a great mass uprising. If no mass uprising materializes, one can be sure the poor wretches will be required to make humiliating recantations or ordered to admit Brother Browder to their midst or be subjected to a ruthless purge. No wonder they are running for cover.

News Resumes From Argentina

Buenos Aires, Oct. 3 (AP).—News dispatches flowed normally out of Argentina today under provisional permission given to five foreign correspondents last night after their credentials had previously been suspended.

Filing rights were restored to four United States and one Uruguayan correspondent for the British Reuters News Agency after a 12-hour suspension. Neither the suspension nor the interim restoration was explained by the government.

Some sources believe the suspension was lifted on a provisional basis pending final decision, probably Monday, by a higher authority.

Hearing Set on Koch Dispute

By the United Press

Senate investigators yesterday scheduled early public hearings on complaints that Army officials condoned "atrocious and revolting crimes" in granting leniency to Frau Ilse Koch, the "Belle of Buchenwald."

The Senate's super-investigating committee already has questioned at secret sessions Army Secretary Royall and officers who reviewed the case. A committee official said members will dig further at public hearings which may get under way next week.

Frau Koch was sentenced to life imprisonment for her part in brutalities inflicted on the Nazis' victims in the notorious Buchenwald concentration camp. She was alleged to have picked for extermination inmates with tattooed skins so their skins could be used in making lamp shades.

An Army review board recently found there was "no convincing evidence" to back up most of the charges against her and cut her sentence to four years.

THE NEW "COMMUNITY PROPERTY" LAW
Lower Estate and Gift Taxes ...does it mean for you?
Many individuals can save substantial sums in estate and gift taxes under the Revenue Act of 1948 which introduces the "Community Property" principle into the Federal Tax structure. You may be one of them.
Under the new Act, bequests to a wife or husband may result in significant tax benefits. Up to 50% of formerly taxable property is now deductible if transferred to a spouse. Such a transfer may be made in trust under specified conditions.

In addition, gifts made to children and others during life may be subject to substantially less tax than under the previous law.
It may be advantageous for you to investigate the new tax provision thoroughly. You may be able to save significant sums by altering your estate plans or making a new disposition of your property under your Will.
Our Trust Department—one, of the best equipped in Washington—is familiar with the ways in which the new law's estate and gift tax provisions may be utilized to conserve assets. Our facilities are available to you and your attorney. You are invited to consult with any of our Trust Officers.

Supreme Court Opens Today With Many Cases Involving National Issues Awaiting Attention

By the United Press

The Supreme Court returns to the bench today for a new term that may mark a turning point for the so-called Roosevelt court.

The tribunal's 159th year opens with more than 400 cases awaiting attention. Many of them, and others sure to reach the court before the term is over, go to the heart of controversial issues in the political life of the Nation.

This is particularly true of labor issues. The court undoubtedly will pass on important sections of the Taft-Hartley law during the year, and make other decisions more clearly outlining the rights of labor.

Seven of the nine justices were appointed by the late President Roosevelt. President Truman named the other two—Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson, a life-long Democrat, and Justice Harold H. Burton, former Republican Senator from Ohio.

The justices have split bitterly on many issues. But they have clung to one principle—that Congress, and administrative agencies set up by it, should be given widest latitude to act.

For example, the court has not declared an act of Congress unconstitutional since Mr. Roosevelt's first appointee, Justice Hugo L. Black, donned his robes in 1937.

This "hands off" policy may be given its severest test when the court is asked to uphold Government action with which some justices may personally disagree.

Today's sesion will be brief and devoted chiefly to opening day formalities. The jurists will ascend the bench promptly at noon. After admitting attorneys to practice, the court is expected to recess for a week. During that week they will meet daily in private conference to discuss cases piled up during the summer.

Six High School Students Killed in Minnesota Crash

Gilbert, Minn., Oct. 3 (AP).—Six high school students on their way home from a football game were killed early today when their automobile hurtled from the road near this northern Minnesota mining town. All were 16-year-olds.

Killed instantly were Donald Putzel, Tony Skerbitz, Lawrence Kleimo and Ronal Luoma, all members of the nearby Aurora, Minn., football team; Lois Pietala of Markham, Minn., and Ealine Personen of Palo, Minn.

Two other 16-year-olds boys who were also members of the Aurora High School team were injured critically.

3-Service War Games Reflect U. S. Tension Over Europe

Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., Oct. 3 (U.P.).—The Nation's armed forces gathered nearly 9000 men and 500 of their best aircraft here tonight for Monday's opening of Operation Combine.

The operation is the first major show of power in postwar maneuvers since mounting tension in Europe forced the United States to increase the size of its armed forces.

The maneuvers involve a series of three-day demonstrations of the latest techniques of combat. They will display the effect of coordinated air, ground and sea power in lightning warfare against a major objective.

Primarily, the benefit is staged for the benefit of 3000 students from the air university, armed forces staff college, infantry center radar school, general staff school and marine school. From it they hope to learn lessons of vital value to be applied if the Nation has to go to war again.

The maneuvers will spread over three States—Florida, Alabama and Georgia—and will involve this imaginary war problem:

The "Namoran government has decided to invade the country of "Deluvia" and capture the capital, "Atlantis." The aim will be for the attacker to split the Deluvian nation into two and subdue the capital.

Two task forces will make the attack. The southern task force will consist of strategic and tactical air forces, airborne forces, amphibious forces and naval forces.

The airborne forces will establish an airhead in the Eglin area with the mission of securing landings.

The campaign will be divided into three phases:

1. Establishment of an airhead (landing troops from the air).
2. Establishing a base.
3. Offensive from the base toward the "Atlantis."

An actual airborne attack will take place with paratroops and gliders establishing an independent airhead in "enemy territory." They will land ready for action with jeeps, artillery and other weapons. Resupply will be by air.

Another big reason thousands prefer TWA's world-proved CONSTELLATIONS

Meet your TWA flight engineer

Lots of the things you'll like most about traveling TWA Constellation can be traced back to the work of the Flight Engineer aboard every "Connie." For example, he functions as your own private "weatherman," watching dials and twisting controls to manufacture the comfortable "climate" you enjoy in the cabin every minute of your trip.

He has a lot to do, too, with the amazing punctuality and dependability records rung up by TWA Constellations. At the airport, he works with the ground crew, sees that gasoline is promptly and properly loaded, and that servicing is quickly and efficiently done. In flight, he watches oil and pressure gauges, alcohol and hydraulic systems, tachometers and thermometers and a host of other controls and dials, leaving the two pilots free to concentrate all their attention on flying the plane. Partly as a result of his experienced help, TWA Constellations made a new record for on-time performance during July and August. Throat specialists report on CAMEL MILDNESS

30-Day test of hundreds of Camel smokers revealed
NO THROAT IRRITATION DUE TO SMOKING CAMELS!
(Not a single case!)

FROM COAST TO COAST, the reports were the same: Not one single case of throat irritation due to smoking Camels!

These reports were based on a total of 2470 examinations by noted throat specialists of the throats of hundreds of men and women who smoked Camels—and only Camels—for 30 consecutive days.

And these men and women smoked on the average of one to two packages of Camels a day!

Yes, Camels are that mild! But prove it for yourself. In your own "T-Zone"—T for Taste and T for Throat. Smoke Camels—and only Camels—for 30 days. Let YOUR OWN TASTE tell you about the full, rich flavor of Camel's choice, properly aged tobaccos. And let YOUR OWN THROAT tell you about that marvelously cool Camel mildness!

Indians Lose, Bosox Win; They Play for Pennant Today; Feller Routed but May Be Sent Back Against Mel Parnell

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

BOSTON, MASS., Oct. 3.—The way this American League pennant race is going, there are all sorts of complications and repercussions. A girl can't even set her wedding date, for example. Miss Emily Fredericks, a comely brunette of Wellesley, Mass., doesn't know whether she is going to be a bride on October 7 or October 17.

POVICH

Her nuptial plans are as much up in the air as the final determination of the American League pennant winner. And so are Dom DiMaggio's. Dom was supposed to take Miss Fredericks as his bride on Thursday but today he practically jilted her as far as that date is concerned. He may have been a hero to Fenway Park fans in the seventh inning when he hit that home run that helped beat the Yankees, but it produced confusion in the bride-to-be's household.

There will be no wedding on Thursday if the Red Sox are in the World Series, inasmuch as the Red Sox will demand Dominic's undivided attention to baseball affairs for at least another week. So young love will wait it out until October 17, they have agreed, if Dominic is compelled to play in the World Series, a goal he has been trying for with as much fervor as his struggle for the hand of Miss Fredericks.

THIS TURN of events that finds the Red Sox in a tie with the Indians and favorites to win tomorrow in the play-off, is of some inconvenience, to Mr. and Mrs. Joe DiMaggio, sr., of San Francisco. They are in town along with Dom's two sisters and presumed they would be witnessing his wedding on Thursday. Now Dominic, the good son, may have fouled it all up.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe DiMaggio, sr., were the dinner guests of their two competent sons, Dominic and Joseph, jr., last night and their allegiance was sorely tested today, but it survived nicely what with Dominic hitting that homer and Joseph banging out four of the Yankee's hits, including a pair of two-baggers.

There had been a little by-play last night at dinner, incidentally. "I will get you married on Thursday, Dom," said Joseph. "I'll hit my fortieth homer and knock you out of the pennant," he said. Joe made four hits but he couldn't make good that home-run promise. Instead, the day produced Dominic's ninth homer that was the most vital blow of the game, what with the Red Sox lead having dwindled to 5-4 at that point.

IF YOU DON'T see any pictures in the paper of a celebration in the Red Sox dressing room after clinching their tie for the pennant today, that's understandable, too. The photographers don't want to take any pictures of the Red Sox, it seems, so they didn't take any. It's all Ted Williams' fault.

The cameramen trooped into the Boston dressing room after the game, all prepared to record the Red Sox in joyous celebration. The Boston players did feel happy about getting into the play-off but Williams shooed the cameramen away with the subtle command to "get the hell out of here." If he wasn't speaking for the rest of the Red Sox, he was acting like it, at least.

So the photographers clammed up but not before saying, in chorus, "The hell with the Red Sox." They wouldn't snap a picture, after that, and quit the place in high dudgeon. The Red Sox thus became the first unphotographed pennant-tying ball club in the history of the game.

AT THAT, the Red Sox are deserving of some applause. They did save the day for the American League by winning their game with the Yankees, else it would have been a dreary spectacle of the Cleveland Indians backing into the pennant on a day when they took a dismal 7-1 beating. The pennant was going begging until the Red Sox created the play-off.

There are new complications, anyway. Out in Cleveland, Bill Veeck, the sports-shirt impresario, is kicking over the traces at the radio arrangements for the World Series. He's sore because a Cleveland announcer wasn't selected by the Mutual Broadcasting Co. to broadcast the series, and is demanding that one of the home-town boys get the job if the Indians are in it.

Right now he's threatening to get even if no Cleveland man is at the microphone. He says he'll put the broadcasting booth far out in right field by way of retaliation, and serves 'em right, he says. Jimmy Britt of Boston, who will broadcast the series, says he isn't worried by Veeck's radio arrangements at all. "There won't be any World Series in Cleveland this year," says Britt, who is beloved of the Red Sox and their chances to knock the Injuns off tomorrow.

'Skins Turn Giant-Killers, Baugh Leads 41-10 Victory

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

With a "never heard of 'em" attitude and a fine disregard for the way things were supposed to be, Washington's Redskins yesterday kicked the stuffings out of the New York Giants' star-studded football forces, 41-10.

While 32,593 cash customers looked on in amazement at Griffith Stadium, the 'Skins took uncontested leadership of the Eastern Division, National Football League, with a parade of six touchdowns.

*From line of scrimmage.

The crippled locals, doped to lose by at least 10 points, scored their second straight victory of the young season with a devastating air attack. They ran up a total of 24 first downs to the Giants' four and amassed 485 yards to New York's 110.

Penalties, fumbles and pass interceptions were even more frequent than Redskin touchdowns in the bitter brawl. In all 22 penalties were levied, 16 of them against the 'Skins for 133 yards. New York, meanwhile, was outshining the hosts in fumbles with six.

Baugh Has 667 Average

Slingin' Sammy Baugh, who was hurt briefly in the second period, but got in later to score one touchdown himself and pass to two more, was all the 'Skins needed to void the threat of such big-time stars as Paul Governali, Charley Conerly, Tony Minisi, Bill Swiacki and Ray Poole.

Sammy completed 16 of 24 aerials for a nice gain of 259 yards. Add 67 yards gained on two pass completions in three times by Tommy Mont, both tosses for touchdowns, and you have the big reason for Washington's dominance.

Further reasons were a line charging like maniacs, Dick Todd's return to his form of 1943 and the all-around brilliance of the Redskins' own rookies.

Actually the Redskins were forced to come from behind to win. But they nullified Len Younce's 28-yard field goal early in the second quarter and spent the rest of the game rolling up the highest score since 1937, when it was 49-14, favoring the locals.

Two touchdowns in the second period gave the 'Skins a 14-3 halftime edge. They came back unsatisfied, however, and matched the Giants' only touchdown of the game in the third quarter, then made it a joke game with three super-clinchers in the last 15 minutes.

Giant Attack Confused

Six men scored points for the winners. Rookie End Hal Crisler was the only double touchdowner, while single goals were registered by Fullback Ed Quirk, Baugh himself, rookie Halfback Dan Sandifer, and Fullback Jim Castiglia. Dick Poillon kicked in (from placement) with five more points, missing the conversion only on No. 4 touchdown as the ball hit the goal post.

Against Washington's well-oiled T-formation, featuring Baugh and Mont, the Giants threw a half and half affair that may have accounted for their six fumbles. Governali, former Columbia great, operated from the T, and rookie Conerly was on the passing end of a single wing. The confusion that caused was mostly in the Giant ranks, though neither this pair nor Minisi, who tried one southpaw pass and had it intercepted, was exactly a ball of fire.

Governali completed two out of six attempts, Conerly four out of ten.

BAD NEWS FOR BILL—After his Indians had received a 7-1 pasting from Detroit, Cleveland President Bill Veeck found more bad news on the baseball ticker in his office. It showed Boston had trounced the Yankees to tie Cleveland for the pennant. The two teams meet in Boston today in the first pennant playoff in American League history

Lyons Quits Chisox; Onslow New Manager

Chicago, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Ted Lyons resigned today as manager of the Chicago White Sox.

Jack Onslow, who managed the Memphis farm team of the Sox in the Southern Association this year, was immediately named manager by Charles Comiskey, secretary of the White Sox.

Lyons' resignation came shortly after the White Sox had completed one of their most disastrous seasons.

Lyons, who replaced Jimmy Dykes as manager after 30 games of the 1946 season, had a two-year contract which expired today.

Lyons' only comment was: "I did the best I could with what we had."

Onslow took over the Memphis team which was picked for seventh this year and directed it to a second-place finish. The team lost in the league play off.

A former pitcher-catcher with the Boston Braves and the New York Giants, Onslow was the manager of Waterloo, Iowa, in the Three Eye League in 1947 and piloted the team to a league championship.

Lyons' plans, meanwhile, were indefinite.

"He has been offered a position in the White Sox organization and it will remain open for him," a club spokesman said. "But we were told he plans to shop around for a more active job in baseball."

Newhouser Says:

'I Had a Job To Do and I Just Did It'

(From Press Dispatch)

Everyone was talking yesterday about the finish to a very hectic American League season.

From those in the thick of things it went like this:

HAL NEWHOUSER, the Detroit pitcher who beat Cleveland said it very simply: "I had a job to do and I just did it. That's all."

LOU BOUDREAU barred reporters from the Cleveland dressing room after the game because "the boys are feeling a little badly about losing today."

Boudreau meeting the press later in the stadium office, said he was sorry about locking the dressing room door, but "it wouldn't do any good to have the boys talk to reporters now. They're not in the right frame of mind."

JOE McCARTHY, the Boston manager put the damper on any would-be celebration, saying:

"There's a whole season ahead of us, how can anybody celebrate yet?"

TED WILLIAMS, for one, certainly wasn't celebrating.

When the sports writers and cameramen poured into the dressing room he curtly waved them away.

"Let's have a picture, Ted," a photographer pleaded.

"Go chase yourself," Williams growled. "Get somebody else."

He asked neighbor Wally Moses about the most probable Cleveland pitcher for tomorrow's playoff.

"I guess it will be Bob Lemon, and he's been tough against us this year," Moses replied.

"I don't give a damn if he's beaten us 20 games this year. We'll knock his brains out to-

Boudreau Says Feller Figures 'In My Plans'

From Press Dispatches

Bobby Feller and Mel Parnell seemed the likely starting pitchers for today's payoff game in Boston, although neither Indian Manager Lou Boudreau nor Bosox Boss Joe McCarthy would announce a definite hurler last night.

"You can take your pick from Feller, Bob Lemon or Gene Bearden," Boudreau told reporters. "I have in my mind the man it will be, but I want to think it over thoroughly."

Boudreau declined to nominate Feller as his starter, but said the star righthander definitely figured in his plans.

When asked if Feller would be ready to go after being blasted out in three innings by the Tigers yesterday, Boudreau said:

"Bob didn't say he wouldn't be ready."

McCarthy would not name a definite starter for the playoff but said it would be either Ellis Kinder with a 10-7 record or Lefthander Mel Parnell who has won 15 and lost 8. Kinder is 0-1 against Cleveland while Parnell is 3-2 against the Tribe.

All along McCarthy has insisted, "this won't be over until Sunday night or maybe Monday." He was right as rain.

Nats Finish With 7-2 Win

Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—With Ray Scarborough hurling gilt-edged fashion as he held the Mackmen to four hits, the Nats socked Phil Marchildon for 12 safeties, including home runs by Eddie Yost and Sherry Robertson to gain a 7-2 triumph before 2273 today.

It was Scarborough's fifteenth victory against eight setbacks, and he was as effective as he had been all season. His splendid fast ball and even better curve kept the Macks completely in check.

By their victory the Nats raised their season's mark against the Athletics to 8 wins and 14 defeats.

After the Athletics scored a run in the first, Washington tallied twice in the second. Ed Stewart singled, Mickey Vernon doubled and Eddie Yost singled to score Stewart. Vernon came home when Mark Christman hit into a double play.

The Senators added another pair in the sixth. Stewart doubled, went to third on Vernon's fly and came home on Fox's wild throw. Yost then hit a home run.

A walk to Majeski, Bob Wellman's single and a long fly gave the A's their second run in the seventh.

In the eighth Sherry Robertson hit a home run, Stewart walked, Yost doubled, Christman and Early singled to add three more.

Macks Release Rudy York

Philadelphia, Oct. 3 (AP).—Rudy York was cut adrift by the Philadelphia Athletics today along with three other players.

Manager Connie Mack gave the big Indian first baseman his unconditional release. Mack picked up York after he was released by the Chicago White Sox at the end of last season.

Five-Run Third Does It for Sox

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Boston, Oct. 3.—A tale of two cities—joyous in Boston and solemn in Cleveland—was unfolded today with Red Sox homeruns providing booming overtones to bring about the first pennant tie in the 49 years of American League history.

Into the World Series picture the Red Sox wedged their collective foot by battering down the Yankees, 10 to 5, in the regular season's finale before 31,354 Fenway Park fans exulting in the scoreboard story of sorrow for Cleveland.

Cleveland's 7-1 defeat by the Tigers mean play-off tomorrow in Boston in a one-game showdown for the pennant and the chance to meet the Braves in what could be history's first all-Boston World Series.

Fans Rush for Playoff Tickets

Today in Fenway Park, the scoreboard vied with the batters' box for fan-interest and each Detroit run at Cleveland, posted on the left-field wall, was saluted with the same roaring glee as a Red Sox home run.

From their seats the Boston fans piled at the finish to line up outside the stadium for the play-off game tickets that were to go on sale at 7 p. m., pausing not to celebrate the Red Sox victory in their haste to obtain tomorrow's admissions.

To beat the Yankees today, the Red Sox overpowered 'em and came from behind to overcome a 2-0 Yankee lead in the first two innings that plunged Fenway Park into near dismay.

And then the Red Sox exploded against Rookie Bob Porterfield with five runs in the third inning. That was the inning, too, when four runs were posted for Detroit at Cleveland and the Fenway Fans cut loose.

But the Red Sox weren't safely home, yet. The Yankees drove Joe Dobson out, pulled up to 5-4 in the fifth inning and now the Red Sox were threatening to blow it.

Four-Run Inning

Came the sixth though, and the Red Sox stacked the game away, against Vic Raschi, the Yankees second pitcher. The team that was built for Boston's short left field fence, moved into action. Dom DiMaggio touched it off in the sixth with a homerun over the wall.

With bludgeon then rapier, the Sox cut loose. Johnny Pesky beat out a bunt, and then Vern Stephens homered. Stephens' was a two-run homer, never to be confused with DiMaggio's soft tap over the wall. Stephens' powerful poke all but tore its way through the netting above the high wall.

The Red Sox weren't through, though. It was to be a four-run inning giving them a 9-4 lead. Bobby Doerr singled to left, Raschi moved out and Reynolds came in. Spence drew the third of his four consecutive walks, and Bill Goodman ushered home the fourth run with a single to center.

The Yankees were licked. They had pulled up gallantly to within a run of Boston, but for them it was boom and bust. Earl Johnson and Dave Ferriss held them to one consolation run after the fifth inning.

The Yankees, their goal reduced today to a second-place tie with

Newhouser Holds Tribe to 5 Hits

By Joe Reichler

Cleveland, Oct. 3 (AP).—The American League pennant race wound up in an unprecedented deadlock today. The Cleveland Indians, needing a victory for themselves, or a defeat for Boston, missed out on both ends. (Today's games gave both Cleveland and Boston a season record of 96 wins and 58 losses for a .623 percentage.

Hal Newhouser, handcuffing the Tribe with five hits, pitched the Detroit Tigers to 7-to-1 victory over the Tribe here, while the Red Sox, who were two games off the pace three days ago, defeated the New York Yankees, 10 to 5, in Boston.

That threw the pennant race into a season-end tie for the first time in the league's history and forced a one-game playoff for the flag.

The all-important game will be played in Boston tomorrow, starting at 1:30 p. m.

The loss was Feller's fifteenth of the year, and snapped a seven-game winning streak for the Iowa fireballer. He missed notching his twentieth victory for the sixth straight full season by one.

Bob Feller, Cleveland's ace pitcher, started today's game but didn't linger as the Tigers belted him out with a four-run splurge with one out in the third inning.

Feller May Start Today

In view of Newhouser's effectiveness, it was probably fortunate that the Tigers got to Feller so soon, for the fireballer probably will be Manager Lou Boudreau's mound choice in tomorrow's play-off when the final chips go down.

It simply was not Feller's day today. His Sunday pitch—his fast ball—wasn't so good today as the temperature hovered around 60.

The Tigers teed off on his fast one right from the start, and when the Bengals got to him for a pair of doubles, a single and two bases on balls in the third, Boudreau waved him to the showers, and called in Sam Zoldak.

That started the parade of five Cleveland flingers, including a couple who just came up from the minor leagues. The Tigers rapped Steve Gromek, third Indian hurler, for two more runs in the fourth on two more doubles and a single to provide Newhouser with a 6-to-0 edge.

Hal Loses Shutout in 9th

Meanwhile Newhouser rolled on to his twenty-first win of the season, and his second in nine starts against Feller. He was never in trouble and had a shutout until two were out in the ninth when Joe Gordon singled to send home Allie Clark from second. Until the ninth when Clark and Gordon singled, Newhouser had a brilliant three-hitter.

The Indians were so futile against the lefthanded stints of Newhouser that a large part of the huge crowd of 74,181 paid admissions began to file out in the seventh inning.

Until then they kept watching the scoreboard, hoping that the Yankees could help by defeating the Red Sox. But when the scoreboard showed the Red Sox far in front, they gave up hope.

Newhouser allowed only seven

Schroeder Wins Title by Default

Los Angeles, Oct. 3 (AP).—Ted Schroeder, Glendale, Calif., won the men's single title in the Pacific Southwest tennis championships today, when Frank Parker, Pasadena, who was leading, defaulted at the end of the third set.

Parker suffered from blisters on both feet. When he limped off the court he was ahead 6-4, 9-7, 5-7.

Louise Brough, Beverly Hills, won the women's singles crown, defeating Beverly Baker, Santa Monica, 6-2, 6-3.

Nussbaumer Bowls Over Photographer

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Griffith Stadium, Oct. 3.—It is not an Indian summer day here today. In fact it is beginning to appear that the day won't be good for any Indians at all. The Giants are leading Marshall's Indians and out in Cleveland the Tigers are mauling Boudreau's Indians.

The Redskins took the opening kickoff and from their own 30 drove deep into Giants territory. It took them four first downs and seven minutes to do it. But on the next play they were back on their own 14, but without the ball.

Sammy Baugh did it for the 'Skins. He completed his second straight pass, this one to George Cheverko of the Giants who legged it back 61 yards.

After Lenny Younce had booted the Giants into the lead with a field goal, the 'Skins drove down field 69 yards during which time Baugh didn't even attempt a pass. Two plays later the 'Skins scored on a Quirk play—Fullback Ed Quirk carrying it over.

Mississippi's Charley Conerly who was subject to the Redskins' 'draft, but who enlisted in the Giant's army made his debut in the second quarter. By way of introduction he completed two straight passes, the second to End John Atwood which covered 54 yards.

The Giants fumbled on the next maneuver, but there was a horn on the play. Forget it, it was only the trumpeteer in Barnee Beeskin's band sounding off "Hail to the Pedskins" as Bill Gray recovered a Giant fumble on the 'Skin 8.

Baugh had to leave the game with a twisted ankle in the second period and things didn't look too good for the Redskins. They looked even worse for the Giants who watched Tommy Mont pitch a touchdown pass to Hal Crisler.

Bob Nussbaumer, used sparingly before intermission, is in the 'Skin lineup now. He strolled about 16 yards down the side lines and something may develop because he bowled over a photographer.

Conerly's back in the game and the Redskins now wish they had gotten him. He's pitching passes all over the field. Those that he can't complete the officials are completing for him. They ruled a pass good on the Skin four from where Joe Scott plunged over for a N. Y. score.

It has just been announced that Cleveland's Redskins bit the dust, but it's a different story with the Washington Tribe. Baugh, going for distance, heaved a 43-yard beaut to Don Sandifer who breezed across for the fourth 'Skin touchdown.

Dick Poillon's try for the extra point hit the goal post. He won't be spanked, however, because the 'Skins have a 17-point lead and the management has lost six balls already.

Howard Hartley, a defensive back, all of a sudden becomes very offensive to the Giants, for whom he worked last year. He hauled in a Conerly pitch and before one of his ex-teammates embraced him he covered 53 yards.

While the Giants were fiddling around late in the game, Baugh passed to Crisler for another T. D.

Mothershead Wins Argyle Golf Crown

Dick Mothershead caught up with his wife yesterday, winning the Argyle Club championship by defeating Curtis Turner, 10 and 9 Mrs. Mothershead won the women's title last week.

It wasn't the first time that the Mothersheads have made a family sweep of the club championship. They did it several years back playing at the old Argyle Country Club The lady of the house is still ahead in one department, having collected four titles to her husband's two.

Mothershead tallied three 37s for the 27 holes he needed to beat Turner yesterday.

BETHESDA—They'll have to crown a new club champion here this year because Cal Reeder popped up out of nowhere yesterday to beat Tom Manning, looking for his third title in a row, in quarterfinal play. Reeder has played only a few rounds of golf this season and was due for a licking in his quarterfinal match with Manning. He played the script up to the turn, where he stood 2 down, but caught fire on the back nine to win, 3 and 2. His medal score for the whole nine was 34. . . . In another quarterfinal, Serge Folk defeated Col. R. V. Oxreider, 3 and 2. J. E. Williams gained the finals by defeating Willis Nolan, 3 and 1. One remaining semifinal will be played next Saturday and the final on Sunday.

PRINCE GEORGES — Mike Jankowski yesterday beat Mike Ondo, 1 up, to go into the finals of the club championship. Capt. Fred Moseley and Doug Mattison, had their semifinal match put off until next Saturday. Garland Bowers defeated Dick Milburn in a championship flight consolation match. The 36-hole final is scheduled for next Sunday.

KENWOOD — K. L. Ludlow yesterday took the lead at the halfway point of the 36-hole medal play Earl Hodges trophy tournament. His score was 84—15—69. F. W. Waever was second with 82—12—70. The final 18 holes will be played next weekend.

CONGRESSIONAL—Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Wilcox won a mixed scotch foursome yesterday for their low net score of 93—23—70. Low gross was won by Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Brumfiel with an 85.

Congressional Wins Match

Congressional Country Club took five extra holes yesterday to beat Indian Spring in a Maryland State Golf Association team match after the first six matches ended in a 9-9 tie.

With darkness coming on fast, Congressional Pro Wiffy Cox birdied the par-five fifth hole, while neither Mel Shorey nor his partner Eddie Ault of Indian Spring could do no better than par.

Wiffy Cox and Gene Pittman, Cong., 1; Mel Shorey and Eddie Ault, I.S., 2; C. F. Given and W. J. Evans, Cong., 0; Buddy Sharkey and George Thornton, I.S., 3; Bill Shea and Dutch Eberts, Cong., 3; Volney Burnett and Herb Rudd, I.S., 0; Fleming Bomar and Dick Preuit, Cong., ½; Bill McFarrin and Doug Jackson, I.S., 2½.

Prince Georges Golfers Lose, 10-8

Towson, Md., Oct. 3.—Country Club of Maryland, defending champion in annual Maryland State Golf fall team matches, defeated Prince Georges, 10 to 8, on the winning team's courst.

Andy Gibson, host club professional, and Ken Scales finished one-two for low medal honors, Gibson carding a 3-under-par 67 and Scales shooting 71. The pair teamed to defeat Prince Georges' Pro Al Houghton and George Voigt, 3 to 0, in their match.

Andy Gibson and Ken Scales (CC), 3; Al Houghton and George Voight (PG), 0. Eddie Johnston and Eddie Steinberg (CC), 2½; Bob Morris and Bob Chandler (PG), ½. Eddie Meyer and Rip Mann (CC), 2½; Bill Griffin and J. Jankowski (PG), ½. Ernie Caldwell and George Elste (CC), ½. Ernie Caldwell Balestri (PG), 2. Frank Griffin and Ben Mitchell (CC), 0; James Kinder nad Doug Madison (PG), 3. Syncer Reed and Jim Barrett (CC), 1; M. Jankowski and E. Johnston (PG), 2.

Manor Eliminated By Suburban Club

Baltimore, Oct. 3.—Suburban Club eliminated Manor Country Club from Maryland State Golf Association play matches here today.

The victory required an extra-hole playoff after both clubs finished regulation play with nine points. The winning margin for Suburban was furnished by Ralph Beach with a birdie three.

R. Beach and D. Halle (Sub.), 3; Clagett Stevens and L. Smith (Man.), 0. C. Coffman, jr., and A. Litman (Sub.), 3; J. Miller and T. Burrows (Man.), 0. S. Texer and D. Crane, jr., 0; D. Sullivan and C. Andrews (Man.), 3. R. Goldman and D. Nassauer (Sub.), 0; L. Puchs and Dr. M. Crawford (Man.), 3. V. Lebow and S. Lev (Sub.), 2. B. Whalton and S. Andrews (Man.), 1. M. Koffman and A. Ries (Sub.), 1; H. Lacey and H. Desl (Man.), 2.

Waterfield's Passes Save Day for Rams

Los Angeles, Oct. 3 (AP).—Staging a spine-tingling rally in the final seconds, the Los Angeles Rams scored three touchdowns in the fourth quatrer and wound up in a 28-28 tie today with the Philadelphia Eagles in a National League Football game before 36,884 onlookers in Memorial Coliseum.

Quarterback Bob Waterfield fired a 29-yard pass to Left End Jack Zilly for the tying touchdown, with exactly 30 seconds left in the game.

The Ram passing star's aerial wizardry finally got to clicking late in the third period and the Rams swept on to close the gap between a 28-point lead built up by the Eagles Tommy Thompson.

For the better part of three quarters the Eagles dominated the game. The Rams stopped their running ace, Steve Van Buren, but they couldn't throttle Thompson.

The former Tulsa star connected with three touchdown strikes—40 yards, 36 yards to his right end, Pete Pihos, and a 13-yard snap to Neil Armstrong to put the Eagles into a 21-point lead at halftime.

Early in the third Bosh Pritchard, the Eagles fleet scatback, whizzed off 52 yards to put the visitors out in front, 28-0.

The Rams couldn't get past the Eagles' 30-yard line in the first half, and neither Waterfield nor his understudy, Jim Hardy, could connect overhead.

Suddenly the Rams got hot. After an exchange of fumbles, Waterfield threw two passes—one to Tom Fears for 17, the next for 27 to Zilly for the first Ram score.

As the fourth quarter opened, Waterfield sent the Rams 54 yards in nine plays. He hit Bill Smyth for 3 yards for the second score.

Waterfield soon after found Fears for 39 yards to reach the Eagle 4, and two plays later big Bob Hoffman crashed over the goal.

With the crowd's excitement mounting and time running out, the Rams, with two minutes to go, started from their own 27. Waterfield passed 29 yards to Zilly in the end zone for the tying tally.

Steelers Defeat Boston Yanks, 24-14

Pittsburgh, Oct. 3 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Steelers came roaring from behind in the last half today to wallop the Boston Yanks, 24 to 14, for their first National Football League victory. Steelers fumbles set up both Boston touchdowns in the first half.

A crowd of 26,216 wtached the comeback.

Pittsburgh scored twice in the last period on a 7-yard pass from Johnny Clement to Charley Seabright and on a 3-yard thrust by Norman Mosley, which climaxed a 67-yard drive.

Trailing 14-0 in the second period, the Steelers scored their first touchdown on a 24-yard pass from Clement to End Elbie Nickel. A 35-yard field goal by Joe Glamp in the third quarter and his three conversions accounted for the rest of the Steeler scoring.

G. P. Malinowski gave Boston its first scoring chance early in the first quarter by covering Jerry Shipley's fumble on the Pittsburgh 32. On fourth down Jim Youel passed 15 yards to Bill Paschal in the end zone. Steve Pritko scooped up Mosley's fumble on the Pittsburgh 33 and ran for the second Boston score in the second quarter.

'I Did My Job,' Hal Says

morrow" Williams yelled at the top of his lungs.

"Well, we've still got one more to win" he said. "We win tomorrow or it don't mean a damned thing."

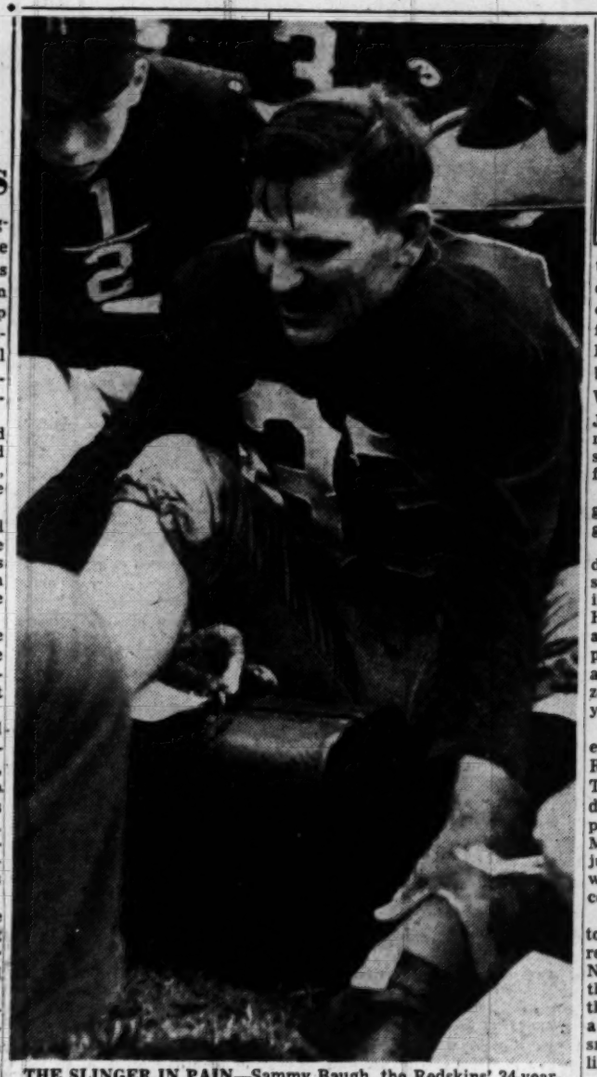
A pro to the end, Williams laughingly shouted, "we want to get that dough (World Series split) too, you know."

BILL VEECK, limited his reactions to Newhouser's pitching.

"The way he was pitching today, we wouldn't have beat him if we batted against him for two days."

HANK GREENBERG, vice-president of the Tribe, who watched the game from a seat in the press box, walked out after the sixth inning.

"I've seen enough," he said.



THE SLINGER IN PAIN—Sammy Baugh, the Redskins' 34-year-old aerial artist, grimaces on the sidelines as a team physician checks his damaged right leg in the second quarter of yesterday's game at Griffith Stadium. Despite the injury, Sammy returned to the line-up to spark a 41-10 upset over the New York Giants

Green Bay's 2d Win

Packers Come From Behind To Beat Out Detroit, 33 to 21

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 3 (AP).—The Green Bay Packers scored almost as they pleased after a faltering start today to whip the Detroit Lions, 33-21, in a National Football League game before 24,206 fans at City Stadium.

The Lions, handicapped by the loss through injury of Bill Dudley, were in the ball game only during the first quarter and for a few minutes in the final period. Otherwise it was all Green Bay as the Packers won their second start of the campaign against one defeat. The loss was the second without victory for Detroit.

A pair of rookies, Fred Enke and Joe Margucci, sparked the Lion attack but the accurate passing of veteran Jack Jacobs of the Packers stole the show. Jacobs connected on 12 of 19 passes.

A 23-yard toss from Jacobs to Clyde Goodnight tied the score early in the second period after Enke had flipped 18 yards to Cylde Leforce to give the Lions a momentary lead after 11 minutes of play. The Packers went ahead to stay after three minutes and five plays later, Walt Schlinkman crashing over from the 1 after Tony Canadeo's interception of an Enke pass.

The Packers picked up where they left off as the third period opened. Ted Fritsch booting the first of two field goals after a drive stalled on the Lions' 27. His other, from 46 yards out, came at the start of the fourth. It took only five plays for the Packers to score their third touchdown, Jacobs doing it himself on a sneak from 1 yard out. The final Green Bay marker went over with Canadeo with 30 seconds to play on a short skip around right end.

Braves Whip Giants, 11 to 1

New York, Oct. 3 (AP).—The pennant winning Boston Braves trounced the New York Giants, 11-1 today in their final game of the regular National League season. Bob Elliott socked a three-run homer in the first inning to start the Braves off.

'SKINS—From Pg. 9

Giants Upset By Redskins In 41-10 Rout

the Giant 37, set up the invaders' only touchdown as the third period ended. That and a pass interference penalty against Center Al Demao, loudly booed by the stands, but moving the New Yorkers to Washington's four. From there Joe Scott, San Francisco flash, ripped over tackle for an easy score and Younce collected his fourth point of the game.

Washington payoff excursions, getting a little monotonous as the game wore on, went like this:

No. 1—Baugh sparked a 73-yard drive, passing twice to Todd and sending Quirk, Farmer and Todd into the line to the Giant three. Half that distance was covered by a Giant penalty for roughing the passer, and Quirk went through a hole excavated by John Koniszewski and Fred Boensch from 1½ yards out.

No. 2—Mont intercepted a Conerly pass meant for Atwood on the Redskin 45. Two more Baugh-to-Todd passes were involved in a drive to the Giant 30 but a 'Skin penalty for delay cost five yards. Mont, who had replaced the injured Baugh, then hurled over Atwood's head to Crisler who received on the six and jogged over.

No. 3—Sandifer carried a punt to midfield and Baugh, apparently recovered, passed once to Bob Nussbaumer and twice to Crisler, the ball resting on New York's three. Quirk was inches short in a smash at center and Baugh sneaked over with half the Giant lineup on top of him.

No. 4—Sandifer ran a punt from the 16 to Washington's 29, where a roughing penalty set the 'Skins back to their 14. Baugh was passing from near the goal line when he hit Sandifer at midfield. The big L. S. U. rookie took the ball over his shoulder and easily outdistanced three defenders to score on the end of an 86-yard pass play.

No. 5—Baugh passed to Nussbaumer for 15 and again to Nussbaumer, who tore down the sideline for 31 yards. A 6-yard lob to Paul McKee, plus Castiglia's 5-yard sprint around end, put the ball on the Giant 12. Baugh passed to Crisler, a lonely looking figure in the end zone, for the remaining yardage.

No. 6—Less than three minutes were left when Sandifer grabbed Governali's pass and went to the Giant 37. Farmer made a first down on the 27, but it was third down on the 30 when Mont faded far back to pass. He found Castiglia at the line of scrimmage, and after a terrific job of scrambling, Big Jim was tackled on the three by Reagan. In this predicament, Castiglia used a 3½-yard dive, with Reagan hanging on to register the final 6-pointer.

Hansbury, Roach Fight Here Tonight

Washington's Johnny Hansbury bids for an upset tonight over Middleweight Contender Laver Roach of Lakeview, Tex., in the feature eight rounder at Turner's Arena.

A relative newcomer to pro ranks here, the 20-year-old Hansbury in his most recent fights holds technical knockouts over Al Wright and Sonny Boy Bunn. His overall record shows 16 victories in 18 fights.

But he has no easy task against Roach, a clever youngster with a good punch who has been called the finest fighter developed during the war.

The Texan is no stranger here, for he won a large following while scoring successes as an amateur for the Marine Corps team.

Since turning professional, Roach has lost but two bouts in nearly 40 fights. One of his conquerors was the now middleweight champion Marcel Cerdan.

Roach is scheduled to fight the winner of Rudy Castilliano-Lee Sala at Madison Square Garden on November 26, and if he wins that one he may get a rematch with the champion. But he will have to be on his guard tonight to keep Hansbury from spoiling those plans.

Five preliminary bouts, featuring all local fighters, are carded. Welterweights Jackie Ford and Myles Jones meet in a five, and another five-rounder pairs Slim Cravette and Johnnie Holt, middleweights. In fours, Mike Martin meets Walter Ham, and George Brooks faces Garland Edwards.

Walter Keane meets Holly Mims in another five-rounder.

Buffalo Bills Turn Back Dodgers, 31-21

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 3 (AP).—The Buffalo Bills handed the Brooklyn Dodgers their fifth defeat, 31 to 21, today before 17,694 spectators, the smallest All-America Conference football crowd in Civic Stadium in two seasons.

The Bills' line held the visitors to nine yards rushing, while the Buffalo eleven rolled for 222 yards on the ground.

The Bills led, 10-0, before Brooklyn could break into the scoring column. Bob Steuber, who later added four extra points, opened with a 24-yard field goal in the first period. Lou Tomasettis 15-yard dash climaxed a 53-yard march in the second.

Bob Chappuis paced the Dodgers' 54-yard advance for their first touchdown with four successful passes. Hardy Brown cracked over from the 2 and added the first of his three points after touchdown. Buffalo made it 17-7 at half time on Ratterman's 43-yard pitch to Mutryn.

Brooklyn's second touchdown in the third quarter resulted from Hoernschemeyer's pass to Brown for the last seven yards.

The winners came back with a sustained 80-yard drive, capped by Ratterman's 9-yard toss to Mutryn.

Brooklyn cut its deficit to 24-21 in the last quarter as Rex Baumgardner brought back Mickey Colmer's punt for 35 yards and Julie Rykovich went 35 through the middle, then scored from the 1-yard line, 16 seconds before the finish.

Chicago Stems Rally In 4-3 Win

St. Louis, Oct. 3 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs took a 4-0 lead, then staved off a last-minute Cardinal rally to defeat St. Louis 4 to 3 before 18,086 fans today.

Despite the defeat the Redbirds finished the season in second place as the Brooklyn Dodgers were defeated by the Philadelphia Phillis, 4-2.

Phils Edge Bums

Brooklyn, Oct. 3 (AP).—Young Curt Simmons pitched the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-2 win over the Brooklyn Dodgers today to prevent the 1947 National League champions from finishing any higher than third place. The Brooks started the day a game behind the second place St. Louis Cardinals.

Reds Blank Bucs

Cincinnati, Oct. 3 (AP).—A ninth-inning single by Rookie Steve Filipowitz, counting Bobby Adams from second, broke up a pitchers' duel between Johnny Vander Meer and Vic Lombardi today and gave the Cincinnati Reds a 1-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates before a crowd of 7255.

Hogan, Haas, Palmer Tie

Portland, Oreg., Oct. 3 (AP).—Triple Champion Ben Hogan and two younger rivals, Fred Haas, jr., and Johnny Palmer, finished in a tie for the Portland Open Golf title today, each carding 270 for the 72-hole event. The playoff will be held tomorrow.

The wind-up of the $15,000 links derby took place in sensational fashion. Hogan and Haas, in the last threesome, finished in gathering darkness and a steady, drizzling rain.

Palmer, from Badin, N. C., had checked in earlier with a five under par 67 to take the lead. Haas, the New Orleans 6-footer, carded a sensational 33-32—65. Meanwhile, Hogan needed a birdie 4 on the seventy-second hole, to grab a tie, and rolled in the five-footer.

Bullis Prep Wins in Jersey

Newark, N. J., Oct. 3 (AP).—Bullis Prep of Washington, D. C., posted an easy 6-0 triumph today over St. Benedict's Prep of Newark, returning the opening kickoff for the day's lone touchdown.

Duke Quazardo took the kickoff and zig-zagged 90 yards for the score.

the Red Sox floundered. Bucky Harris used four pitchers, four pinch hitters and a pinch runner in an attempt to get back in the ball game. He switched to everything but Calvert in his desperate maneuvering.

They couldn't match the Red Sox's 15 hits. Joe DiMaggio, the club professional, pained at every step by sore legs that cried for treatment, went out gallantly. With his arm muscles still healthy and his eyes still keen, he rapped out four of the Yankee hits, including two two-baggers, in a valiant individual stand against the Red Sox and they cheered him when he got a pinch runner after his single in the ninth.

DiMag is Brilliant

Back in the first inning DiMaggio dismayed Fenway Park with a two bagger against the center field wall to score Tommy Henrich, who walked, with a run that put the Yanks in front, 1-0. And by the end of the second inning it was 2-0, Yankees, against Dobson. A walk to Bauer, Silvera's single and Stirnweiss humpty-dumpty double to right got the second run home.

Dom DiMaggio sounded the toesin for the Red Sox comeback with a single to right that opened the third and, with one out, Ted Williams struck the Sox's most important blow to that point. With the Yankees playing him in their right field shift, Williams sliced a drive into left field that carried to the wall for a two bagger that scored DiMaggio.

Vern Stephens picked up the torch with a fiery single off Brown's upstretched glove and Williams halted at third. Bobby Doerr answered the pleadings of Fenway fans with a two bagger to right center and the Red Sox were in front, 3-2.

Spence walked and Rookie Bill Goodman moved Doerr home with a single to right center. Harris wearied of Porterfield and Raschi moved in. Spence scored from third when the Yankees missed a double play on Tebbets' grounder to Rizzuto.

The Yanks threatened to get 'em all back going into the seventh four runs behind. They filled the bases quickly with one out on a walk to Henrich, and singles by Joe DiMaggio and Johnny Lindell. Young Johnson was invited to discontinue pitching and there were misgivings when Dave Ferriss, season-long ne'er-do-well, got the job.

Ferriss held Bauer to a long fly that scored Henrich from third, and then he refilled the bases by walking Pinch Hitter Charley Keller. But Johnny Pesky eased the tension for everybody in Boston with a masterful play on Pinch Hitter Bill Johnson's grounder. He grabbed it up, lunged at the limping DiMaggio who was racing to third, put the tag on him and then threw to first for a double play.

That's how they racked the Yankees up, and tonight Boston is prepared to deal similarly with Cleveland on the morrow.

Uline's Starts Wrestling Tonight

Rudy Dusek, a relic of the days when wrestling had only a handful of world's champions, leads his troupe of wrestlers into Uline Arena tonight, inaugurating Monday night wrestling there.

Dusek tangles Frank Hewitt in the feature. The other bouts offer Reb Russell against Fritz Ziegfield, Mitchell Leone against Frank Bruce, Steve Gob against Paddy Mack, and Jim Wallace against Verne Pugh.

Chisox Win, 10-5, Second Tied, 2 to 2

Chicago, Oct. 3 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox defeated the St. Louis Browns, 10-5, in the first game of a double-header and the two teams played a 2-2 tie in eight innings before the second game was called on account of darkness.

Payne Cup Play Begins

Three days of Payne Trophy Cup medal play begins tomorrow at Columbia Country Club. The 54-hole Maryland State event for women with handicaps of 1 to 14, has attracted 39 women, all of them from local clubs.

Prizes will be awarded for net and gross scores with the Payne Cup going to the low gross winner.

No Baltimore entries have been received, which means that Mrs. Maurice Glick will not be defending the title she won last year.

Post entries will be accepted by Mrs. A. B. Bower, the tournament champion.

Starting times for the first round: 9:30, Mrs. John Conklin, A-N; Mrs. W. S. Parsons, A-N; 9:35, Mrs. George M. Jani, Cong.; Mrs. E. C. Atwood, Ken.; 9:39, Mrs. S. F. Little, jr., A-N; Mrs. Rex J. Howard, Ken.; 9:43, Mrs. M. Scandiffio, Man.; Mrs. Ralph Zuber, Man.; 9:47, Mrs. Frank Mirth, Wash.; Mrs. Ed. Widmayer, Ken.; 9:55, Mrs. Theadore Peyzer, Wood.; Mrs. Alberta Altman, A-N; 9:59, Mrs. Elliott Hanson, Cong.; Mrs. Harlen M. Chapman, Cong.; 10:03, Mrs. John Long, I.S.; Mrs. Helen Sasscer, I.S.; 10:07, Mrs. Samuel B. Crocker, Ken.; Mrs. A. B. Bower, Man.; 10:11, Mrs. J. R. Daily, Man.; Mrs. George E. 1947 Public, Private Debt 410 Billions

The Nation's public and private debt jumped almost 17 billion dollars last year, to hit a record 410 billion dollars, the Commerce Department revealed last night.

The department's Bureau of Business Economics said all types of private debt, corporate and individual, rose during the year and more than offset the continued decline in Government debt.

Consumer credit, recently curbed by the Federal Reserve Board as an anti-inflationary measure, increased heavily during the year, the department said. So did borrowing for home mortgages.

Private corporations boosted their long-term debt by about four billion dollars during the year. They also expanded short-term liabilities. Increased business activity, rising prices and taxes were responsible, the bureau said.

Farm mortgages increased slightly in 1947, about as much as the previous year. Farmers also increased other kinds of borrowing by about 800 million dollars.

The department said net public debt was reduced $5,600,000,000 during the year. A Federal debt decrease of $6,400,000,000 more than offset an 800-million-dollar increase in the debt of State and local governments.

Animals Go To Church

were sized up by the head usher, who decided they were too big for the pews. So they had to wait outside.

The Rev. L. J. B. Snell then told of the life of St. Francis and the work of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

"Animals and birds are a part of God's creation," he told the beaming children, "and there is nothing contrary to our Christian religion in the belief that our pets will live hereafter.

"There are animals and birds in heaven as well as human beings and angels."

There were some growls and squeals, but no unseemly incidents. It turned out that the bull mastiff who made a pass at a basket of kittens wanted to lick them, not eat them.

FDIC Warns

Price Drop Might Fold Many Firms

There may be an "exceptionally large" number of business failures when prices level off or start downward, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation warned yesterday.

In its semiannual report to member banks, the FDIC said business failures during the last five years have been at an all-time low—one firm per 1000 a year compared with the normal rate of 10 per 1000.

"Never before has United States business experienced so prolonged a period in which there were so few failures," the agency said. This, it said, is because the "easy prosperity of postwar inflation" has reduced business risk to "an almost negligible factor."

But the FDIC noted that business failures in the past have been a "corrective factor, eliminating inefficiency and poor management." It said highly inflated prices of goods today served to conceal "the weakness of many existing firms."

"Because of this undisclosed situation it is possible that exceptionally large numbers of failures may occur after a few months of stationary or declining prices," it said.

The report said that while banks have shared in the general prosperity and recovered many formerly bad debts, now is the time for experienced bankers to build up their reserves and get in "good trim to meet such storms as may lie ahead."

Optometrists to Meet

District, National Auto Totals May Set Records by Spring

America's highways will be jammed with more than 41 million vehicles of all types by the end of this year, surpassing previous records, the Federal Works Agency's Bureau of Roads Administration predicted yesterday.

In a preliminary report based on figures obtained from State authorities, the administration estimated that registration of privately owned automobiles and commercial vehicles would total 40,537,000, in contrast to the 1947 figure of 37,360,463. Neither total includes an estimated 500,000 public vehicles owned by Federal, State, county and municipal governments.

The estimated figures represented an increase of 8.6 per cent over last year's total.

The BRA estimated District registration at 167,000 as compared with 156,133 for 1947. Traffic Director George E. Keneipp said, however, Washington has "about" equalled" the roads administration estimation. He predicted that the year's end figure would be at least 175,000 and thought that by the end of the registration year in April the all-time peak figure of 181,000, recorded in 1942, would be passed.

The national report predicted registration figures would jump in all 48 States. According to its estimates, Virginia's total will jump from 700,691 last year to 757,000, while in Maryland the total will be boosted from 539,597 to 586,000.

The five States with the largest estimated registration are California, New York, Pennsylvania, Texas and Illinois in that order.

New York Vote Lists Fall Short of Hopes

New York, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—A total of 3,321,782 New Yorkers registered their intention to vote in November during the week ending at 10:30 p. m. yesterday, registration officials announced today.

The final total topped the 1944 civilian registration of 3,217,000 but fell far short of the record four million voters political leaders had hoped to attract to the polls this fall.

"We're right with you, son!"

"We in the Telephone Company are pretty proud of our safety record.

"Telephone service has to go on—come rain, sleet, or snowshine. You'll find us on the road in all kinds of weather.

"But if driving conditions can't always be perfect, we know that an extra measure of caution can go a long way in preventing accidents.

"All told, we cover more than 3,317,000 miles a year—in everything from installers' cars to the big construction trucks. We try to be courteous and careful every yard of the way. And it pays.

"During 1947, 987 of our drivers went through the year without accident—and more than two-thirds of them have safety records that range from 5 to 30 years.

"Yes, son, we believe in Safety—on the job or off the job. And we believe in Courtesy—on the road as well as on the wire."

WAR? The answer is somewhere between "NO" and "MAYBE"

From the current issue of Time

THIS WEEK, as the Moscow-Berlin-Paris negotiations over the German crisis sputtered to a horrifying stop, men & women everywhere shared a common question: How close is war?

In map rooms, boardrooms, classrooms, barrooms, the question was asked a million times. Britain, which has recently looked upon the U.S. as somewhat hysterical about the danger of war, was swept by a wave of alarm—but not of panic.

The London Daily Mirror reported the British people as "calmly bewildered and apprehensively steady." The phrase was very British, but it described the attitude of the Western world in general.

The West was braced for a blow—and it wanted desperately to know whether the blow was likely to come soon, or whether it might be postponed a year, or ten, or more.

No man alive—not even Stalin—knew the answer. No one had a grip on all the main factors in the equation. Some men, however, knew much more than others; and some answers were much better than others.

Last week a survey of the best sources of information in the non-Communist world yielded some hard facts, some pertinent speculation and some cautious conclusions about the chances of war.

Just for Defense?

The U.S. has no persuasive direct evidence that Russia is preparing an immediate military attack.

The Red Army (see cut) has at least 14 divisions in Eastern Germany—a formidable force compared to the U.S., British and continental troops facing them. There is, however, little evidence that the Russians have been building up their garrison in Germany or preparing it to strike.

Some evidence exists of increasing Russian military concentration much farther east, between Kiev and the Rumanian border. This might be preparation for an attack. On the other hand, it might be a Russian defensive measure, springing from the Kremlin's uneasiness over the uneasy satellite countries on Russia's border.

The intelligence services of Western nations were certain that Russia, although it had the larger ground force, would be militarily much weaker than an armed U.S.

The Russians have not got the atomic bomb. The Russian economic machine has made no recent important strides on the very long way it would have to go to approach equality with the U.S. Nevertheless, Russia's defensive capacity is impressive. If attacked, Russia would defend itself stubbornly.

As to the near side of the fence, some equally certain statements can be made. The U.S. and its allies are not mounting an attack on Russia. They too are trying to strengthen their defenses, and they have concentrated in Britain a bomber force capable of striking a very hard, retaliatory, atomic blow if the Red Army moves against the West.

Communists profess to believe that a group of "capitalists and militarists" who dominate U.S. policy want war. Henry Wallace repeats this dangerous lie. Even a few British officials believe that the U.S. Government leans toward the idea of a "preventive war" in the near future, before Russia gains in relative strength.

A group in favor of preventive war does exist in the U.S. Government and the U.S. public. It is largely made up of people who could be described as disillusioned idealists; in their past fatuity, they had put too much trust in Russia or in the U.N.; in their present disappointment they want to "get it over with" by attacking Russia.

But this small and scattered group has little influence on either the Government or the nation. It does not include a single top level official, civilian or military, in the present Administration, or any man likely to become a high official in a Dewey Administration.

The gist of these certain facts boils down to this:

1. the West has no intention of starting a war, preventive or otherwise;

2. the West has no clear proof, or even strong indication, that the Russians are about to attack, and

3. either side, if attacked, will fight back.

These certainties, however, cover only a very tiny part of the whole picture. Most of the answers to the question of war's closeness have to be calculated in terms of the probable, the possible and even the fantastic.

Just Berlin?

The worst piece of analysis which last weekend's crisis brought to the surface came from a French government official. A reporter who asked him for his view of the Berlin issue cabled the following account of the Frenchman's reply:

"You see, Berlin is the only bad point today in our relations with Russia. You remember the pressure on Turkey, then on Iran; then there was the Greek danger. Well, all that is gone now; only Berlin remains. For my part, I feel that if we can solve this question without . . ." (here a pause of some seconds and the merest suggestion of a shudder) "without . . . anything unpleasant . . . then, then . . ." (another, slightly longer pause and an expression of the eyes such as might be brought by only a beautiful memory or a lovely hope) "then . . . well, I don't say for centuries, not centuries necessarily, but for a very long time indeed, the Western powers and Russia may live without disturbance beside one another . . . Of course, this sort of arrangement would not be pleasant for the Poles and the Czechs, but . . ." (now the gesture suggests a delicate, gentlemanly shrug) "well, I think we could have peace for a long time. Just Berlin—that's all that stands in the way. That is why we are so anxious to solve this one remaining question . . . just Berlin."

This well-intentioned nincompoop obviously thought that war was just around the corner, but that it could be pushed into the very remote future by a single act of renunciation on the part of the West.

SOVFOTO

He was concentrating on a tree—Berlin—and ignoring a whole forest of issues to which the Russians could (and, on form, would) turn the day after they had cut down the Western position in Berlin.

A Western retreat from Berlin would not bring immediate war, but it would invite a further Russian advance in Germany which would be harder to resist because the Berlin concession had been made. At some point along this road, the West would probably turn and stand its ground, as Neville Chamberlain turned and stood on the issue of the invasion of Poland.

Powder Kegs & Lollipops

No worthwhile estimate of the chances of war can be made (as the Frenchman made his) on the basis of an isolated issue, whether it be Hitler's drive for Poland or Stalin's for Berlin.

Great nations are not powder kegs exploding into war at the drop of a carelessly tossed diplomatic démarche. Nor are they children, to be pacified by a conciliatory lollipop. Situations ripe for war find the specific issues (sometimes quite trivial ones, like Sarajevo) that start the shooting. Situations not ripe for war ignore specific issues (sometimes very serious ones, like Hitler's remilitarization of the Rhineland).

From Waterloo to 1914 there were a score of issues over which France and Britain might have fought. They were old enemies and current imperial rivals. Yet they did not fight: the French had little chance against British sea power; the British had little interest in destroying the French check on Austrian and Prussian land power. Britain and France were not "ripe" for war.

Is the conflict between the U.S. and Russia ripe today?

The simplest, deadliest kind of war ripeness occurs when two nations, having conflicting aims which each considers vital, arrive at a point of strength where each believes it can beat the other, and that it has more chance of winning if the war is not postponed.

There is no doubt that the U.S. and the Kremlin consider that they have conflicting vital interests. The Communists have always believed (and almost always said) that their mission is worldwide victory for their system; and that their own survival could not be assured in a world partly non-Communist. Since the U.S. began to understand, about two years ago, that the Communists actually believed this, the U.S. has recognized its essential conflict with Russia.

What about their relative strength? In the tangible, measurable factors with which military men deal, the U.S., plus its allies, would be clearly much stronger than Russia plus its allies.

There are, however, imponderables in the equation. A Communist in a Chinese radio station might think up a political slogan worth six aircraft carriers or a large steel plant. The relative superiority of the U.S., while certain by military standards, is only probable by over-all strategic standards. A sane Communist could conclude that Russia's strength equals or surpasses that of the U.S.

He could, of course, be wrong, as the Kaiser and Hitler and Tojo were wrong. Who will win a war is determined by real strength, but whether a war will start is determined largely by estimates of strength, which may be right or wrong.

When the U.S. tries to guess at how the Kremlin estimates U.S. strength, it is obviously dealing with the probable, the possible and the fantastic. Who, for instance, can say what effect the police state mentality has on honest strategic information? Do they tell Stalin what he wants to hear? Or do they tell him the truth?

Even in this murky area of speculation there are some signposts. Stalin does not seem to be an egomaniac, like Hitler. His career has been notable for caution.

On a number of issues the Soviet government has reacted to U.S. firmness in a way that indicates its respect for U.S. strength; it has behaved in general as if it were not seeking immediate war.

The balance of evidence seems to indicate that the Kremlin estimate of relative U.S. v. Russian strength is about the same as the U.S. calculation. If the Russians do consider the U.S. clearly stronger, then the chances of immediate war probably are not great.

X or Y or Z?

If there is any argument in Russia's Politburo (and there probably is) about relative U.S.-Russian strength, that argument is bound to lead into another: Is Communism growing at the expense of anti-Communism, or vice versa?

If Politburo Member X believes that the U.S. is now stronger than Russia, but that in the future U.S. strength will decline while Russia's rises, he would logically be against war now.

If Politburo Member Y believes Russia stronger than the U.S. now, but destined to decline in relative strength, he would logically be in favor of war now.

For all the West knows, the balance is held by Politburo Member Z, who believes that strength is roughly equal now. To Z any sign that the West is declining is an argument for postponing war until it declines further; any sign that it is rising is reason for fighting now.

The prevailing view in Washington is that Kremlin policy is controlled by those who think like Politburo Member X.

A small minority (which contains some very shrewd men) believes that Comrade Z has the floor in Moscow. If this minority is right, then U.S. rearmament and the success of the Marshall Plan might bring war closer. Nevertheless, this minority group favors rearmament and the Marshall Plan, not because it wants war, but because it fears a Communist sweep across the world unless anti-Communist resistance is stiffened.

There is not much objective evidence that Kremlin policy is dominated by the now-or-never school. The Communists made an energetic and brilliant bid for the domination of Europe, but they did not spend or risk much in the bidding.

Their electoral drives for France and Italy cost the Kremlin very little; their defeat leaves them in a position to try again at the first sign of Western weakness—and try they will.

In Asia, Red success has probably outrun Kremlin expectations. They are a long way from control of Asia, but they have helped to alienate most of it from the West. Already this success is paying Red dividends in denying to Europe a large part of normal trade with Asia. (see FOREIGN NEWS.)

World Communism has recently lost ground in the Western Hemisphere and in Europe; but it is not a cornered rat, and there is little reason to suppose that it will act like one. If Marx, Lenin and Stalin are right (and a Communist is conditioned to believe they are), the West is bound to decline. The role of the Communist, as he sees it, is to speed that decline. Of all the ways that it can be done, war is the riskiest.

It is significant (although certainly not conclusive) that the U.S.S.R. did not attack either Germany or Japan during the years when both were preparing to attack her.

Permanent Crisis

From these facts, inferences and guesses, some conclusions, mostly tentative, can be drawn. Among them:

1. The U.S. does not want war now. (Certain.)

2. The U.S. will fight against a Russian military advance almost anywhere, including Berlin, beyond the area now Soviet-controlled. (Highly probable.)

3. The U.S. would be much slower to react militarily against Russian political gains. (Highly probable.)

4. The U.S.S.R. does not want war now. (Probable.)

5. The U.S.S.R. will continue to press hard against soft spots in the anti-Communist front. (Highly probable.)

6. The danger of war decreases as Western strength grows, increases as it declines. (Probable.)

7. War this year is a real possibility, but is not probable.

8. Continued disturbance of the "peace" is almost certain.

As one high U.S. official put it last week: "The crisis is permanent, and the American people will just have to get used to it."

'Bookshop' Feature Of Loyalty Program Modified by ECA

The Federal worker loyalty program continues to make news. These are among the latest develments:

ECA: The top staff of the Economic Cooperation Administration has made a sensible decision on its supertough loyalty law. It has decided that any person who had merely a buyer-seller relationship with the "blacklisted" Washington Bookshop is not considered, because of it, "to hold views contrary to the Constitution." The decision, concurred in by the Justice Department, should have been obvious.

However, it was decided that any person who actively took part in the Bookshop's political policies could not be employed by ECA under its sweeping loyalty law. Before the ruling, ECA went to the extreme by refusing to employ persons who purchased books and records at the Bookshop at a discount.

POSTOFFICE: A supersecret investigation of about a dozen postal employes who are accused of disloyalty is underway. Justice officials put the heat on the department to suspend several of the accused employes. The department is reported to have made its own inquiry of each case before drastic action was taken.

Indictments on either perjury or fraud charges of one or more postal employes who concealed membership in the Communist Party is now believed probable. Incidentally, don't be surprised if the Senate Ferguson Committee launches an open investigation of Postoffice's loyalty cases. Someone in Justice is reported to have tipped off the Ferguson group on the "hot" Postoffice cases.

LOYALTY BOARD: It's prepared to receive a record batch of appeals in the next month or so—perhaps as many as 1000 from accused employes. Under pressure from all sides, the agency loyalty boards are grinding out cases at top speed. Membership on an agency board has become a full-time job in many departments.

TWO-CENT STORY: And here's another hard-to-believe story, a sequel to the yarn I had here the other day on the Government's trifling accounting practices:

A field engineer of the Interstate Commerce Commission, now retired, was sent to North Carolina on official business some years ago. His expense account for one month included the cost of a train ticket between two nearby Carolina towns. The receipt for it was in order.

But the Government disallowed two cents. It contended that the distance between the two points, as shown by its records, multiplied by the two-cent local rate in effect then, amounted to two cents less than the charge.

Uncle Sam, however, met up with one stubborn employe. The engineer produced a later record than the Government had which showed the distance a mile greater between the two towns. The argument continued for months as both parties held their ground.

Finally, much later, the engineer made his own survey of the distance which showed it to be more than half a mile longer than the Government figure. Also, that the railway company was justified in charging for the greater distance. Only then did the IGC engineer win his point and he got a Government check for two cents along with a statement that the dispute had cost Uncle Sam many times that amount.

NOTES: George W. Haldeman is the new director of Civil Aeronautics' aircraft service. He succeeds Charles F. Dycer who retired because of poor health . . . Commerce Secretary Sawyer keeps his own annual and sick leave record and he has ordered all other presidential appointees in his department to do likewise . . . Maj. Gen. E. C. Hughes, chief of Army Ordnance, has told his employes that "100 per cent participation will be required" this year in contributions to the Community Chest. The same old pressure campaign. . . . The Indian Bureau has a new director of health, Dr. Fred T. Foard of the Public Health Service.

CLERICAL EXAM: Civil Service says that it will announce within two weeks a new general clerical exam for Grade 1, 2 and 3 clerk jobs. It estimates that 10,000 permanent appointments will be made to Federal jobs here from the test.

Those who failed last year's test may take the new exam; those who qualified for a Grade 1 or 2 job a year ago could gain eligibility for a Grade 3 job by passing the new test, and those who passed last year's exam and haven't been certified to a job need not take the new test. Their eligibility will be continued. No new test will be given for Grade 4 jobs. The forthcoming test will be similar to that given a year ago. . . . .

An estimated 35,000 will apply for the test. More than 55,000 took it a year ago. Application blanks won't be available at Civil Service for a couple of weeks. I'll be glad to see that you're sent an application blank if you request it in writing along with a self-addressed stamped envelope.

CIVIL SERVICE NOTES: The shortage of stenographers and typists continues. Civil Service will now authorize agencies to recruit, examine and give immediate probational appointments to stenos and typists. . . . The 600 applicants for District police and firemen jobs will be given a written exam on October 11. . . . Only 113 persons were rated eligible on the P-1 engineer exams which closed last month.

Start of Jewish Holiday Marked In Washington

At services held throughout Greater Washington last night, Jews here celebrated the beginning of Rosh Hashonah, the Jewish New Year.

The holiday ushers in Year 5079 of the Hebrew calendar.

Orthodox, Conservative and Reformed congregations all planned additional services today, and Orthodox congregations planned services through Tuesday.

Rosh Hashonah marks the beginning of a 10-day period of penitence and prayer culminating in Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, on October 12.

3000 Hear Gerstenfeld

Last night's largest service was held at Constitution Hall where 3000 Jews heard Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, leader of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, extoll the highpoints and tribulations of the Hebrew past.

"The darkest hours of Jewish life," he told his listeners, "are ever the times before the bursting forth of new dawns."

Rabbi Gerstenfeld, leader of Washington's only Reformed congregation, spoke before a specially constructed ark which held the Holy Scrolls of the Temple. He was assisted by Rabbi Hugo B. Schiff.

Another service at 10:30 a. m. today will also be conducted by Rabbi Gerstenfeld in Constitution Hall.

High Holy Day services will be held at 7:30 a. m. and at 5:30 p. m. today at Beth Sholom Congregation, 8th and Shepherd sts. nw., with Rabbi Harry J. Kaufman officiating. Cantor Solomon Katz and the Beth Sholom Choir will chant the services. Services will also be held Tuesday at 7:30 a. m. and at 5:30 p. m.

Rabbi Henry Segal will conduct services at 7:30 a. m. today and Tuesday at B'nai Israel Synagogue, 14th and Emerson sts. nw.

Small Plane Crash Kills 2 in Virginia

Leesburg, Va., Oct. 3 (Spl.).—Two young men who had planned to attend a ball game at nearby Middleburg today were killed instantly when their small plane crashed shortly after take-off.

They were George Stickle, 24, manager of the Leesburg Airport, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Laverne E. Stickle, live at 2700 Allison st., Mount Rainier, Md., and James Talton, 19, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Talton, live at Hamilton, Va.

Witnesses to the crash said the plane, a PT-26, went into a tailspin shortly after it took off from the Leesburg Airport at about 1:45 p. m. It crashed about 1 mile east of Leesburg and only 50 yards from State highway No. 7. Witnesses said Stickle was piloting the craft. CAA Investigator Robert E. Bell has been assigned to investigate the accident.

Stickle came to Leesburg last spring as manager of the airport, and subsequently bought the field. His wife, Mrs. Ruth Pfeiffer Stickle, and their 5½-month-old son, Lawrence George, were visiting in Buffalo, N. Y., at the time of the accident.

A native of Michigan, Stickle received his education in Buffalo schools. He served in the Army during World War II and participated in the Aleutians Islands campaign. After his discharge in 1946, he took flight instruction under the GI bill at Congressional Airport in nearby Maryland.

In addition to his parents, wife and child, Stickle is survived by a sister, Mrs. Jean Pawlat, of Mount Rainier.

Talton, one of five sons of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Talton, was employed as a truck driver for the Hamilton Milling Co. He was born in Hamilton and attended schools there. His four brothers are Charles, George, Clayton and Albert.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed for either crash victim.

Ejected Man Suffers Fatal Head Injuries

Thrown out of the home of two companions he is said to have stabbed, Lewis W. Edwards, 58, of 1531 Wisconsin ave. nw., died yesterday morning in Gallinger Hospital from head injuries.

Edwards' head struck a manhole cover in front of 1526 Bells ct. nw. Grafton Lyles, of that address and Winfield Lyles, a brother of 1528 Bells ct., police said, hurled him into the alley early Saturday.

Grafton, 36, had been stabbed in the chest, and Winfield, 44, in the chest and abdomen, police said. All three were treated at Georgetown University Hospital, then taken to Gallinger Hospital. The two Lyles will appear at a coroner's hearing upon release from Gallinger.

James Lee, 24, of 1742 Kalorama rd. nw., was slashed on the head and neck, and Dennis Jeter, 24, of 1925 Gallaudet st. ne., was cut on the face in an altercation early yesterday in the 4100 block of Minnesota ave. ne. They are in Gallinger Hospital.

Arnold W. Williams, 43, of 4501 Dix st. ne., was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon after an altercation Saturday night in which a neighbor, William C. Green, 40, was cut on the head, chest and arms. Green is in Gallinger Hospital.

Explosion Wrecks D. C. Gas Station . . .

Scene after blast wrecked filling station at 4521 14th st. nw. yesterday

Deputy Fire Marshal Roy Warfield inspects damage to wrecked gas station

2 Escape Death In Explosion at Gasoline Station

Blast Shatters 14th St. Structure Just After Pair Had Opened Up

Two attendants narrowly escaped death when an explosion wrecked a gasoline station at 4521 14th st. nw. at 8:45 a. m. yesterday.

Omey Williams, 23, of 2615 N. Capitol st., and Carles Baines, 19, 1415 Webster st. nw., employes of Mike Dottellis, owner, had just opened up the office part of the Sinclair service station. Baines had walked 50 feet away, bound for coffee, and Williams had stepped around the corner of the one-story, brick and stucco building.

It was then that a terrific blast, centering in the "lubritorium" part of the building, still unopened, shattered the roof and two walls and left the interior a mass of debris. Windows in neighboring houses were broken.

Williams said debris hit him in the back and knocked him 20 feet, unconscious, with no other injury than shock.

Baines ran to an adjoining Gulf service station and a telephoned alarm brought four fire companies, rescue squad, ambulance, Fire Chief Clement Murphy, a battalion chief and deputy and Fire Marshal Raymond C. Roberts.

Roberts said a spark from an air compressor may have ignited fumes which collected overnight in the lubritorium. He withheld official cause for the explosion pending investigation.

Flames, apparently from a short circuit in electric wiring, followed the blast but were quickly put out by firemen before the underground gasoline storage tanks were endangered. The explosion aroused residents for blocks around. One window each in the basement, first and second floors of the home of Anthony Todero, 4516 14th st. nw., was broken, but none of the opened windows in the home of C. W. McAllister, directly across the from the station at 4520, was shattered.

A Coca-Cola machine in the gas station office was toppled over, as were stacked cases of empty bottles, but no bottles were broken. Plate glass from the station was blown through an open window of the unoccupied automobile of Rolan Burke, 3440 11th st. nw., parked alongside one wall, but the auto was undamaged. The air compressor was not affected.

Corns, Dog Bites

Police Radio Blares Odd Crime Clews

One was for a 44-year-old, slender 6-foot man who, among other things, had his left shoe cut because of a corn on his little toe.

Affaire Club Francis

Police want to talk to the man with the aching foot about a disturbance at the Club Francis, 910 5th st. nw., Saturday night. At that time, Lewis Cashwell, restaurant manager, walked into the office at the rear of the restaurant to find two men in the vicinity of his safe. He made a grab for one, who was squatting in front of the safe, but the other—the man with the corn—dashed out the back door and escaped.

The kneeling man was identified by police as Collie Padgett, 36, of 2136 Fifth st. nw. He was charged with housebreaking. Cashwell said he surprised the men before they took any money from the safe.

$180 Worth of Wo

Police want to talk to the man who "may have been bitten by a dog" about a little matter of $180, missing from the wallet of Gong Bing Wo, a waiter, who lives on the fourth floor at 913 New York ave. nw. Wo told police he came home at about 1 a. m. Sunday, took off his trousers, containing the wallet, laid them on the bed, and left his room to go take a bath.

While he was away, police said, a man wearing a light tan suit was seen coming up the fire escape, he entered the window of Wo's room, apparently took the money and started to make his escape through the back yard of the house.

There, a spaniel and a terrier, both owned by Mrs. Louise Leone, Wo's landlady, started howling, and snipped at the thief's legs. The thief got away by jumping a fence.

Police also are looking for the person or persons who are reported to have opened the trunk of a car owned by Herbert Stern, 1919 19th st. nw., sometime Saturday night and escaped with a camera and camera equipment valued at $282. The car was parked at 19th and Florida ave. nw. at the time of the theft, police said.

Three boys between 16 and 18 years old snatched $25 in bills from under a counter of High's ice cream store at 1804 7th st. nw., and escaped, about 7 o'clock last night, Paralee Madison, clerk, 1719 Marion ct.: nw., told police.

Assault Case Hearing Today To Be Private

Five Arlington youths will appear at a hearing before United States Commissioner Stanley King at Alexandria today on assault charges stemming from their alleged attempts to rape a 16-year-old high school girl last Thursday night.

United States Park Police, investigating the girl's complaint, said three of the youths had returned voluntarily late Saturday from Ohio, where they fled in an automobile following the attempted assault. They, along with two others apprehended earlier, had been placed in the custody of their parents pending today's hearing.

Since three of the boys and the complainant, are juveniles the hearing will be closed, police said.

Identity of the youths was learned after the girl, who also lives in Arlington, gave police the license number of the automobile in which, she charged, she was subjected to at least five assault attempts during a hectic ride to Mount Vernon. After repulsing each of the five youths, police quoted her as saying, she was released with a warning she would be killed if she mentioned the incident to police.

Two of the youths, both 18, were apprehended in Arlington before the other three were located in Ohio after one of them contacted his parents by telephone.

The forum, which is sponsored by Catholic groups in the area, will present a speaker each month until March. Tickets may be obtained from the forum office at Catholic University.

Law to Handle Recalcitrant VD Cases

But Health Officers Order Isolation As Last Resort

The District Health Department, though emphasizing voluntary cooperation in its campaign against venereal disease, revealed yesterday it has a "big stick" to use against infectious cases refusing treatment.

This was made clear when the department stated that legal measures at its disposal are taken "only as a last resort, after all efforts at persuasion have failed.

So far, about five "isolation" orders have been issued each month, since the Communicable Disease Act went into effect in 1947 for persons suspected of venereal disease. The law was designed to put "teeth into the extensive epidemiological work" carried on by the Bureau of Venereal Diseases.

This law defines venereal diseases which are infectious, requires that every such case be reported to the Health Department, requires that VD case reports be kept confidential, and permits isolation of such cases by the Health Department until treatment is given to render the case noninfectious.

In the normal tracing of VD suspects, the Health Department sends a representative to a suspect, who may go to his own physician or a Health Department clinic for examination and treatment.

If he refuses to take either step, the Health Department issues an isolation order which is served by a police representative. The suspect then is taken into custody and brought to the Gallinger Hospital Rapid Treatment Center for isolation.

If the patient so isolated refuses examination or treatment, a court hearing is ordered. If, at the hearing, the Health Department can show positive evidence of venereal infection, the patient can be isolated until he becomes noninfectious.

Comments the Health Department: "The fact that such measures . . . even have to be on the statute books, much less enforced on even infrequent occasions, is a sad commentary on the educational and social consciousness levels of the American public."

Woman Charged

Three Held By Police After Chase

Two men and a woman in a speeding and swerving truck gave District and Mount Rainier police a spirited half-hour chase yesterday afternoon.

Scout Car 11 with Pvts. Lewis Crooke and T. C. Carpenter answered a call to 1st and K sts. ne. at 2:30 p. m. to learn two men and a woman had driven off in a green, panel-body truck.

The policemen started up 1st st. in pursuit, describing the truck to the police radio dispatcher at the same time. At 1st st. and New York ave. ne., the truck was spotted by Motorcycle Pvt. Francis Raymond.

Chased at High Speed

He gave chase out New York ave. at 70 to 80 miles an hour, he said, with Car 11 behind him. At Montana ave. the scout car's hood flew open, putting it out of the race. The truck turned into Bladensburg rd., where scout cars 122 and 123 joined the chase, some distance behind Raymond. Raymond then lost the truck when it turned into South Dakota ave.

Meanwhile, a warning broadcast by Washington police that the truck was heading for Hyattsville was overheard by Mount Rainier Police Chief Eugene Plumer in his cruiser on Eastern ave. He saw the truck approaching on the wrong side of the road. He forced it to the curb near Rhode Island ave.

Plumer said that when the driver, William E. Grove, 33, of 1252 10th st. nw., put out his arm while arguing. Plumer put the handcuffs on him. With Grove were David and Hilda Grisso, 801 L st. nw., police reported.

Until all this happened, Grisso was a plumber employed by the Heffron Co., plumbers, 220 L st. ne., owners of the truck. George D. Heffron, head of the firm, said the truck had been stolen from in front of his office early yesterday.

Grove and Grisso were held for questioning about unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. The woman's Bureau charged Mrs. Grisso, 32, with being drunk.

Insurance Man, 81, Hurt in Fall, Dies

John W. Blair, 81, of 2000 16th st. nw., died early yesterday in Sibley Hospital as the result of injuries suffered in a fall September 21.

Police said the elderly man, who was in the insurance business here, fell down a flight of steps at 3210 17th st. nw. He had been under treatment at Sibley Hospital since the fall for lacerations, bruises and fractures of the vertebra of the neck, police said.

A 76-year-old House of Representatives doorman was killed by a trolley car at 7:30 o'clock last night at 12th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Fifty-second District traffic fatality in 1948, he was Edward S. Walls, 223 Pennsylvania ave. se., a Capitol employe for the last seven years and previously a traveling salesman on Maryland's Eastern Shore for a rubber company for many years.

Police said Walls was walking southbound across Pennsylvania ave. against a red light and a few feet outside the crosswalk when he was hit by the front of a westbound No. 30 Friendship Heights trolley operated by Leon D. Richeson, 27, of Apartment 305, 2123 Eye st. nw.

Pinned under the front of the car but not under a wheel, Walls apparently died instantly, Emergency Hospital physicians said, from head injuries. The body was extricated by Rescue Squad 1, while westbound traffic was delayed about 15 minutes.

Walls leaves his wife, Frances, here, and a son, Wright Walls, with the board of education in Baltimore. The Wallses lived in Centerville, Md., before moving here about seven years ago.

Rear Admiral Telfair Knight, United States Maritime Service, suffered head injuries and cuts on both legs when his automobile collided with a taxicab at 6:20 p. m. yesterday at 12th and D sts. sw., and veered into a tree.

The taxicab was driven, police said, by Ernest B. Cole, 47, of 216 10th st. sw. Admiral Knight is 60 and lives in Merrifield, Va.

Presidents of all the State's higher educational institutions have been invited to attend the dinner, which is planned in connection with the third annual observance of "Pennsylvania Week."

One of the main purposes of the function is to draw attention to outstanding advantages of the State's educational institutions. Dr. Herbert L. Spencer, president of Bucknell University, and Dr. Francis B. Haas, State superintendent of public instruction, are slated to speak.

To Talk on Germany

The Rev. Orris G. Robinson, who has recently returned from a trip into occupied Germany, will describe conditions there to members of the Washington Civitan club when it meets Tuesday at 12:30 p. m. in the Mayflower Hotel.

Area News in Brief

Horse Captured Fleeing Dice Raid

Police Pvt. LeRoy Perry, who has helped deliver a baby, rope a hog and catch a calf, got a horse yesterday.

He and his partner, Pvt. Thomas F. Allen, both attached to the Fourth Police Precinct, got one when they broke up a dice game in Brown ct. sw.

Perry

The horse was watching eight youths calling on "them bones" when Perry and Allen, on a routine cruise, spotted them. The boys spread—the horse took off after them.

Privates Perry and Allen rounded up two of the boys, took them to the Fourth Precinct, and returned for the horse. Perry grabbed the animal, tied a rope around his neck and then followed Private Allen while he led the horse to the District Pound, South Capitol and Eye sts. sw.

About noon yesterday, Ellsworth West, 45, of 369 Casey ct. sw., dropped by to claim the horse. He said he had tied the animal to a haywagon about 8 blocks from Brown ct. on Saturday night. It apparently had slipped moorings, he said.

Private Perry's exploits with a baby, a hog and a calf, happened back in August of 1947. Later, he and his partner at that time, Pvt. Henry R. Kershner, were commended by their commanding officer as "two good policemen who are right on the job all the time."

Zoning Adjustments

The District Board of Zoning Adjustment considered 275 cases during the fiscal year ending June 30, according to an annual report made public yesterday.

Of the 275 cases, 85 appeals were granted, 98 were approved conditionally or in part, and 76 were denied. The remainder were withdrawn or are still pending.

An additional 173 requests for exceptions from the existing regulations resulted in 114 whole or partial approvals, 49 denials and the remainder withdrawn or pending.

The District Zoning Commission held three public hearings during the fiscal year to adopt nine amendments to the zoning regulations, 29 additions to the zoning map and 38 changes in the zoning of property previously part of streets and alleys since closed. Sixty-nine amendments to the map were denied.

Richard Pyles Dies; Lawyer And Veteran

Richard A. W. Pyles, 61, member of a pioneer Maryland family, died early yesterday at his home at 2141 I st. nw. following an illness of several weeks.

He was born at Camp Springs, Md., the son of the late Wallace R. and Alice Adams Pyles. His father was a prominent agriculturalist and political leader in Prince Georges County. His forebears settled in Maryland in the seventeenth century and played a prominent part in the State's political and military history.

One of Mr. Pyles' ancestors, John Pyles, was a member of the first council of Maryland, established in 1634, and another helped to write the Maryland Toleration Act of 1649, which guaranteed freedom of worship.

As a member of the Maryland National Guard, Mr. Pyles served on the Mexican border in 1916. He saw extensive service overseas with the 310th Machine Gun Battalion in the First World War and was wounded in the Battle of the Argonne. He was a graduate of the Georgetown University Law School and at one time was active in Maryland State politics.

He is survived by his widow, Malvina Lindsay Pyles, editorial columnist with The Washington Post; a sister, Mrs. W. A. Affron of Camp Springs, Md., and three brothers, W. Eugene Pyles and Ernest R. Pyles, both of Camp Springs, and Dr. J. Chester Pyles of Washington, D. C.

Private funeral services will be held Tuesday, with burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

Baptist Scores 'Spineless' Christianity

"Insipid and spineless" kinds of Christianity were scored yesterday by Dr. Duke K. McCall of Nashville, Tenn., executive secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention's executive committee.

The 34-year-old Baptist leader spoke at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H st. nw., before 800 key workers for the city-wide Baptist Simultaneous Evangelistic Campaign that will begin October 10 in 35 Baptist churches of this area.

Dr. McCall reminded the audience that Christians must do more than attend church and enjoy the music and sermon. They need the strength of their convictions, he said.

"We need to take a stand against the things that are evil in our community, nation and world," he told the workers at the preparatory rally. "We need to think in terms of setting our city on fire with the Gospel of Jesus Christ."

Dr. McCall was introduced by George Fraser of Chevy Chase Baptist Church, chairman of the Southern Baptist Convention's executive committee.

Henry Blair, 80, Business Leader, Dies

Henry Patterson Blair, 80, leader in business and community affairs here for many years, died yesterday at 6 p. m. at Episcopal Eye, Ear, and Throat Hospital.

Mr. Blair

Mr. Blair, who lived at 314 East Capitol st., had been a patient at the Episcopal Hospital since September 7.

He was born December 8, 1867 in Plymouth N. H., and was the son of New Hampshire's late Senator Henry William Blair and Eliza Ann Nelson Blair.

Following the expiration of his father's 10-year service in Congress in 1885, the family settled in Washington, where Senator Blair started his law practice.

Following his graduation from Columbian College Law School, Mr. Blair opened a law firm in association with Henry Wise Garnett in 1894. The partnership terminated with Mr. Garnett's death two years later, and Mr. Blair established his practice with Corcoran Thom, board chairman of the American Security & Trust Co. The partnership continued until Thom's appointment to the bank's presidency in 1909.

From 1901 to 1904, he was a law professor at the Columbian College, and when that organization was incorporated into George Washington University, he remained as a law professor with the institution until 1909.

Mr. Blair served as the District's first assistant corporation counsel from 1905 until 1916; as president of the District Board of Education from 1913 to 1916 and as a member of the board from 1910 to 1916. Shortly after he terminated his association with the Board of Education he became president of the Equitable Life Insurance Co. and remained with the organization throughout his life.

Mr. Blair had been one of the original incorporators of the Episcopal Hospital when it was established in 1897. He had been the hospital's first vice president and was chairman of the executive committee of the hospital since 1925. He served on the board of directors of Columbia Hospital for the past 30 years.

He is credited with pioneer work in the field of prepayment hospital service and drafted the articles of incorporation for Group Hospital Association, Inc., which today has about 375,000 members. He also wrote the association's original subscribers' service contracts—without payment for services he rendered.

For the past 50 years, Mr. Blair has been a member of St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal Church, 3d and A sts. se. Seldom absent from the church's functions or services, he sang bass in the choir since 1885.

In 1898, he established the St. Mark's Choir Camp at Cornfield Harbor, Md., where he spent his summers with choir members until war conditions forced closure of the recreation facilities in 1942. He was a vestryman of the church from 1906; parish registrar from 1909 to 1914, and parish treasurer from 1916 until his death.

Mr. Blair is credited with organizing the District Boy Scouts Board, with helping to start the national Boy Scouts of America movement and pioneer work for the Community Chest organization.

A bachelor, immediate survivors are four cousins.

District Man Found Dead In Parked Car

Bryan Joe Kitterman, 38, 639 Maine ave., sw., an electrician at the Naval Testing Basin, Carderock, Md., was found dead yesterday in his parked automobile on Naval Basin rd. near Persimmon Tree rd., near Carderock.

A garden hose, police said, had been attached to the exhause pipe of the car and stretched into a rear ventilator window. Dr. F. J. Broschart, Montgomery County medical examiner, issued a certificate of death by suicide due to carbon monoxide poisoning.

The car was discovered by Frank Walker of Cabin John, who was training his hunting dogs near the scene. Kitterman later was identified by Robert Talkington of Cabin John, a fellow employe at the testing basin.

The body was removed to the funeral home of W. Reuben Pumphrey, 7557 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, Md.

A native of West Virginia, where his parents still reside, Kitterman was an Army veteran of World War II. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Mae Kitterman, and parents. Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

WHEN KIDNEYS Work Too Often
Are you embarrassed and inconvenienced by too frequent elimination during the day or night? This symptom as well as Smarting Passages, Backache, Leg Pains, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains and Swollen Ankles may be due to non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. In such cases the very first dose of the scientifically compounded medicine called CYSTEX usually goes to work right now helping you these 3 ways: 1. Helps nature remove irritating excess acids, poisonous wastes and certain germs. 2. This cleansing action helps nature alleviate many pains, aches, soreness and stiffness. 3. Helps reduce frequent night and day calls, thus promoting better sleep.
Get CYSTEX from druggist today. Money back guaranteed unless CYSTEX satisfies you.

Mrs. William Thaw, Jr.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 3 (AP).—Mrs. William Thaw, jr., grande dame of Pittsburgh society and well known for her philanthropic works, died today, six years short of the 100 she had set as a goal. She was 94.

Born Elizabeth Dohrman in Pittsburgh in 1854, she married into the tremendous Thaw coal, rail and banking fortune in 1876. Her husband, William Thaw, jr., died in 1892 after 16 years of marriage.

CORRECTION

In yesterday's editions of The Washington Post, it was incorrectly stated that the Metropolitan Police Boys Club serenaded President Truman with "Hail to the Chief" on his return to the Capital Saturday. Elks Boys Band 15, conducted by L. S. Yassel, was the band which played for the President at Union Station. The Post regrets the error.

Acheson's Picnic Guest Gets Mystery Call

By Marie McNair

GUESTS at Mr. and Mrs. Ted Acheson's picnic yesterday at Rolling Valley, their Virginia farm, went home wondering just what Col. Robert Guggenheim meant by a certain remark. In the midst of a curried lamb and old Virginia ham luncheon, the telephone rang with a call for Bob Guggenheim. It was from Senator Arthur Vandenberg.

Colonel Guggenheim tore into his coat and as he went through the door, he was heard to say, "A year from now this will be a history-making call; you'll remember it."

Autumn breezes blowing over the Acheson's broad acres, made it too cool for comfort out-of-doors yesterday. So—luncheon was served in the comfortable old house and guests took their exercise afterward outside.

Ralph Forster spent most of the afternoon mowing the lawn, and there was a waiting line for the old-fashioned hammocks swinging between the trees.

Among those there were Lady Wilson, who went home to entertain at dinner last evening at Wolf Trap Farm, the Jouett Shouse's house which she has leased; Commodore and Mrs. Valentine Godfrey, Tenti Pajunen, head of the Bank of Finland, who came for the Monetary Conference here.

Capt. and Mrs. William Freeman were making their adieux, as they sail October 12 for France, England, Belgium and the Netherlands and won't be back until Christmas.

In the "Hawaiian corner" were Mr. and Mrs. Alexander F. Jones, the Achesons and Bill Huggins, who all met on the islands this summer.

Then there were Mr. and Mrs. David H. Wills, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Williams, Mrs. Charles Bradley, Lyle DeSette, Mr. and Mrs. Constantine de Stackelberg, and Alexander Korol, who has come from Hawaii to spend a year in the States.

FOR several years Isabelle Hackett wrote a newspaper column of humorous happenings and everyday incidents, told and retold, "Over the Back Fence." Now, the author signs herself, Catherine Turlington, and her first book, "Three to Make Ready," published a few days ago, contains those same stories with fresh ones added. Three teen-age girls are the central figures in the book.

The wife of Edgar Turlington, internationally known lawyer, and former member of the Department of State, Catherine Turlington was once a member of the Christian Science Monitor's Washington bureau.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Marquis Childs gathered together a small group of Mrs. Turkington's friends in the newspaper fraternity to down a cocktail or two in honor of the author and her book.

Among those there were radio commentator, Elmer Davis, and Mrs. Davis; the Tom Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stroud, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lindley, and George Maurice Morris, noted Washington lawyer, and Mrs. Morris, who were in Lima last year with the Turlingtons for the meeting of the International Bar Association.

Joseph Jones old friend of Mr. Turlington in the State Department, was there with Mrs. Jones and also at the party were Mr. and Mrs. James Spear Taylor.

INTERESTING job being done for the Diplomatic Corps right now is a book being compiled in New York. Editor is young Myron Hurwitz, son of the Nathan Hurwitzes of Washington. The United Nations World, in conjunction with Funk & Wagnalls, will put out the book after January 1.

Too often customs of the country are apt to puzzle the strangers within its gates. The rules of protocol, varying in each country, are bewildering.

But it'll be simple for the Ambassador from Saudi Arabia to get around in Iceland, if he'll just open up his book. There's not a question which will go unanswered in Diplomatic Year Book, which is divided into four parts and subtitled, Diplomacy in Action; Guide to Diplomatic Usage, the Diplomatic List and Guide to Diplomatic Living. Herbert Evatt, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Australia, has written the introduction.

It's something that's never been undertaken before; it's a book that should prove invaluable to the foreign service.

Myron Hurwitz began his journalistic career with Washington's Corps Diplomatique when he was fresh out of Princeton. Having lived most of his life in France, he speaks fluent French, all of which is a great help to him now. For French still remains the diplomatic language.

Jeanne Miles Is Betrothed

Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Miles announce the engagement of their daughter, Jeanne, to Robert Sullivan Hollingshead, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Hollingshead, also of Washington.

Miss Miles was graduated from Gunston Hall School and Marjorie Webster. Mr. Hollingshead, who was in the Army in Italy during the war, is studying at George Washington University.

The wedding will take place November 27 in St. Alban's Church.

Mrs. Christy Angeles To Return to Spain

Mrs. Christy Angeles, who has made Washington her home for the past several years, is returning to Madrid, Spain. She will leave this afternoon. Many farewell parties have been given in her honor, including one last Saturday evening at the home of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John Austin Chapman.

Among the guests at the Chapman party were Mrs. M. Stetson, Mrs. M. Lochrie, Miss Betty Chapman and Miss Donia Aubrey.

Berendsens Away

The New Zealand Minister and Lady Berendsen left on Saturday for Boston to open an art exhibition of New Zealand paintings by Charles Hopkinson. They will return to Washington on Tuesday.

Dinner Hosts

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Flather entertained a few guests at dinner Saturday evening at Normandy Farm.

William Long To Take Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Sellnow have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Ann Sellnow, to William F. E. Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Long of Washington. The wedding will take place in the spring.

Mr. Long received his A. M. degree from George Washington University. He was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and of Pi Gamma Mu, honorary social science fraternity. At present, he is instructing at Maryland University.

Mitzi Whitman's Engagement Told

The engagement of Miss Mitzi Rita Whitman to Ernest L. Alvino was announced yesterday at a tea given by Miss Whitman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. (Dick) Whitman, at their home in Vineland, N. J. The wedding will take place this winter.

Miss Whitman is employed at Newcomb Hospital, Vineland, as assistant to the night supervisor. A veteran of service in the Army, Mr. Alvino is in his junior year at Camden Law School, Camden, N. J., where he is president of the William Penn Law Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitman are former residents of Washington where Mr. Whitman was CBS presidential engineer.

On Bermuda Cruise

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Johnson sailed on Friday on board the Evangeline in New York for a six day cruise to Bermuda.

Miss Scanlon to Wed in January

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel B. Scanlon announce the engagement of their daughter, Ann Marie, to Anthony Joseph Veith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Veith.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Mother of Small Daughter Opens Letter Addressed to Husband and Finds He Has Mistress Who Is Practicing Blackmail

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married to Jim for almost nine years. He is a fine husband and we have a fine daughter, 8 years old, to whom I am very devoted.

However, Jim very much wanted a son and was quite disappointed when Jane was born. Two years later I was in an automobile accident, and at the time I was expecting another baby. The child, a boy, was born dead; and Jim was deeply affected by this, as his whole life seemed centered around his hope of a son.

Soon the doctors told us I could have no more children and Jim went almost out of his mind and took to drinking. However, he soon stopped drinking excessively and drank only occasionally; but he became rude to me and sometimes rough.

Uses Illegitimate Child as Bludgeon

A YEAR AGO I realized he was having an affair with another woman. Recently he has been receiving letters which I suspected were from her. One day I couldn't restrain my curiosity any longer, so I opened one of the letters and was shocked to learn that she is blackmailing Jim.

It seems that she has borne him a son and is taking care of the child for him. Jim has been paying her, but now she wants more. She knows how much he loves his boy, and also how important it is to keep secret the fact that he has a son; so she is threatening not only to reveal the secret to me, but to do harm to the boy if she is not paid an enormous sum.

I love my husband very much and although he has been cruel I want to help him. Should I tell him I know about his son? Or should I keep silent? Please advise immediately. E. D.

Is Husband Blind to Wife's Awareness

DEAR E. D.: Truth is stranger than fiction, we hear; so perhaps this story is bona fide. And yet I wonder: is it a faked conundrum?

If you intercepted a blackmail letter from Jim's concubine, broke the seal and read it, you couldn't conceal the fact that it has been opened, could you? And if he is cruel and sometimes rough, you'd shrink from confronting him with your audacity, I think. Thus you d be apt to destroy the evidence.

In such case, it seems likely that he would learn from the woman in subsequent wrangles that somebody, presumably you, had been tampering with his mail; because if he didn't receive the letter, hence didn't react directly to her figurative gun-play in that instance wouldn't she make dire references to the oversight, and to the risks he ran in ignoring her threats?

Probably yes; with the result that vibrant mutual awareness that his secret was half out-of-the-bag would exist between you and Jim by now, even supposing he asked no questions nor did you. Thus the implication that Jim doesn't suspect the wires have been tapped rather invalidates the whole story, because it poses a chapter-ending, or psychological set-up in marriage, that hardly rings true.

Better Convey Two Points to Husband

However, assuming the story is true—and I'm willing to take a chance, owing to the seriousness of the problem suggested,—then I would favor telling Jim, with pointblank simplicity, that you understand he has a son whose mother is badgering him with blackmail threats of exposure and demands for money; and that you want to befriend him and the child in any way you can, because you love him.

If he tries to put you off, if he icily asks what you're talking about tell him sturdily you opened the letter (and you might touch on the feelings that moved you to do so), and there are two points you'd like to make: 1. He is not between two fires, so far as you are concerned; you are willing to stand by him through any trouble the woman may force. 2. Since her threats indicate that she is either criminal or irrational, isn't it wise to bring expert legal and social welfare counsel to bear on the problem, for the boy's sake.

Miss Altimont Weds J. P. Sita

Miss Marie Patricia Altimont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Altimont of Chevy Chase, Md., became the bride yesterday of Joseph Paul Sita, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sita of Washington. The Rev. Charles Gorman performed the ceremony at the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament and a reception followed at the Catholic Daughters of American Club.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown of white satin and lace with a seed pearl tiara holding her tulle veil. Her bouquet was of white roses. Miss Suzanne Oyster was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Alfred Altimont, Miss Angela Altimont and Miss Mary Sansalone. Best man was Albert Altimont, the bride's brother, and the ushers included Alfred Altimont, Gordon Woodcock and Frank Sita.

The newlyweds will be at home in Chevy Chase following their honeymoon to Canada and New York.

What to Serve

Apple fritters make a delicious accompaniment for chicken or ham. Serve with maple syrup if desired.

To save frosting a butter cake, spinkle the batter with finely chopped filberts before baking; do not use on sponge-type cakes, since the batter is not heavy enough to hold the nuts and they will sink to the bottom.

Canned salmon, used for a sandwich filling or for a canape spread, benefits from a dash of sugar added along with the salad dressing and other seasonings.

Cream snappy yellow cheese with a little cooking sherry, put in a small pottery jar, cover and allow the flavors to blend in the refrigerator for several days. Then serve as a spread for crackers with a cooked vegetable salad.

Leftover chicken makes Waldorf salad into a main dish for lunch. Just add the cubed chicken to the celery, apples, walnuts and mayonnaise and serve in lettuce cups or on short sprays of watercress.

How to Remove Spots From Table

We have a mahogany drop-leaf table (small) that was done over a year ago. This summer we sublet our apartment and our renters have left spots on the table. They look like grease but scrubbing with mild soap suds does not remove them. Can you offer any suggestions?

M. B. K.

If this grease-like stain has penetrated the finish and the wood under it, it will probably be necessary to remove the finish to get at it. However, if it lies on the surface of the finish you can probably remove it by using a fine abrasive. Mix rottenstone or powdered pumice into a paste with linseed oil. Rub this paste over the stain with the grain of the wood, taking care not to get it into the surrounding area. Wipe dry with a clean, soft cloth and polish the entire surface.

I have got some small spots of red nail polish on a grey-and-white cord suit. Polish remover softened the polish and some of it came out but left a pinkish stain. Could you recommend a better way to remove the other spots completely, or is the polish remover the only solution?

J. E. A. B.

You should be able to remove the pink stain by using a bleach. One which is safe to use on rayons or cottons and which should not affect the grey color is sodium perborate. Make a solution of one tablespoon perborate to a cup of water and sponge it. Rinse thoroughly when the stain is removed. First softening the fresh nail polish stains with carbon tetrachloride and then adding banana oil or the polish remover should remove them easily. But, even with this method it is sometimes necessary to remove the remaining color with bleach.

I have a blue velveteen formal dress that I would like to make over into a skirt, bolero and bonnet for my little girl. It is ice blue in color. It was only worn once at a wedding two years ago and since then it has been packed away. Consequently, it needs cleaning badly and in some places it seems a lighter blue. I would consider dyeing it but I am told velveteen will not dye because it mats together. I have taken the entire dress apart and have considered washing it. I tried washing a small piece and it came out fine as far as color, but it seemed to lose its soft appearance.

I vaguely remember having a velveteen dress as a child and it seemed to me, if I remember correctly, my mother washed it, pressed it when dry and then steamed it over a tea kettle. Does this sound logical? My little girl is only 14 months and since it is such a light blue (and dyeing isn't possible) I would be sending it to the cleaners every time she wore it, which certainly wouldn't be practical. Please advise.

M. L.

If this material is a cotton velveteen it should wash very satisfactorily, if care is used. Your mother's method was remembered correctly, except that if it is pressed when thoroughly dry on the wrong side only, it should not need to be steamed. When washing, use a mild soap and very thoroughly rinse the soap from the fabric. It is best not to wring it too tightly, because this might put wrinkles in it which it would be difficult to remove later. So, lightly squeeze it and then shake vigorously. This shaking while wet will do much to fluff and soften the material. Or, hanging it to dry out of doors on a breezy day will do the same for it. Press it when thoroughly dry on the wrong side on a heavily padded board. When pressed, brushing the velveteen side with a stiff brush will bring up the pile and give it a more velvety appearance.

Freshman Thrift Cues

Keep a bottle of spotting fluid handy to use in removing simple stains from garments that are otherwise clean. Wear clothes in rotation. Have your raincoat and ski clothes treated for water resistance. Wool things should be mothproofed.

Your Baby And Mine

His Actions, Not the Child, Are at Fault

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Few things are comparable to the cruelty with which otherwise conscientious parents tear down a child's self-esteem and confidence in himself.

They do it with the best intentions, too. They argue that the child must be reproved when he does wrong. This may be true, but it is the way they manage this that does the mischief. Instead of saying, "This isn't the way you should act," they say, "You are thus and so."

When a child is harped at throughout the day and told that he is naughty, that he acts wrongly, that he isn't clean or tidy or mannerly or obedient or unselfish, all his belief in self vanishes. The people who love him best think thus poorly of him. It never occurs to him to challenge their opinion and say, "No, I am not that way." He accepts it as valid and feels no compulsion to rise above his present behavior.

In fact, when such parents start in when the child is small to tell him in the many ways he displeases them and now he is; he grows accustomed to the adverse labels and takes a certain pride in living up to them. If he is a selfish child then he might as well get all he can out of being selfish. If he is dishonest, then the sting of of the title soon evaporates and he becomes what they tell him he is.

All through the child's life the parents have the deepest obligation to help him to live up to the best that is in him, not the worst. While he is struggling toward that best he is certain to be guilty of behavior of which they disapprove. He will bite and kick his small companions before he will greet them with a smile. He will grab their toys before he shares amiably with them.

But such behavior is typical of growth and not the key to the child's groping his way—with mistakes—toward adult standards of living. His behavior may be deplorable and reprehensible and punishable. But it isn't the child who is faulty, only his actions.

NEW RELIEF!
WHEN CHILD FEELS
Choked Up WITH A COLD

Mother, you know what wonderful relief you get when you rub on warming Vicks VapoRub!
Now . . . if a cold chokes-up your youngster and makes breathing difficult . . . here's a special way to use VapoRub for grand relief, too!
. . . It's VapoRub Steam!
Put a good spoonful of Vicks VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water or vaporizer. Then . . . let your child breathe in the soothing VapoRub Steam. Medicated vapors penetrate direct to cold-congested upper bronchial tubes, bring relief with every breath!
For continued relief while child sleeps, rub throat, chest and back with Vicks VapoRub. It keeps working for hours to relieve distress. Try it! VICKS VAPORUB

Electrical Engineers to Meet Tuesday

A session of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Statler Hotel leads off the week's list of scientific and technical meetings.

Members of the AIEE's middle eastern district will participate in discussions on air transportation, power, electrical instruments and marine transportation.

The institute will meet again Wednesday and Thursday at the Statler with sessions at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m. The early meeting Thursday will be held jointly with the International Scientific Radio Union (URSI) and Institute of Radio Engineers.

At 2 and 8 p. m. Thursday, URSI and the Institute of Radio Engineers will meet at the Interior Department auditorium, 19th and C sts. nw. They will hold additional meetings there Friday at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m.

Saturday, URSI and the radio institute will meet at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m. at the Commerce Department auditorium, 14th st. between Constitution and Pennsylvania aves. nw.

Other scientific meetings this week include:

Tuesday—the Botanical Society of Washington, 8 p. m., Cosmos Club auditorium, Madison pl. and H st. nw.

Wednesday—the Washington Society of Engineers will hear Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, USA, retired, speak on "The Growth of Communism in North America," following a dinner at 7 p. m. at the Cosmos Club.

Thursday — the Entomological Society of Washington, 8 p. m., National Museum, Constitution ave. at 10th st. nw., in room 43.

Friday—the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, 11:50 a. m., room 6962, South Agriculture Building, Independence ave. between 12th and 14th sts. nw.

Saturday—Biological Society of Washington, 8 p. m., room 43, National Museum.

Richmond Fair Opens Today

Richmond, Va., Oct. 3 (U.P.)—The Atlantic Rural Exposition—featuring 1500 livestock and agricultural entries from 13 Middle Atlantic States—opens at Strawberry Hill here tomorrow. Exposition sponsors have termed it "the leading livestock show east of the Mississippi."

Fair officials are setting their sights on 500,000 paid admissions for the six-day period—an increase of 300,000 over last year.

Along with the displays of cattle, canning and crops, will be the familiar spiel of barkers luring spectators into sideshows and daring rides, and the smell of peanuts and hot dogs.

For the first time, all Virginia school children will be admitted free to the exposition grounds.

Church School Starts Tonight

Bethesda Council of Churches will open a leadership training school at 7:45 tonight in the Bethesda Presbyterian Church. The school will be held each Monday night for six weeks.

Each session will include two classes and a devotional period. The Rev. William J. Lineback, executive secretary of the Capital Area Christian Missionary Society, will teach the classes on "The Church Through the Centuries," a brief survey of the trends in the history of Christianity. "Guidance in Christian Homemaking" will be taught by the Rev. Leonard Edmonds, director of the Department of Social Welfare, Washington Federation of Churches.

The Rev. Franklin Gillespie, educational director of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, will conduct the course on "The Church and Home Working Together in the Religious Nurture of Children," and "Methods of Teaching Juniors and Intermediates" will be taught jointly by Mrs. O'Neal Johnson, superintendent of the junior department of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, and Mrs. Ashton Haynes, Sunday school teacher at St. John's Episcopal Church.

BACKSTAGE SHADOWS: When the National Theater reopens as a film house Friday evening, October 15, a touch of irony will bring a backstage story to the screen of the theater where live actors no longer perform. The film, a story of ballet life, is "The Red Shoes," in which Anton Walbrook, Robert Helpmann and Moira Shearer, above, have the leading roles. The Women's Advertising Club of Washington will sponsor the theater's reopening as its annual benefit with gala trimmings. The National's box office opens this morning.

25 Citizens' Groups Schedule Initial Meetings This Week

First meetings of the fall season and election of officers will take place this week for many of the District's citizens' associations.

The Crestwood Citizens' Association, meeting Wednesday will elect officers and will be addressed by Dr. P. V. Cardon, research administrator of the Department of Agriculture, and B. Y. Morrison, of the department's Bureau of Plant Industry, as part of its fall gardening clinic.

Guest of honor at the meeting of the Columbia Heights group on Tuesday will be Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kan.).

Officers will be elected this week by the following associations: Arkansas Avenue Community, Connecticut Avenue, Michigan Park, and Stanton Park.

Many nearby Maryland and Virginia groups will also meet this week. A list of Greater Washington meetings follows.

Boy, 6, Slays Brother, 10

New Castle, Pa., Oct. 3 (AP).—Lawrence County Coroner Charles Allen reported a 6-year-old boy this morning shot and killed his brother, 10, in an argument over a comic book.

The victim was George Lee Nail, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Nail of Clifton Flats, a New Castle suburb. He was shot in the head with a 12-gauge shotgun and died at New Castle Hospital at 10 a. m., less than three hours later.

Allen identified the younger brother as Samuel Thomas Nail. He said the argument arose from George's wish to trade the comic book with a neighbor boy, and Samuel's protests that he had not yet seen the book.

The father said he had kept the shotgun unloaded in his bedroom and the shells hidden in a vase. No charges will be filed because the State believes a child of less than 7 incapable of committing a crime.

These Will Crack Your Sacroiliac

By Richard L. Coe

WHETHER THE HIPPODROME'S double bill offers more tears than boredom is a moot point. At all events, it's three hours that will crack your sacroiliac and exhaust your patience.

Certainly the cause for foreign films isn't helped a bit by these two, one from France starring Viviane Romance, the other from Italy starring Valli.

Not even Lana Turner suffered more in "Green Dolphin Street" than does Mlle. Romance in the thing cryptically titled "Angel?" This seems to be from a novel by Pierre Benoit called "The Companions of Ulysses." It concerns a noble Latin named Salvador and a lady who's out to knife him. After an endless series of adventures Viviane winds up in a convent and a stern sense of duty kept me rooted in my tired chair to see if, like Lana in "Green Dolphin Street," she would renounce the veil for True Love. At last, I think that's what Lana did. But La Romance is not one to falter. She thinks men are beasts and from all she's been through, I don't blame her.

Valli's vehicle is called "Sin of Patricia," the story of an Italian war veteran who returns to a wife who's managed to keep things in some sort of order during the six years he's been away. One afternoon while he's trying to get back into the business his one-time partner has muscled away from him, the wife kills a man. This wretch had stained her honor when finances were low and her little son needed surgical care; the husband is stuffy about the whole affair and it takes forever to get them to a hand-holding stage.

Neither Film Well Made

Of the two, the Italian picture is at least the better intended. It tries to say that, though some homes were not bombed, all lives were shattered by the war.

It also makes the point, evident in all postwar Italian films, that the nobility is venal and not to be trusted. This facet, personfied in a rich baroness, appearing as it does in film after film, is certainly one unmistakable reflection of today's unhappy Italy.

But neither film is well made. The stories are both jerkily told, the action never flows with any degree of disciplined direction, a quality that becomes virtually ludicrous in the French film.

"BEAUTY AND THE BEAST" is in its final two days of a three-week stay at the Little, for which, the more the pity . . . The Jean Cocteau film is the best to come from France in many a long day, a thoroughly enchanting picture . . . Going into the Little Wednesday will be "Escape," the Rex Harrison-Peggy Cummins film from John Galsworthy's play, which recently completed three weeks at the Playhouse.

PERFORMERS of all descriptions are wanted for entertainment in service hospitals, camps and local charitable institutions by Volunteer Community Shows . . . Types? . . . To a few, dancers, tap and otherwise, pianists, harmonica players, accordionists, comedians, jugglers and all kinds of vocalists. . . . For these units there will be try-outs Wednesday night at the Thompson School, 12th and L sts., nw. . . . Further information from Frances Ricketts, Hobart 8134.

TONIGHT the Southeast Dramatics Association will hold its first fall meeting, to lay plans for the coming season at Friendship House at 8:30 . . . The group's housing problem will be one topic discussed, states Frances Noel Crane.

SOUTHEAST today is also seeing its Carolina Theater, 105 11th st. se., embarking under new management . . . The theater will be operated by Sam F. Roth, Virginia State Senator who's got a lengthening chain in the Old Dominion . . . The Carolina's first attraction will be "Mom and Dad," recently in Georgetown's Dumbarton Theater, now closed for repairs. . . .

FORD'S THEATER, Baltimore, this week is playing "Oklahoma!" with the same company which brought down the curtain on the National's "live" life last July 31.

Grand Jury Cases Slated in Prince Georges

Approximately 150 cases are scheduled for presentation to the Prince Georges County grand jury which will be selected at the opening today of the October term of the county Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro, Md.

Among the cases expected to be presented are those of Thomas Hall, 61, and his daughter Janie Leeta Hall, 20, both of Deanwood Park, Md., charged with the fatal shooting of County Policeman Charles F. Caldwell and wounding of Policeman Wallace Baker. The woman also is charged with assault with intent to kill on Willie Preston, 23, also of Deanwood Park.

The policemen were shot and beaten when they attempted to arrest the Halls June 12 after a fight in the Hall home. Caldwell died as he was being placed on the operating table at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale. Both Halls are charged with murder of Caldwell and assault with intent to kill on Baker. They are being held without bond at the Marlboro jail.

Another case to be presented is that of Anson Merrick Sloan, 39, of Hampshire Knolls, Md., charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of his wife, Florence, 42, August 31. The woman was found dead, apparently the victim of a beating, at their home. Sloan pleaded not guilty at a preliminary hearing in county police court at Hyattsville, Md., September 16 and was released on bond of $2500. He previously had been held without bond on charges of murder.

Joseph S. Haas, 74, of 3210 Bunker Hill rd., Mount Rainier, Md., has been named foreman of the October term grand jury.

Search of Woods Produces No Clews In Double Slaying

An inch-by-inch search of the woods where the bodies of Mary Kline and John Mahlan were found failed again yesterday to turn up any clew to their slayings.

Police and forest wardens of Anne Arundel County, Md., combed brush and weeds near Chesterfield rd. and Defense hwy. for the second day in a renewed and intensified hunt for any object that might throw light on the shooting of the 25-year-old Glen Burnie postoffice clerk and his 18-year-old companion. The slaying occurred while the two were on a date two weeks ago last Friday night.

The search-party yesterday carried off many loads of weeds and brush, in two radio-equipped trucks, from an extensive area surrounding the spot where the bodies were found, but the searchers found nothing of interest, County Police Sergt. Marvin Jeffrey said last night.

Man Is Facing 3 Charges After Taxi Dispute

John Wesley Lamkin, 38, of 1402 Morse st. ne., is to appear in Municipal Court today to answer two disorderly conduct charges and a charge of assault on a police officer.

The two disorderly charges were placed against Lamkin Saturday night while being taken into No. 12 Precinct Station. Police said a cab driver told them Lamkin had hailed him, given an address, and, when the driver did not know how to reach it, told him he'd "better find out."

The drier, whom police did not identify, said he became frightened and took Lamkin to the police station.

Once in the station house, police said Lamkin grabbed Pvt. George N. Palles, precinct station clerk, and tore his shirt in several places. The third charge was then placed against him. They said Lamkin complained his arm had been injured while he was in the precinct, but examination at Casualty Hospital revealed "no apparent injury."

Lamkin is free on $500 bond pending today's hearing.

Southern Building Awards Top 261 Million

Baltimore, Oct. 3 (AP).—A total of $261,659,000 in construction contracts were awarded in the 16 Southern States last month, the Manufacturers Record reported today.

The trade journal placed the value of Southern construction awards for the first nine months of the year at $2,025,404,000. That figure was surpassed in only two other comparative periods, in 1941 and 1942, the Record said.

The publication placed the nine-month $265,580,000 and for new tion $265,580,000 and for new homes at $360,912,000.

Opinion Survey Today

A report of two recently conducted public opinion polls on tuberculosis in Montgomery county will be presented at 8:15 o'clock tonight to the Health Education Committee of the Montgomery County Tuberculosis Association. The committee will meet at 7649 Georgetown rd., in Bethesda.

The polls were made, association officials said, to gather factual information about what persons know and think about tuberculosis so the association can plan its health education program. The report of the opinion poll will be made public after approval by the committee, officials said.

Advance Data Aided Lard Dealers

By The Associated Press

A congressional subcommittee said yesterday it has no evidence that speculators have cashed in on information "leaks" about Government grain-buying plans.

However, the House group, headed by Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.), reported that lard dealers "realized substantial profits" on advance information passed out by a Commerce Department employe in September, 1947.

The report was one outgrowth of House and Senate charges that commodity speculators profited handsomely from inside information.

The majority report, signed by the subcommittee's four Republican members, said Government grain purchases of the past two years had been primarily responsible for high grain prices, and to a large extent for rising food prices generally.

A sharply worded minority report, signed by the three Democratic members, called the majority's opinions "an indirect attack upon the great program of world recovery which the United States has been following since the war."

The report, the third made by the subcommittee, covered Government grain transactions from July 1, 1946, to June 30, 1948.

The nearly 1,200,000 bushels of grain exported by the United States during this period "was the controlling factor which caused scarcity and higher prices for grains and feed for livestock," the report said. The large exports, it added, also led to decreased supplies of beef, pork, poultry and dairy products.

Total food exports, the report said, were approximately 38,200,000 tons for the two years, plus about 2,400,000 tons of such products as cotton and tobacco. The value of all exports was about $7.199,604,000, the report added.

4 Canadians Killed In Plane Collision

Montreal, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Four persons were killed today when two private planes collided over nearby Cartierville airport. Both planes crashed and burned.

Airport officials said a Cessna plane, in which Stanley Carlson of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, was making a solo flight crashed into a Stinson carrying a flying instructor and two students, a man and a woman.

Invited to Night Clubs

Some 200 Negro soldiers, sailors and Air Force men of the District area have been invited to go night-clubbing tonight as guests of Negro Navy Yard employes.

Accompanied by Government girls, the men will start off with the club ball and end up at the Crystal Tavern. All cover and minimum charges will be suspended for them.

NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY

George Carver Homes—a residential development located on South Queen Street, south of Columbia Pike in Arlington County, Virginia, approximately 3 miles from downtown Washington, and officially designated as War Housing Project Va-44309, is now available for sale, pursuant to the provisions of Public Regulation No 1 of the Housing and Home Finance Agency. This development has been in operation since 1944. It is comprised of 44 dwelling units, situated on a 3.36-acre site, attractively landscaped and improved with sewer, water and gas systems, paved roads, alleys, sidewalks and parking spaces. There are eight two-story buildings of masonry construction on poured concrete foundations, two of which contain four dwelling units each and six containing six dwelling units each. All units are in good condition. The property will be sold as a whole, together with all Government-owned equipment and fixtures now in use there. It is offered at this time only to eligible groups of preferred purchasers, as defined in the General Conditions of Sale, copies of which are available on request. Terms are cash. Immediate inquiry is invited from groups interested in acquiring dwellings for their own occupancy under a plan of purchase which gives the required preference to veterans of World War II and is otherwise acceptable to the PUBLIC HOUSING ADMINISTRATION. The premises may be inspected at any time during regular business hours by appointment made in advance with Mrs. Alice Hyman, General Housing Manager, PUBLIC HOUSING ADMINISTRATION, 13th and South Queen Streets, Arlington, Virginia. Telephone Glebe 4025. Bid forms describing the property more in detail and announcing the price established for preferred purchasers, as well as other pertinent information, may be secured by writing to or calling upon Mr. A. R. Hanson, Director, Area A, PUBLIC HOUSING ADMINISTRATION, Room 914, Georgia Savings Bank Building, Atlanta 3, Georgia, or from Mrs. Hyman at the address given above. All bids must be submitted on the forms provided for that purpose and must be received here in the office of Mr. Hanson until 2 p. m. (EST), November 3, 1948. JOHN P. BROOME, Director, Region IV.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

It All Depends on Your Point of View

The complexities of modern life are strikingly illustrated by Arthur W. Finkelstein of 527 12th st. se.

Arthur points out that people with differing viewpoints often use completely contradictory terms to describe the same person or thing.

For example, to some folks, Senator Kumquat is a "good, sound middle-of-the-roader." But to others, he's a "bumbling old fence-straddler."

Arthur admits that this list is incomplete, but here's a cross section of some similar contradictions:

Intelligence attache; spy.

Loyal party worker; wardheeler.

Brilliant young scientist; crackpot professor.

Legislative liaison consultant; lobbyist.

Sales engineer; peddler.

Information; propaganda.

Efficiency expert; slave driver.

Free enterprise; vested interests.

Unwavering; stubborn.

High military officials; brass hats.

Self-confident; egotistical.

Smart enough not to bite off more than he can chew; lazy.

Good strategist; sly.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I need your help in an effort to save a life—the life of a mongrel dog.

His master is going abroad in a few days, and before he leaves, he's going to put the dog to sleep.

He won't offer him as a Give-Away, because "he's too loyal and intelligent ever to be happy with anybody else."

I've failed to shake him from this bullheaded attitude, so you're the last hope. His whole family reads your column every day; maybe if you print this story he'll understand that it's not necessary to take the dog's life.

Maybe he'll realize how cruel we humans can sometimes be—and how sure that we're right, even when another of God's creatures must pay for our mistakes with his life.

Name Withheld.

Dear Sir:

You've done the job far better than anything I might have said.

Bill.

SUBSCRIBER HANDS PHONE COMPANY A LINE

J. F. O'Brien of 3200 16th st. nw. lives in an apartment house which has its own switchboard.

In addition to other telephone charges, he pays $1.73 to have his name listed in the phone book. He reports:

"Inasmuch as the present directory is being carried over until next March, I now have to pay an additional $1.73, to cover the extension. But I can't help but wonder what would happen if I'd refuse to pay."

The only possibility that suggests itself is that the company might send a man around to erase District Liner O'Brien's name from all its books.

This might take quite some time.

WHY BRING THAT UP?

So you've got an excellent memory, eh? Do you still remember how to work square root problems?

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two cute female kittens, 8 weeks old." (Dupont 1041.)

"One entire cat family." (Woodley 2255.)

"Healthy male Spitz, 1 year old; we're moving." (Franklin 0772.)

"Four smart kittens, 6 weeks old; also full-grown young female cat." (Falls Church 3791.)

"Cocker puppy; female, 3 months old." (Glebe 6214.)

DISCOVERY

It was a wonderful day for football. The air was crisp and clean, the sun filtered down through a few lazy clouds, and heightened the colors on the field below.

The green of the grass, the glinting reds and blues of the school colors made the panorama a scene of sheer delight to the eyes of the spectators.

From someplace back in the stands, an obviously appreciative fan was heard to sigh:

"Boy, this is even better than television!"

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—Nancy Walker, the musical comedy star, just flew back from Hollywood to start rehearsals in the new musical, "Fifth Avenue." When she arrived here she read a gossip-column report that she was divorcing her bridegroom, Gar Moore. Miss Walker immediately denied the report. "Gar and I have only been married 10 days," she said last night. "I don't know him well enough to divorce him."

When Gen. Hanford MacNider, the former Assistant Secretary of War, had three sons and one daughter, F. Trubee Davison, head of the Museum of Natural History, had three sons. Their wives were about to give birth. The MacNider baby arrived first—a girl—and the proud parent of three boys and two girls sent a wire to Davison: "Full House" . . . Then came the Davison baby—another boy—and he wired MacNider: "Four of a Kind. That Beats a Full House."

Col. Hans C. Adamson, the author and book critic who was on the raft with Eddie Rickenbacker, tells this story of Rickenbacker's name: When Rickenbacker was an auto racer his manager, Sloane, told him he must consider changing his name to enhance his career. "Eddie Rick or Eddie Backer is more easily remembered than Eddie Rickenbacker," Sloane suggested . . . Rickenbacker said: "I'll think it over." That night he practiced writing his name hundreds of times, from "Edward A. Rickenbacker, Edward B. Rickenbacker Edward C. Rickenbacker," until he decided that the easiest flow came with "Edward V. Rickenbacker." Then he searched the "V's" in a telephone directory until he found "Vernon." The next day Sloane learned that Eddie Rickenbacker had changed his name officially to "Edward Vernon Rickenbacker."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Nepotism Charged in Congress

By Drew Pearson

Democratic Congressman Jasper Bell of Missouri, who represents President Truman's home (the Fourth district, announced this year that he was retiring from Congress. However, what he didn't tell the voters was that he had put his married daughter, Virginia Bussells, back on the payroll for the duration of his term.

Jasper Bell

Following a nepotism expose last year, the Missourian yanked daughter Virginia off the payroll in a big hurry. This was before he decided to retire. But now that he isn't running for reelection and doesn't have to worry about adverse publicity, Virginia has been reinstated (as of July 15) at $2400 a year.

Meantime, Republican Representative Cliff Clevenger of Ohio also is performing some interesting sleight-of-hand in the payroll department. His secretary, Edgar A. Drake, is paid $5000 and works at the job.

But what Clevenger's constituents don't know is that Drake's wife, Grace, also has been put on the payroll as a full-time employe—salary, $4500 a year. However, what she does—if anything—around the office is a mystery. As one source close to Clevenger puts it:

"I've known Mr. Clevenger for a number of years and in all that time I've never laid eyes on Mrs. Drake in his office."

Peron Defends Franco

When Spanish dictator Francisco Franco announced the other day that he would permit municipal elections in November, he was acting on personal advice from Argentina's Juan D. Peron.

The latter, who now wields as much influence over Franco as Mussolini once did, promised that if the Generalissimo would allow a little innocuous vote casting, Peron would then try to get "more favorable treatment" for Spain in the United Nations.

Peron pointed out the importance of public relations in dealing with the "oligarchic democracies" and argued that mass opinion in those countries would always be favorably influenced by any announcement of elections, without troubling to inform themselves about their nature and scope.

Accordingly, Argentine Foreign Minister Bramuglia has instructions to take an "aggressive position" on the Spanish issue at the U. N. General Assembly meeting in Paris.

The United States' State Department has not decided what stand to take now in the Spanish case. Some of Secretary Marshall's top advisers feel that the time has come to ease up on Franco, chiefly because his regime is regarded as an "anti-Communist bastion" of the Mediterranean area.

Ten years ago, when the legitimate Spanish Republican government was fighting for its life against the Hitler-Mussolini-Franco combine, our Government failed democracy's cause. When such outstanding United States liberals as Ernest Hemingway, John Steinbeck, Vincent Sheean and many others condemned our policy on that fateful issue, the State Department officially dubbed them "premature anti-Fascists."

Yet even inside the department's smug vacuum, that attitude was far from unanimous. Adolph Berle, jr., then Assistant Secretary of State, publicly declared that "our Neutrality Act, as applied to the civil war in Spain, is actually about as neutral in practice as if we sent the Marine Corps to fight for Franco."

Today, wholesale terror, political murder and brutal repression of human rights are as prevalent in Spain as they are in any other country under Communist domination. One statistic is enough to illustrate the whole story: Since January, 1947, 238 persons have been put to death by Franco for the sole offense of holding membership in the Socialist Party.

Merry-Go-Round

In charge of the House Un-American Activities Committee's search for spies who stole atomic secrets, Congressman John McDowell of Pennsylvania would also like to find out who stole his underwear. Fifteen bucks worth of brand new undies were swiped from him before he had a chance to try them on. . . . George Allen, former White House jester, has contributed only $200 to his friend Harry Truman's campaign fund. (maybe George thinks he did enough when he took Eisenhower out of the race.) . . . European Relief Administrator Paul Hoffman has passed down word that his organization will keep its books wide open to the public. As a result several companies, which had hoped to do business with the Marshall Plan countries in private, are screaming in protest.

A sleep-walker who pushed his hand through a window and cut his wrist was one of 101 persons injured in home accidents last week, the Red Cross Accident Prevention Service reported yesterday.

Children drank bleaching solution, disinfectants, lighter fluid, insect spray and lye. One youngster ate dry ice and another ate part of a Christmas tree bulb.

Last Saturday's collegiate game . . . Is fought again today. . . . By all who get together and . . . Review it play by play . . . Of course it is not quite the same . . . As football records show . . . Because there are some errors that . . . Officials did not know . . . And then there were some breaks to which . . . Opponents had no right . . . In view of how the hometown boys . . . Put up a valiant fight . . . A thousand ifs are talked about . . . And if they had not been. . . . The other team would not have had . . . The lousy luck to win . . . But when the hotheads simmer down . . . The alibis grow pale . . . Because the game is over and . . . The scoreboard tells the tale.

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK SYSTEM

★ No. 25 IN A SERIES DEDICATED TO THE NATION'S CAPITAL . . Washington . . ITS INSTITUTIONS AND ITS PEOPLE ★

and its people who safeguard our country's financial structure

● THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM . . . is under the direction of a Board of Governors comprised of seven members. Appointed by the President . . . with the advice and consent of the Senate . . . they are selected with due regard being given to a fair representation of financial, agricultural, industrial and commercial interests . . . and geographical divisions of our country.

● THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM . . . has its home in a beautiful building on Constitution Avenue located across the street from the Navy and Munitions Building. Careful planning has made the Federal Reserve Building harmonize with its neighbors . . . the Academy of Sciences to the west . . . and the Public Health Service, now housing the Atomic Energy Commission, to the east.

● THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM . . . served to support our country's war effort in the recent struggle . . . as did all of the government agencies and all of its citizens. It provided the machinery for helping the government finance the enormous expenditures necessitated by the war . . . to buy planes, the ships and the guns needed to equip our fighting men . . . and the food and clothing necessary to feed and clothe them.

● THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM . . . maintains many controls over our country's banking system and money supply. In many ways, the Federal Reserve System influences our entire economic outlook . . . the state of business and the prosperity of our people. Like the rest of our government offices . . . the people of the Federal Reserve System work constantly with the public interest in heart and mind.

All material contained herein has been secured from the Federal Reserve System and the United States Library of Congress

The American ideal is an ever-increasing standard of living for all our citizens. Helping to bring this about, are the people of the Federal Reserve System whose work vitally affects America's banking system and the all-important money supply. With a firm and stable banking system, holding the confidence of the people . . . and a money supply which meets the changing demands of the economy . . . our country is able to promote the most productive utilization of our human and material resources . . . and work toward achieving an enduring prosperity, free from the disastrous extremes of booms and depressions. The Federal Reserve System was established in 1913 . . . as a result of the statesmanship of President Woodrow Wilson, and the courageous leadership of the late Senator Carter Glass. From that day until the present, the Federal Reserve System has continually adapted itself to the changing demands of the times . . . ever working to make itself more efficient and helpful within the economic machinery of our country. The Hecht Company takes pleasure in dedicating this salute to its friends and neighbors in the Federal Reserve System . . . who perform their important functions faithfully and sincerely . . . continually looking ahead to an ever-growing and ever-more prosperous America.
